Steel Chiefs To Be Called In Roosevelt Strike Parley

President Expected to Demand Freedom in Union Elections.

Johnson Confers With Labor Heads

Textile Workers Take Part; Wagner Joins in Peace Drive

Defiant steel manufacturers will be summoned to the White House next week by President Roosevelt in a move to block a threatened strike of 100,000 workers, it was learned last night.

Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson sought to curb growing industrial unrest yesterday by spending several hours conferring with both steel union leaders and aroused spokesmen for the United Textile Workers, who Wednesday ordered a walkout of 300,000 operators next Monday.

Warnings of prospective internecine industrial warfare also led Chairman Robert F. Wagner of the National Labor Board to cast all other matters aside and personally mollify officers of the Amalgamated Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

President Seeks Move.

The President, away on a short vacation at the moment, will seek substantial concessions from steel mill operators at the coming White House conference, it was understood. His negotiations of necessity will be expedited, as June 16 has been fixed as the deadline for the steel strike.

Mr. Roosevelt is expected by persons in close touch with the situation to insist that the employers permit their employes to elect their own representatives. The President is generally believed to look with favor on demands of union leaders for recognition by employers. He probably will be more specific in divulging his views at the steel parley.

Developments at the conference with manufacturers will determine whether union representatives shall be called to the White House later.

After conferring with Johnson, Thomas F. McMahon, president of

Leaps From Plane 1,500 Feet Up After Takeoff Near Richmond.

Richmond, May 31 (AP).—Alexander M. Luke, of Charleston, S. C., leaped from an airplane 1,500 feet in the air near here this afternoon, his body crashing to earth somewhere between Byrd Airport and the James River near Sailors' Tavern.

The plane was operated by Pilot Beverley Howard, with Luke as a passenger. It was the property of the Hawthorne Flying School, of Charleston.

Returning to Byrd Airport, from where the plane had just taken off, Howard reported the case to Henrico County police. Sheriff T. Wilson Seay sent Superintendent of Police Fred L. Bates and three other officers to the airport, and police and Howard started a search for the body.

The plane previously had landed at the airport from the North, and was setting out for Charleston.

Luke was the son of David L. Luke, of the West Virginia Pulp & Paper Co., who died several months ago.

Young Luke leaves a wife and two children, who were said to have left Charleston about a year ago to live with her parents in Pittsburgh.

Firebugs Destroy Cuban Paper Mill

Americans Among Plant's Investors in Havana.

Havana, May 31 (AP).—A large paper mill, in which Americans are financially interested and which was insured with an American company, was destroyed today by fire which police said was of incendiary origin.

The loss was estimated in some quarters as high as $2,000,000, but officials of the Compania Papelera Nacional, owners of the plant, said it would not exceed $600,000.

Police immediately began to round up suspects and took 30 men into custody for questioning in connection with the blaze.

Dynamite Car Suicide Given Up by Madman

Lays Aside Detonation Switch to 104 Sticks of Powder and Five Quarts of Nitroglycerine After Promise of Job.

Alameda, Calif., May 31 (AP).—After waiting 24 hours for sleep to cause his fingers to slip from a switch and cause an explosion that would blow him to bits, Frank Bennett, unemployed mechanic, suddenly abandoned his suicide scheme this afternoon.

Apparently highly nervous after a day and night in his dynamite-laden automobile, he unexpectedly signaled police he was preparing to surrender. Then he laid aside the detonation switch with which he had constantly threatened to set off the blast, and stepped wearily from his car.

Police, approaching cautiously, asked him whether he had abandoned his plot. He nodded. The officers immediately seized him and rushed him to jail.

Officers Guard Car.

Other policemen were ordered to prevent a surging mob from approaching Bennett's automobile, which contained 104 sticks of dynamite and five quarts of nitroglycerin. Police expressed fear any jar would set off a terrific blast.

Bennett, acclaiming he was sane, blamed his intended act on a series of misfortunes.

"I did it beacuse I wanted to help my children," he told police en route to the city jail. "I figured I was worth more dead than alive and I figured that I would commit suicide in this way, which would be instantaneous and certain."

The man, a former World War flier, said he had debated constantly through the night, while a police searlight played on his car in the marshlands, whether to abandon his scheme and surrender.

Promise of Job Succeeds.

"At 2 o'clock this morning I came very near a decision to press the switch," Bennett said.

"Then I set a deadline for noon today. The policemen came to me

Johnson Hits Ogden Mills, Darrow Report

Darrow Report 'Perversion of Fact and Logic', NRA Chief Says.

Bold "perversion of fact and logic" was attributed to the Darrow board last night by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson in a speech before the National Catholic Alumnae Federation in Willard Hotel.

Only a few minutes earlier Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), North Dakota, champion of Clarence Darrow's National recovery review board, declared the board is dissatisfied with the new steel code because its advice on price-basing and labor went unheeded.

Johnson, speaking over a Nation-wide radio chain, declared "you couldn't take its code away from one of the codified industries with a machine gun and a crowbar."

He directed several verbal thrusts at NRA's critics, notably Ogden Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury, whom he termed "the mouthpiece of a crew of Nation-wreckers," and an unnamed opposition Senator, "who recently advertised himself as connoisseur of rotten eggs."

Nye Wonders About Future.

Nye declared the board wondered "if it is of much use to continue if its findings are going to be ignored."

The Senator explained he had conferred with Darrow.

"In the light of the findings of the Trade Commission, the Darrow Board and the supposed inquiry by the Department of Justice, Nye said, "the steel code just put into effect is very unsatisfactory.

"It still renews the very obnoxious price-basing feature and labor has no advantage in the re-

Representative Hamilton Fish (Republican), New York, once a star Harvard athlete, offered to the House yesterday an all-star line-up for a baseball team composed of heavy-hitting Jeffersonian and Constitutional Democrats "to stack against the Brain Trust champions in the New Deal League."

Representative Fish said he was inspired to make this contribution to New Deal athletics because of President Roosevelt's Memorial Day speech at Gettysburg, in which critics were taken to task for political motives.

Representative Fish's anti-Brain Trust Democratic baseball team is composed as follows:

Father Slain By Youth to Save Mother

Capitol Heights Tragedy Blamed on Jealousy by Neighbors.

Ending a domestic row at their home in Capitol Heights, Md., Leo Jackson, 21, late yesterday fired three charges of shot into his father, James Edward Jackson, 65, killing him instantly. Police were told that the elder Jackson had struck his wife during a quarrel.

Jackson, father of five children and a retired employe of the Navy yard, was shot once in each side and once in the abdomen. Mrs. Alice Jackson, 40, accompanied by her daughter, Mary, 10, who was playing in the yard at the time of the shooting, went to the home of a neighbor and called Prince Georges County police.

While stories of the shooting varied in certain details, investigation by police and statements made by neighbors indicated that Jackson was almost insanely jealous of his wife and was said on previous occasions to have threatened her.

Son Is Jailed.

Leo Jackson was jailed at Marlboro by Sergt. A. W. Hepburn and Policeman Elon Turner, of the Prince Georges police. He made no statement.

Mrs. Jackson's story of the shooting varied somewhat as to her whereabouts when the shots were fired. According to police, she first said that Leo fired while she and her husband were scuffling, but later said that after she escaped from her husband's attack she went into another room, and that the shots were fired during her absence.

Mrs. Jackson said that she and another son, Francis, 16, were in the room with Jackson when he began quarreling, accused her of infidelity, and threatened to shoot either of them who left the room.

Shotgun In Room.

She said a shotgun was leaning against the wall of the room and she told her son, Francis, to grab some loose shells that were in the room and run out with them, which he did. She then followed him out, but came back in a few minutes and the quarreling was resumed, she said. She went into another room and began picking up articles that needed sewing.

"My husband then asked me if I was packing up to leave," she said, according to the police. "I told him

Bolivia Fights Arms Embargo

Surprise Move at Geneva, Under Article 15, Stays Gun Curtailment.

Geneva, May 31 (AP).—Bolivia, in a surprise move today, invoked action by the League of Nations council in the Chaco jungle war. She acted under an article of the league covenant providing for a procedure which may interfere with the league's proposed arms embargo against both Bolivia and Paraguay.

The appeal was under article 15, which authorizes the council to make recommendations for the settlement of disputes without the vote of the disputants.

This article was invoked after Costa Durels, Bolivian delegate, already had invoked article 13, which provides that a disputant nation may ask arbitration.

Action under article 15 is mandatory when a nation invokes that section. If unanimous recommendation is made the members of the league undertake not to go to war with any party to the dispute which complies with the recommendation.

In spite of the delay forecast under league rules in imposing an embargo while the investigation is made, Francisco Najera, of Mexico, chairman, said he favors going ahead with the restriction on armaments.

The Bolivian delegate had insisted the embargo would mean the defeat of his country, saying Paraguay has built a munitions factory.

House Votes Silver Bill By 263-77

Refuses Effort to Make 25% Ratio Mandatory On Treasury.

Revolt Splits Silverites; Only 6 Democrats Ballot 'No'.

Charting a new silver policy for the United States, the Administration's silver bill, to increase monetary stocks of the white metal to 25 per cent, with gold at 75 per cent, sped through the House yesterday on a landslide vote of 263 to 77.

Passage followed refusal of the House to send the bill back to committee, by a 268 to 70 count, on a motion of Representative James W. Mott, Oregon Republican, to make the new silver ratio mandatory on the Treasury Secretary.

Despite an eight-hour fight on the bill, with a revolt in the ranks of silverites, only six Democrats voted with 71 Republicans against passage. Fourteen Republicans and three Farmer-Laborites joined with 246 Democrats in the chorus of "ayes."

The bill went immediately to the Senate, where a strong silver sentiment is expected to clinch enactment at once.

Martin Claims Mandate.

Intensity of the House sentiment for silver legislation came to a head in the runaway vote just after Representative John A. Martin (Democrat), Colorado, declared the legislation was more than permissive.

Referring to claims that the Treasury need not purchase more than an ounce of additional silver under the bill, Martin declared:

"Let me say that if this is done, there will be a new Secretary of the Treasury. We will send this Secretary back to little old New York."

There was applause from the Republican side of the aisle.

Democrats who cast their ballots against the measure included ardent silverites who do not think the measure goes far enough and members opposed to any kind of silver legislation. The half-dozen dissenters were Representatives Fiesinger and Lamneck, of Ohio (advocates of the Fiesinger bill for mandatory silver purchases), and Corning, Griffen, Peyser and Studley, of New York.

Called Logical Step.

Ways and Means Committee Democrats sponsoring the bill have contended from the outset it is a logical and necessary complement to the gold revaluation act and a further step in adjusting the monetary system to the economic needs of the country.

Experts contend it would be possible to purchase 1,300,000,000 ounces of silver under the bill, on top of the present silver reserve of 690,000,000 ounces.

Prior to the decrease in the weight of the gold dollar, silver constituted about 16 per cent of the Nation's monetary stocks of silver and gold, but by the devaluation of the dollar this percentage was reduced to about 10 per cent.

The goal of 25 per cent silver and 75 per cent gold, advocated by the President, is approximately the mean ratio during the last 50 years.

The desired proportion could be attained by disposing of gold under the gold reserve act, or could be reached by increasing monetary stocks by purchases of silver, even though part of the silver was pur-

Barbara Hutton Mdivani to Sail Without Mate.

Southampton, England, May 31 (AP).—Revelation that accommodations have been reserved for Princess Barbara Hutton Mdivani to sail for New York with her father on June 6 heightened interest today in reports that the young American heiress and her Georgian husband are about to separate.

The reservations, it was said, were made by telephone from the Bremen, which will arrive here tomorrow.

Mighty Sea Guns Give Chief Salute

Cabinet Members and Millions Witness Great Parade.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

New York, May 31.—America's mighty armada came back to its old stamping grounds today and with the booming of saluting cannon on the decks of dreadnaughts, cruisers and flushed-deck destroyers passed in review before its commander in chief, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Standing in by the famous old Ambrose Lightship the fleet, each unit in a new coat of gray paint, passed President Roosevelt standing erect on the deck of the cruiser Indianapolis in the greatest naval display in the Nation's history.

Off from the flying decks of their awkard-looking mothers, the Lexington and Saratoga, airplanes zoomed overhead—great silver birds in a sunny cloud-flecked sky. In "V" formation they roared over the Indianapolis and thence over the city, drawing millions to roofs and windows.

Aboard Indianapolis.

The Indianapolis rode at anchor while the great gray ships—more than 700,000 tons of flinty, fighting steel—plowed by in a majestic spectacle of sea-power.

The bow of the last ship cut the waves past the review craft at 3:37 p. m. The Indianapolis then weighed anchor and proceded to head the mighty column up through the Narrows, passed the Battery and up the Hudson to its anchorage between Seventy-second and Ninety-sixth streets.

Tonight along Riverside Drive and Broadway the by-word was "The Fleet's in," as thousands of bluejackets invaded the city the first time since the fleet slipped through the Panama Canal several years ago for maneuvers in the pearl-blue waters of the Pacific.

So impressed was the President

School Heads Hail Passage Of Budget Bill

New Construction Insures Against Crowding, Say Officials.

New school construction items totaling $1,131,000 in the 1935 District budget as passed by Congress yesterday are a definite and effective move against overcrowding, the most serious educational problem here, school officials said yesterday.

"This budget," said Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, "recognizes the existing need for added facilities much more fully than the appropriations for the 1933 and 1934 fiscal years."

"The recent series of articles in The Washington Post pointing out the need of new school construction to relieve present crowded conditions aided in arousing public interest, which is always an important factor," Dr. Ballou added.

No More Teachers Allowed.

But, although the bill will provide buildings to take care of several thousand school children, it makes no provision for additional teachers, Dr. Ballou pointed out. In the past, he said, the Board of Education was able to employ teachers on the basis of school enrollment. At present this is not possible.

The effect of the new budget will not be felt during the next school

Provision by the Government, if necessary, of adequate sanitary living accommodations for low-salaried workers.

Government regulation of the housing business in the National Capital.

Employment of a trained investigator as an aid to the Municipal Court in settlement of landlord-tenant cases.

Formulation and enactment of a comprehensive housing law for the District.

Enactment of the alley dwelling closing bill.

Amendment of the equity rules of District court procedure to bring about uniformity of methods and reports by receivers handling residential properties.

NRA's Own Labor Union Fights Rumored Personnel Cut of 900

NRA's own labor union, Blue Eagle Lodge, No. 91, of the A. F. of L., protested last night against a rumored reduction of NRA personnel to the extent of 900 employes.

"NRA Workers—Its Time to Fight!" was the heading on the call for the protest meeting sent out by Miss Peggy Stabler, secretary of the lodge.

The announcement read:

"The economy boys are at it again. The word is abroad that 900 NRA employes are to get the ax. We can take it lying down—or we can demand to know 'Why?'

"Forced into a new field and expenses which no one could possibly foresee a year ago, the NRA had overspent its budget. Today the enemies of the NRA on the outside, seeking to cripple and destroy its ability to function, have combined with the economy-criers within to demand a reduction in NRA personnel.

"Twenty-two per cent of NRA employes (those who get $4,000 a year or more) receive 42 per cent of the total pay roll. The 56 per cent, getting under $2,000 a year, receive only 35 per cent of the total pay roll, but as usual the first cuts have been planned from the latter group.

"The fight on the enemies without we must leave to the friends of the NRA. The fight against indiscriminate slashes within is our fight.

"The NRA union will not fight for the retention of deadwood, or for departments and persons that have ceased to be necessary. It will fight any cut in the needed personnel of active units. It will fight the cutting of stenographic, filing, research and other workers in departments which are alive and expanding. It will fight cuts which mean more overtime for already overburdened workers."

Ludwig Says Dictators Make War Inevitable

Paris, May 31 (AP).—Emil Ludwig, exiled German author, believes war is inevitable because "dictators are deluding youth, which seek something more dramatic than democracy. In Les Annales Ludwig writes:

"War is not being encouraged by cannon manufacturers or the chancelleries, but in universities and schools, and in mass demonstrations organized by dictators as a background for their own efforts."

Boat Capsizes, Youth Drowns

Louis Alexander, 17, Good Swimmer, Caught in Potomac's Eddies.

Swirling eddies of the Potomac yesterday claimed the life of Louis Alexander, 17, of 708 North Columbus street, Alexandria, Va., when a bateau in which he was fishing with three companions capsized.

Known as an excellent swimmer, Alexander drowned in less than 6 feet of water, about [illegible] yards north of the Virginia-Carolina chemical plant. With him were his uncle, Daniel Alexander; William Harrison and Edward Lawler.

District harbor police, who recovered the body, and Alexandria authorities were unable to say what upset the bateau. In the craft were two motors, being transported to a wharf.

Daniel Alexander, Harrison and Lawler swam to safety and then missed Louis. They summoned aid, and the harbor patrol, which was grappling for the body of John E. Battenfield, jr., lost off a pleasure cruiser Wednesday, responded. Alexander's body was recovered about an hour later.

When resuscitation efforts failed, the body was taken to the District Morgue.

Alexander is survived by his parents and several brothers and sisters. Funeral arrangements are pending.

Steel Leaders To Be Called By Roosevelt

the United Textile Workers, expressed belief NRA would modify its orders curtailing operations of textile mills 25 per cent. He added the strike would be canceled if the recovery unit yielded.

Another session today will be attended by Johnson, McMahon, Henry King, NRA textile expert, and George Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute.

Sloan declared in New York that the threatened strike constituted an attempt "to overthrow by force" provisions of the cotton code.

"The industry," he complained, "can not make further increases in hourly rates of pay at this time without incurring costs which would make a hardship on consumers, close many mills, create new unemployment in textile communities which have recently shown marked recovery, restrict domestic consumption of raw cotton, destroy any hope of a revival of export business and offer further problems as to meeting competition with imports from Japan and elsewhere over present tariff barriers."

Disputes Hamper Parleys.

Factional disputes in the steel union hampered NRA negotiations. Johnson granted an audience to Mike F. Tighe, amalgamated president, and Edward W. Miller, vice president. The administrator failed to see Earl J. Forbeck, chairman of the union's "rank and file committee."

Tighe told reporters the committee was "unauthorized" to issue a statement Wednesday night in which the President's promise of elections in the mills was termed "just so much bunk."

Forbeck and Tighe argued heatedly in an anteroom of Johnson's office when Forbeck displayed a letter which he proposed to deliver to the White House. Tighe said it was "dynamite" and advised him to "throw it in the waste basket."

The message, guarded from reporters, did not reach the White House.

Walkout Vote Predicted.

The steel strike can not be called until after a convention in Pittsburgh June 10. Tighe predicted the gathering would unquestionably vote for a walkout effective June 16 unless the union's demands for collective bargaining and recognition, were granted.

Forbeck accused Johnson of heading off action of the workers to "obtain our rights." He protested Johnson "never backs up" his statements promising collective bargaining.

Amalgamated officials contended the steel manufacturers have violated section 7a of the National industrial recovery act by refusing to join in collective bargaining negotiations with the union. The organization also urged a 30-hour week in sections of the industry where operations never cease.

Departing for Uniontown, Pa., Forbeck said he would attend a meeting of united mine Leaders in coal fields operated by steel companies, the so-called captive mines. Should the steel strike materialize, he explained, the miners would be asked to walk out in sympathy.

Plans Return to City.

Tighe left for Pittsburgh. He intimated he would return to Washington in a few days.

Miller displayed a conciliatory spirit.

"We have hopes, as all good labor men should have," he commented.

An Associated Press dispatch from Pittsburgh told of the issuance there by the Amalgamated's international office of a statement warning steel workers against "Communism and all such isms."

"The Amalgamated Association," the statement reported, "is an American institution—loyal to the core to its Government and its traditions. We warn our members to shun these vipers who are trying to poison the minds of our membership.

"The very presence of Communism contaminates the atmosphere of pure trade unionism. Keep away from it is not only our advice, but our command."

Tighe Signs Manifesto.

Tighe and Louis Leonard, international secretary-treasurer, were among the signers of the statement.

Communists, the statement charged "have injected themselves into the movement in various ways and through themselves and their emissaries have endeavored to destroy the morale of the membership of our newly instituted lodges."

Officials of the Department of Commerce Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce were concerned over the textile situation. They said manufacturers who used textile products in making other articles had only enough goods on hand to last a month or six weeks.

About a tenth of the textile industry's output, officials said, goes into manufacture of tires, for which a substitute would be difficult to find.

Giant Balloon Ready to Start South Dakota Stratosphere Hop

Army Men Aim at 15-Mile Record; Flight Set Near June 20.

Dawn of the first favorable day after June 20 will see the world's largest free balloon floating upward into the stratosphere from Rapid City, S. Dak., it was announced yesterday by the National Geographic Society.

The great gas bag, with a capacity of 3,000,000 cubic feet, has been completed, according to dispatches from Akron, Ohio, to the society, which, with the Army Air Corps, is sponsoring the ascent.

The flight will be made by Maj. William E. Kepner and Capt. A. W. Stevens. They will take with them more than a ton of instruments, chosen by an advisory committee of scientists, in an airtight metal gondola, for the purpose of bringing back more information about stratospheric conditions.

Despite the fact it contains 2 1-3 acres of cloth, the huge balloon can be packed in a box 11 feet long, 7 feet wide and less than 6 feet deep. It will be sent from Akron to the take-off point by truck.

The balloon is expected to go about 15 miles into the air, much farther than any previous flight. During the 12-hour flight it is thought the balloon will drift 600 to 700 miles to the southeast and come to earth near the junction of Iowa, Illinois and Missouri.

The gondola will be equipped with radio. A broadcast from the balloonists will be picked up by ground stations and rebroadcast over a Nation-wide network.

Both co-pilots are veterans. Kepner won the international balloon race in 1928. Capt. Stevens in 1932 flew to 26,000 feet to photograph the advancing shadow of the moon during a solar eclipse.

They will seek to break the world's altitude record of approximately 12 miles, set unofficially in Russia last September. As the gas bag of the two Army men has nearly 3½ times the capacity of the Russians', Stevens hopes it will break the Russian mark by three miles.

"Delapidated housing, lacking sanitary conveniences, in the alleys and in congested areas, are occupied by thousands of Washingtonians," the commission said in the report, which was transmitted by Riley E. Elgen, utilities commissioner. It was based on several months' investigation and study by James Ring, special assistant.

"While in many instances," the report continued, "the actual outlay for rent is small, in reality it constitutes an exhorbitant return on the actual values of the buildings."

The Second and Fourth Police Precincts were singled out for special mention as the localities of worst housing conditions and congestion.

"Millions," it was said, "are spent by the District annually in the congested areas of Washington in the prevention and detection of crime, treatment of disease, care of juvenile delinquents and enforcement of sanitary and building laws.

"The prevalence of crime, vice and disease in the heart of the city is aggravated by the great numbers of poorly paid workers who can find no better accommodations at reasonable prices.

"This costly and dangerous condition can best be remedied by the destruction and complete elimination of the breeding ground. The land can be put to excellent use. Government employes would welcome the erection in the downtown area of modern, well-built, low-cost apartment houses, rented and managed under such conditions as to make continued residence attractive.

Report Hits Promoters.

"Such disposition, however, can not be accomplished if the buildings are erected under speculative conditions, and the management subordinated to the selfishness of speculative or promotional interests. The taxpayer has a deep interest in remedying these conditions, and perhaps a properly sponsored limited dividend corporation should undertake this task, if the Government does not care to invade the field.

The rehousing of the alley and street shack population is a problem of legitimate concern in this connection. In this case, too, Governmental participation can not but have happy results. The construction of low cost housing for persons evicted from the alleys should be undertaken only in conjunction with a plan for systematic inspection and careful management of the flats or houses to which these people would be moved. By this plan, two important economic groups of the city's population may be served: the low paid Government employes and the poor residents of the alley slums.

It can not be argued successfully that Government workers would fail to insure the financial success of the apartment project.

The operation of the limited dividend housing companies in Washington on a profitable basis for more than 3 years is additional proof that fair rents within the reach of the small wage earner constitute a powerful inducement to continue tenancy and consequent gain to the owners and operators.

"Great need exists for the regulation of the housing business in Washington."

Would Solve Problem

"The problems of the landlord and the tenant cannot be met satisfactorily except by establishment of a proper public office, made self-sustaining by license or registration fees, which would have as its business the inspection and arbitration of landlord and tenant complaints, the licensing or registration of all landlords and tenants, the keeping of complete housing records, and the establishment of minimum standards for housing in the District of Columbia."

Until such legislation is enacted, the report said, the District Commissioners should employ authority given them under the existing license law to achieve the recommended results. The law gives the Commissioners power to require and to revoke licenses for any business, it was said.

"Public authority over construction of homes," it was said, "would effectively prevent the operations of the speculative builder who, after all, is the man behind high rents grossly inflated values in Washton real estate. He is the man inst whom the unfortunate home chaser has no effective means redress.

It can not be too strongly emsized that the subject of rents not be divorced from a comte consideration of housing."

no, that I was going to mend my clothes. He then grabbed the shotgun and when he started toward me I grappled with him."

It was here Mrs. Jackson's story varied as to whether the shots were fired by Leo while she grappled with her husband or after she escaped from her husband and fled into another room.

She said that she and a neighbor, Mrs. Hattie Sabatini, were threatened by Jackson last October.

Joseph Jackson, 12, another son, was at school at the time of the shooting. He is said to have told police that Leo had kept a shotgun in his room several months because he feared his father would try to kill his mother.

Third Son Tells Story.

Francis, 16, a third son, told police he was in the kitchen of the home at the tmie of the shooting, that he heard scuffling in the bedroom and rushed in. As he entered, he is said to have told police, Leo entered from another room with a shotgun in his hands and fired three times at his father while the scuffle was in progress. Francis said his father started toward Leo when the shooting began and continued advancing until he fell.

James, 24, a fourth son, was working on a nearby farm when his father was slain.

Policeman Turner, who, with Sergt. Hepburn, investigated the shooting, said he found the elder Jackson's shotgun leaning against the wall of the room in which the shooting occurred, that it was unloaded and did not appear to have been used.

Neighbors are said to have told the officers that Jackson was jealous of Mrs. Jackson, that he quarreled with her frequently and that they long had expected serious trouble.

Judge Oscar Poore, acting coroner, selected a jury at the scene of the shooting, but has not fixed a date for an inquest.

and madep romises that I would get a job if I gave up, and I finally decide d to do so."

While fellow police kept a large crowd back a safe distance of 1,500 feet, Inspector Al Sturzinger, of Alameda and Policeman J. B. Jackson, of Oakland, slowly approached the automobile, 20 minutes before Bennett's noon deadline, and argued Bennet into surrendering.

He told police how to disconnect the wiring to the high explosives, explaining he had distilled the nitroglycerine himself.

Did Work in Basement.

"I planned to do this thing for a long time," he added, "but I took every precaution so as not to hurt anyone else. I did the work in my basement and I think my wife was suspicious. I have tried hard to get a job and I can't stand to see my family suffering. Many times during the long night I wanted to change my mind, but I could see no other way out of my predicament. I didn't want charity and I know that I am sane."

Police said Bennett had purchased the dynamite during a period of months, giving his name and address to powder companies and explaining he wanted the explosive to blast stumps.

A powder expert said that had the explosion occurred its terrific effect would have been felt for more than a quarter of a mile because it was inside a closed automobile.

Throughout the night and day Bennett, who is between 42 and 46 years of age, had sat bold upright in his rattle-trap automobile, parked on a stretch of marshy land about 100 yards from the ship-lined Estuary between Oakland and Alameda.

Daughter's Plea Refused.

Efforts of police during the night and this morning to talk him out of his plan met with refusals.

"This is the best means of suicide," he told them.

His 14-year-old daughter, Virginia, came to try to prevail upon him to abandon the plan, but police were afraid to permit her to approach her father. When police urged him to consider his invalid wife and three children, he wept.

"I have been planning suicide for three years," police quoted the man as saying. "I considered several means of suicide and some time ago got a gun to shoot myself, but I was arrested for carrying it and placed on probation.

"I was laid off as a mechanic three years ago, and have been sick and in the hospital several times."

About 300 feet from Bennett, a cordon of police watched. With them was Bennett's daughter, Virginia.

Officers Threaten Crowd.

Some 1,200 feet back of the police line stood the crowd. The officers had threatened to turn their shotguns upon anyone who ventured closer than the deadline set by them, believing an edging advance by the throng might nettle the madman or cause him to make the fatful move.

At first authorities did everything possible to keep crowds entirely out of the district but people came to the scene during the day in increasing numbers as the news spread. Officers instructed the watchers to stand on tiptoe and hold their mouths open to lessen the possible effects of concussion.

The wife of the madman, Mrs. Eula Bennett, 38, just out of a hospital after a major operation, was unable to leave her sick bed at home, but she told of her husband's despondency. She described him as a former World War veteran and a former interpreter for Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler, retired Marine Corps officer. Bennett took part in a Mexican campaign, she said.

Funeral Set For Saturday With Interment At Richmond, Va.

dler irreparable," said Dr. Sidney B. Hall, State superintendent of public instruction. He was a true friend to education, especially the public schools."

As soon as word of President Chandler's death reached here, Acting President Hoke announced that the funeral would be held in the college chapel at 2 p. m. Saturday. From the college chapel Dr. Chandler's body will be taken to Richmond.

"Dr. Chandler was the guiding spirit of this institution," Dr. Hoke said. "He made it what it is. Of course, he will be missed."

Dr. Chandler is survived by four sons, Herbert G. and J. A. C. Chandler, jr., both of whom reside here; Lieut. Alvin D. Chandler, U. S. N., stationed at Bremerton, Wash., and Carroll C. Chandler, of Washington, D. C. Three grandsons also survive the educator.

Caroline County Native.

Julian Alvin Carroll Chandler was born in Caroline County, Va., a son of Dr. Joseph Alsop and Emeline Joseph (White) Chandler. As a small boy he determined to follow his father and become a physician. At the age of 18 he was graduated from William and Mary as a bachelor of arts and a year later took his master's degree from the same institution. During his undergraduate and graduate work at William and Mary he became interested in teaching and resolved to abandon medicine.

After taking his master's degree, he was a teacher at the high school at Houston, Va., for a year, and then went to Johns Hopkins to study for his doctorate. In 1896 he received the degree of doctor of philosophy there.

From that year until 1899 he served as acting president of the Richmond Woman's College, and from 1900 to 1904 occupied the chair of history and literature at the same institution.

(Associated Press.)

A tribute to the life work of President J. A. C. Chandler of William and Mary College, who died at Norfolk, Va., was paid yesterday here by Former Gov. John Garland Pollard, of Virginia. Mr. Pollard, who is now chairman of the Veterans Board of Appeals, is a former dean of the school of government at the college.

"It is with great sorrow," Pollard said, "that I learned of the death of my life-long friend. I spent eight happy years in association with him at the college of William and Mary. I had full opportunity to observe at close range the wonderful work which he did.

"No man ever pursued his task with more singleness of purpose, with greater devotion and industry nor with more outstanding success. He excited the admiration and wonder of educators throughout the country and has performed a signal service in making it possible to project into the future the traditions of an institution whose history is so closely related to the founding of the Republic."

Cannons Roar As Fleet Passes By Roosevelt

President Reviews Mighty Armada on Cruiser At New York.

—a lover of the sea and of the Navy—that as the last boat churned past, he ordered signal flags run up, conveying the message "Well done," to the fleet. A few minutes later an additional note went out from his naval aid:

"The President congratulates the commander in chief, the officers and men of the fleet on the excellence of the review and wishes them good luck."

Cabinet Members.

With the President aboard the Indianapolis were all members of the Cabinet but Secretary of Agriculture Wallace—away in the West—and half a hundred other guests as gleeful as children. They left behind Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, as virtually the only high official who couldn't break away from Washington.

It was a colorful and tremendous spectacle from the moment the first confused Cabinet officer was "piped aboard" by the boatswain's mate to the dropping of the last anchor in the North River.

The same shrill piping that is Navy tradition—that startled the Cabinet officers—heralded the President as he came aboard at 9:15 a. m., a half-hour behind schedule. A Marine Band blared forth, officers snapped to attention, and then came forward for a handshake.

Evidencing an exhibition that recalled his former service as Assistant Secretary of the Navy—the President chatted with Admiral William H. Standley, chief of naval operations; ice Admiral Frank H. Brumby, chief of the Scouting Force; Capt. John Smeallie, of the Indianapolis, and later with Admiral Sir Lewis Bayly, retired officer of the British navy.

Fog Causes Delay.

Trailed by her sister ship, the Louisville, bearing Assistant Secretary of the Navy Henry Latrobe Roosevelt and another party, the Indianapolis got only as far as the Narrows before fog forced it to drop anchor for 20 minutes. The busy shipping of New York Harbor, shrouded completely in the early morning mist, set up a bedlam of fog-horn warnings.

Wind cleared this threat to the review for another hour, when again the President's ship was halted. Word flashed from the Pennsylvania, flagship of Admiral D. F. Sellers, commander in chief, that the same low-hanging fog was slowing the fleet up in the march to Ambrose.

Fearful of overrunning his mark before the Indianapolis arrived, Admiral Sellers countermarched his fleet several miles to the south and then turned about for the review. This maneuver occasioned more delay, as the Indianapolis—an hor late herself—lay in wait another hour and a half for the appearance of the fleet.

Morgan's Yacht.

As J. P. Morgan's Black Corsair—reputedly America's largest private boat—and half a hundred smaller craft were marshalled at a safe distance by anxious Coast Guard vessels, guests aboard the Indianapolis lunched and explored the spotless warship in frolicking humor.

Postmaster General Farley romped with his daughter, Betty Ann, and son, Jimmie, and passed banter with New York's chunky Mayor Fiorella S. LaGuardia. Ambassador Josephus Daniels strolled about, remembering his wintry review of the Navy after the war, when his assistant was the President. Vincent Astor, accompanied by Mrs. Astor, bounded about the decks with binoculars.

As the twin turrets of the Pennsylvania emerged on the murky horizon and the fleet's flagship plowed past 500 yards distant, President Roosevelt arose to receive its salute. Bluejackets manning the rails of both vessels straightened to attention. Strains of the "Star-Spangled Banner" flowed over the water. The band aboard the Indianapolis answered.

With Secretary of the Navy Swanson at his right and Ambassador Daniels, as an honor guest, at his left, the President remained standing, leaning against the flag-draped rail of the forward gun platform. As ship after ship trailed past in perfect formation, the President seemed to inspect and appraise each vessel separately, relaxing for a smile occasionally.

newed code. It is just as large a threat of industrial strife in that field as there was before."

Observers recalled that President Roosevelt a fortnight ago indicated he expected the Darrow board to go out of existence yesterday. Board members, however, were known to be planning to submit a second report on NRA next week.

Claims Labor Favorable.

Johnson said labor also wanted to retain rights accorded by NIRA.

"Who, then, complains," he inquired. "Here and there some employer who wants to take the labor of other men for less than enough to provide them a living. But, most emphatically and constantly, politicians who are so callous to human rights and aspirations that, for the sake of their own possible selfish advantage in the forthcoming elections, they are willing to deceive the public about the greatest social advance in modern times."

The recovery chief said Mills recently charged NRA with attempting to regiment American industry and replied no NRA code existed that was not proposed by the industry it governed.

"American industry," he went on, "may be seeking to regiment itself or to reorganize itself, or to reconstruct itself, but it certainly does not lie in his mouth to criticize it.

"He was the mouthpiece of a crew that didnt reorganize or reconstruct or regiment American industry—all they did to it was to ruin it.

Would Apply Rule of Sea.

"They deserve credit for supreme accomplishment. No such wreckage was ever accomplished since Rome leveled the walls of Carthage and strewed the wreck with salt—and only four short years ago, on their theory of do nothing about it, 14,00,000 people went out of employment, tens of thousands of small enterprises dried up, and the worst season that ever visited these shores came upo nus."

Johnson voiced a wish that the nautical rule, under which a captain whose ship sinks, is done for, were in effect in politics.

"It it were, such Nation-wreckers would not be heard to advise our people on any subject under the sun," he taunted.

Flays Darrow Report.

"The Ogden Mills school of thought," he charged, "prophesied that grass would grow in the streets if Roosevelt were elected. Did you ever hear them advocate anything that did not slant towards the aggrandizement of the strong and the suppression of the weak? You never did and you never will."

Of the Darrow report he stormed:

"In the first 48 hours after the Darrow report we received 4,000 little fellow letters of violent protest against that report.

"Anyone with only an elementary knowledge of what is going on around him is aware that the past ten years has been a decade of economic slaughter of the little fellow innocents."

Johnson said 95 per cent of NRA complaints resulted from payment of indecent wages by some employers.

School Heads Hail Items in Budget

term when the new buildings will still be under construction.

Despite these drawbacks, Dr. Ballou declared that as a whole the school appropriations are a "matter of real gratification" to himself and his fellow officials. All the facilities it provides, he said, are urgently needed. He pointed out that school enrollment is increasing here at the rate of approximately 3,000 a year.

One of the more important items which was stricken from the bill by the House and later approved by Senate and House conferees was $550,000 to complete and equip the Woodrow Wilson High School.

This appropriation will make it possible for the structure to be completed in September of 1935. This school is particularly needed to take the terrific strain from Western High School. It also will relieve to a lesser degree the load upon Central and McKinley Highs.

In a like manner the Anacostia Junior High School will relieve overcrowding pressure at Eastern High School and in the higher grades in the elementary schools in the southeast, officials stated. The item of $180,000 for this building was replaced in the bill by the Senate and approved by conferees.

The $5,500 replaced in the bill by the Senate will make it possible for the District Commissioners to let the contract for the Logan School, this amount being necessary to make up the difference between the amount previously appropriated and the amount of the lowest bid for building the structure.

Items in the budget as approved by the Budgset Bureau but stricken out by the House and not restored by the conferees were the funds for the Armstrong High School repair shop and gymnasium and the Bunker High School addition. The conferees added $15,000 to the item for school lighting and heating.

Other important construction made possible by the bill will improve facilities for at least 3,000 more students. These are the Phelps School addition, $55,000; and the Deal Junior High School addition, $166,000.

The bill also provides $105,000 for the purchase of a site for the Jefferson Junior High School and $55,000 for additional land for the Phelps School, conditional on prior purchase of the Jefferson site.

Chicago-Jacksonville Night Air Mail Begins

Night air mail service over the Chicago-Jacksonville airways will be inaugurated today by Eastern Air Lines. Air express will also be carried according to a temporary contract recently granted while plans for adding passenger air service are being studied.

In addition to Chicago and Jacksonville, the new route will also serve Indianapolis, Louisville, Nashville, Chattanooga, Atlanta and Macon. It will connect with the New York-Miami run at Jacksonville; to the southwest and west at Atlanta and Nashville; with the north, northwest and northeast at Chicago.

New Aircraft Carrier Will Be Ready Monday

Newport News, Va., May 31 (AP). The U. S. S. Ranger, new $21,000,000 aircraft carrier, will be formally delivered to the Navy by the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. about 3 p. m. Monday, according to present plans.

A skeleton crew of shipyard men will take the vessel to the Hampton Roads naval operating base, where Capt. Arthur L. Bristol and his Ranger personnel will be placed in charge.

Adjournment June 9 Looms As Hopeless

Roosevelt New Deal Plans May Be Dropped to End Session on Time.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Unless President Roosevelt is agreeable to having dumped overboard several major "new deal" pieces of legislation, it became obvious yesterday that Congress can not adjourn sine die by June 9, the date scheduled in Administration quarters.

This became apparent when the Senate entered the third week of debate on the reciprocal tariff bargaining bill and despite a limitation on debate spent yesterday exclusively talking about the measure and the proposal to exempt farm products from its terms.

Democratic leaders yesterday tightened their belts and undertook to bring pressure to dispose of the tariff bill before the week ends, but whether they will be successful is not clear because apparently a small group of Republicans are equally determined to talk about the bill at every opportunity.

Democrats to Take Floor.

For instance, Senator Jesse H. Metcalf (Republican), of Rhode Island, has made about four prepared speeches on the tariff measure and Senator Henry Hatfield (Republican), of West Virginia, even more. Most of the speaking until Wednesday has been done by Republicans and it has been only during the last two days that the Democrats have come to the front.

The hope exists among Democratic leaders that as soon as the Johnson amendment exempting farm products from the provisions of the bill is disposed of that rapid progress will be made. It was hoped this vote would be taken yesterday but the desire of Senators to talk prevented it and it may not be taken until late today.

In an effort to expedite matters the Senate will meet at 10:30 a. m. today. But the advantage of this early start may be lost by prolonged debate on the stock market control bill conference report, which will be called up shortly after the body convenes.

Plan Saturday Session.

Unless the tariff bill is adopted today, the Democratic leaders plan a Saturday session which usually is distasteful to the membership. But if the Republicans continue their determination to talk it appears that even a Saturday session will not bring about a final vote.

There is reason to believe that some of the Republican speeches are designed deliberately to kill time, not in any hope of blocking the tariff bill, but to use up time that otherwise might be devoted to consideration of legislation objectionable to them, such as the Wagner labor disputes bill.

In all quarters, from the White House down, the word has gone out that the Wagner bill must be passed before Congress adjourns. Nevertheless there is some doubt that the bill will be acted on in the Senate. At all events, it will require several days of debate to pass it.

The silver bill passed yesterday by the House, is expected to inspire prolonged debate in the Senate. The Administration's housing bill has not yet been reported from committee and there is widespread grumbling about its exact provisions and effect. It is doubtful whether it can be pushed through without some debate.

Still another Administration measure is the bill amending the AAA act in order to give the Secretary of Agriculture authority to enforce that program. This measure is on the Senate calendar and is due to meet strong opposition since it expands the licensing authority under the AAA. It has not been introduced in the House and is regarded as doomed unless Congress stays here several weeks.

Last on the "must" go legislative program is the deficiency appropriation bill providing additional funds for public works and relief activities. Senator Robert M. LaFollette (Republican), Wisconsin, and some of his progressive colleagues oppose tapering down the public works program as is proposed under the appropriation in this bill and they will fight for a more liberal allotment of money for this purpose.

Rejects Attempt to Order Mandatory Purchase To 25% Ratio.

chased against corresponding sales of gold.

Stated Policy Given.

Following, in brief, are some of the provisions of the bill which yesterday passed the House:

The stated policy of the United States would be to establish a monetary reserve of 75 per cent gold, 25 per cent silver.

The Treasury would be "authorized and directed" to buy silver at home and abroad "at such times and upon such terms and conditions" as the President thinks necessary, until the price of silver reaches $1.29 an ounce, or the 25 per cent proportion is reached.

If the 25 per cent silver reserve is exceeded, or the price of silver reaches $1.29, the Treasury may sell silver.

The Treasury would be authorized and directed to issue silver certificates against all of the white metal acquired, valuing silver at $1.29.

The President would be empowered to take over all domestic silver stocks in the same manner gold was "nationalized," but paying no more than 50 cents an ounce for silver in this country as of May 1, 1934.

To discourage silver speculation, the bill provides a 50 per cent tax on silver "profits" through transfers of the white metal. Secretary of the Treasury estimated the tax would net the Government $125,000,000 in revenue.

Britain Sends Debt Proposal

State Department Denies Receipt of Message; Offer Not Revealed.

London, May 31 (AP).—The British war debt proposal, based on the idea of future bilateral discussions between London and Washington, was authoritatively stated today to have been transmitted to the American capital.

It was categorically denied in the highest possible quarters that Great Britain had approached either France or Italy in the matter, and it was pointed out this country has always opposed the idea of a general conference.

In Rome, the foreign office officially denied Italy had been consulted by Great Britain on the subject or expected to be, and in France, officials made similar statements.

Conference Favored.

The note is understood to propose that a conference consider the debts question, either with or without a token payment, but with the understanding the stigma of default will not apply if a payment is made.

If the United States is unwilling to enter into discussions without applying the Johnson act shutting off American credit to defaulters, the position with regard to a token payment on the $75,000,000 installment due June 15 was not made clear.

Questioners in the House of Commons were promised again today the government will make a statement shortly.

Note Fails to Arrive at State Department

No British debt proposal reached the State Department yesterday. Officials permitted themselves the suggestion that Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador, is keeping the heralded communication in his own strong box pending the return of President Roosevelt next Monday, provided, of course, that the note has actually arrived as stated authoritatively in London. Sir Ronald would not say.

Pending an opportunity to study the details of the note or offer a feeler or whatever Britain plans to send over, officials declined to enter into hypothetical discussions.

23 Persons Hurt In Political Rows

Bordeaux, France, Seen of Serious Clash.

Paris, May 31 (AP).—Twenty-three persons were injured today in political fights in France, which broke out despite the "truce" under the Doumergue government.

Twenty were hurt, six of them seriously, in a free-for-all fight when Communists and Socialists tried to break up a neo-Socialist meeting in a Bordeaux motion picture theater.

Textile Head Hopeful Over Strike Situation

Danville, Va., May 31 (AP).—The opinion that the labor situation in the textile industry is not likely to precipitate a crisis at present was expressed here last night by Robert R. West, president of the Riverside and Dan River Mills. Mr. West is a member of the National Textile Code Authority.

Whether the general strike ordered by officials of the textile workers at Washington will extend to Danville, where are located the largest plants in the South, could not be definitely said. While labor leaders here have been carrying on a quiet program of organization, no preparations for a strike have been made.

Carroll School Head Defends Consolidation

Taxpayers Saved Money, He Says in Replying to Critics.

Westminster, Md., May 31 (Spl.). Following his reply to an attack on the administration of Carroll schools, M. S. H. Unger, superintendent of county schools, yesterday defended consolidation in a statement directed at "school critics."

The statement:

"There is a certain agitation going on in Carroll County, dealing with education, that would be wholesome if those discussing these things had the true facts and then handled them truthfully. I wish to present some of these facts, basing all computations offered upon the State and county records which have been audited and accounted for.

Average Cost $1,344.

"It is said that consolidation is a big expense. Now let us see if this is true, or if it is not good business from a purely financial standpoint to consolidate. The board of education since 1917 has closed exactly 100 rural school positions. According to the annual State school report the average cost per pupil in a rural school is $52.30. The average number of pupils in a rural school is 25.7. Multiply these two factors and you have the average cost of operating a one-teacher school, $1,344.11.

"Therefore, it would cost this year to maintain 100 rural schools in Carroll County $134,411. Now let us look at the other side of the picture. The board of education appointed 40 additional teachers to meet the additional load brought about by consolidation in the center schools at an average salary of $974.07, amounting to a total of $38,962.80.

Saving Taxpayers Cited.

"For every rural school closed the State appropriates a part of the expense of transportation. The amount of State money appropriated for transportation this year is $43,768. The total cost of transportation, including the hauling of 812 high school children, amounts to $60,586.96. Subtract from this amount $43,768 and you have $16,818.96, or the amount it costs the county. Now let us summarize these figures: To operate 100 rural schools costs $134,411. To operate consolidation—additional teachers, cost of transportation, $55,781.76. The amount saved to the taxpayers of Carroll County annually by consolidation and transportation, $78,630.24.

"It is also charged that high high-school children should pay their own transportation—and this is advocated by the farmers. Why does the farmer want to deprive himself of the very thing that benefits him most? The purpose of transportation is to equalize opportunity. Town children do not have and do not need transportation, but in order that the rural child may get to high school he is offered transportation, which puts him on an equality with the town child.

Two Ways of Paying.

"Suppose we take an example—a farmer pays $50 a year in taxes, and suppose $1 of this goes to transportation, and he has one child who goes to high school free on the school bus. Now let us assume that the child does not go free but pays the bus driver 10 cents a day, or $2 a month, or $18 a year. Which is the most advantageous to the farmer?"

Concluding his statement, the superintendent asserted that savings can be shown in every consolidation project that has been completely effective, and cited as examples consolidated schools at Winfield and Union Bridge, where, he stated, annual savings of $4,056.13 and $4,502.15 have been effected under the present system.

One-Day Strike At Quarry Ends

Foreman Suspended For Investigation.

Martinsburg, W. Va., May 31 (Spl.).—Workers at the Standard Lime & Stone Co. plant here ended a one-day strike today.

A statement from the management said the mine foreman, of whom the workers had complained, the sole basis for the walkout yesterday, had been taken from his post pending investigation. A picketing line, which had been thrown out Wednesday morning, was withdrawn later. The name of the foreman was not made public.

State police went to the plant yesterday following a report that one worker had driven his automobile through a line of pickets, slightly injuring one man. The pickets at first tried to halt the troopers but were persuaded to open a lane. No violence was reported.

The defense countered with the assertion that Mrs. Hardy was awarded a divorce several months ago on the ground of desertion.

Hardy was fined $10 for contempt of court during the hearing after refusing to obey Judge Turner Clement's order to answer questions directly. The court threatened to jail him.

Historic Gettysburg Beckons Motorist on Summer Sunday

Interesting Old Maryland Towns to Be Seen Along Route.

"Summer is coming in," bringing with it that pleasantest of all diseases, known to science as "itching tires." Fortunately there is a cure for it. Get in the family car (what matter if it is of ancient vintage) and go somewhere and see something with the family.

Residents of Washington are lucky in that they do not have to go far to change their environment completely. Almost within a stone's throw there are a host of places, interesting historically or naturally, where one can go for a rest and for a change, even if only for a day.

But of all the places within a convenient radius of Washington, none is more interesting historically nor more beautiful in its own right, particularly at this time of year, than is Gettysburg. Great and bloody events transpired there. Since the historic battlefield is so near at hand it becomes almost a civic duty, and certainly a patriotic one, to visit it. And since the mountain will not come to Mohamet, verily, Mohamet and his family must perforce go out to the mountain.

Let's take it for granted that Mr. Mohamet and family will rise on Sunday early for once, and that breakfast will be finished by 9 a. m. and everybody eager to go. "Hortense," the family struggle-buggy, simply can't wait. But finally, with everybody in, including Towser, who will greatly enjoy frolicking over the old battlefield, they're off!

Highway Guaranteed.

The first problem is to find Highway 240, and that really is no problem because you merely go out Massachusetts avenue to Wisconsin avenue, make a right-hand turn, and you are on the way. Highway 240 goes all the way to Frederick. This route has been checked by the Keystone Automobile Association.

The first sizable town we come to is Rockville. When we get there we at least know that we're on the right road. But "Excelsior" is our motto, ever upward, and it's not a bad motto because we are getting into the foothills of the Alleghenys, and much of the way is "upward." It's a beautiful country, though, and cool. The trees and vegetation still retain the vivid spring green they are to lose in such a short time.

Forty-four more miles and we are in Frederick. Frederick is such an interesting old town that it demands a stop. It will even be permitted for those travelers who are pressed for time to turn back toward Washington from here, only, of course, after seeing the sights. Here is the home of Barbara Frietchie, of Civil War fame, and chronicled in poetry by John Greenleaf Whittier. Old Barbara, "bowed with her four-score years and ten," by her intense patriotism and her impassioned plea, prevented the Stars and Stripes from being shot down by the Confederates, so the story relates.

Gettysburg Not Far.

Another spot in Frederick is the old home of Chief Justice Roger Broke Taney. In the rear of this house are the old slave quarters, and the entire residence is remarkably well preserved.

But we hardier souls mustn't let Frederick stop us. Gettysburg is only 30 miles away. The highway changes in Frederick from Highway 240 to Highway 15.

Thirteen miles north of Frederick, on the same road, is the old Catoctin furnace, which supplied shot both for the Revolutionary War and the Civil War. Here, too, were made the plates for armoring the warships that proved so deadly to the South during the late days of the War between the States. The old furnace really deserves a visit, and should have one if the time can be spared.

As the travelers approach their destination the country becomes more and more rugged, and the scenery more picturesque. It won't be long now.

"Four-score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new Nation . . ." So began the most famous of President Lincoln's addresses, delivered November 19, 1863, at the dedication of the Soldiers National Cemetery on the Battlefield of Gettysburg. Not until the war itself had ended, and the great leader had fallen, did the Nation realize that this speech had given to Gettysburg another claim to immortality.

Scene of Decisive Battle.

Gettysburg was the scene of the decisive battle of the Civil War, fought on July 1, 2 and 3, 1863, and the city was the most northerly point reached by the Confederate Army. The Union Army of 84,000 troops, under Gen. Meade's command, was opposed by the Confederate Army, 75,000 strong, under Gen. Robert E. Lee. The losses of the two opposing forces were more than 20,000 each.

Gettysburg remains much as it was during the battle, though time, of course, has healed most of the scars. The field embraces an area of 25 miles, and now is covered with a network of beautiful drives.

Among the places that one should see are: The Wheatfield, scene of a vicious encounter costing hundreds of lives; the Little Round Top, up and down the rocky slopes of which the infantry forces struggled; Peach Orchard, with its sanguinary clashes, and Bloody Angle, the very name of which is descriptive enough of what happened. These spots remain today much as they were on that warm July afternoon when they witnessed the most bitter engagement ever fought on American soil, and the most terrible battle in the world's history previous to the World War.

New Route Home.

The town competes with the battlefield in interest. Particularly noteworthy is Gettysburg College, with its beautiful campus and historic buildings, some of which were used as hospitals during the battle.

By this time it will be getting along past 3 p. m., and it's time to think of Washington again if the travelers wish to get back before dark. The road chosen for the return is almost as interesting as the one taken going up, and is, in fact, a few miles shorter. Take Highway 140 to Westminster; from there State Highway 32 to the junction of Highway 32 with National Highway 40. The little town there is called West Friendship. Make a right turn on to Highway 40, and follow it 4 miles to Cooksville and the junction with Highway 97. Highway 97 leads via Silver Spring all the way into Washington and home.

Thumb-nail sketch of one-day trip to Gettysburg:
Distance, round trip, 152 miles.
Going, via Frederick, Md., 77 miles.
Returning, via Westminster, 75 miles.
Actual driving time en route, averaging 30 miles per hour, a little more than five hours.
Condition of roads: via Frederick—excellent; via Westminster—good.

Graduates Urged To Keep Integrity

King College Class Told It Is Key to Success.

Bristol, Va., May 31 (Spl.).—Integrity and courage were held up to the largest graduating class in the history of King College as requisites to success. W. L. Frierson, Chattanooga attorney, was the speaker.

The finals brought to a close the King College commencement exercises which began last Friday night and rang down the curtain on the 1933-34 session. Health Campaign In Virginia Slated

Pre-School Children Are to Be Examined.

Culpeper, Va., May 31 (Spl.).—A health campaign for pre-school children is being launched in Culpeper County under direction of the Community League and principals of the public schools.

The purpose of this movement is to urge parents to use the vacation period to have health defects corrected. The main objective is to make every school child a five-pointer, in regard to correct vision, hearing, throat, teeth and weight.

Arrangements are being completed for clinics at nominal fees, the league to furnish free treatment where the children are unable to pay.

Beginning Monday, and continuing for four days, a free chest clinic will be conducted at the court house by Dr. Savage of the State health department, cooperating with the Culpeper County Anti-tuberculosis Association.

Meadows Mob Gunman Flees Police Dragnet

Jack Kendrick, Sought for Killings, Robberies; Seen Heading South.

The criss-cross trail of the notorious Meadows mob wound south yesterday, toward Williamsburg, Va.

Slipping through a police dragnet, Jack Kendrick, known member of the gang wanted in the District and several States for three murders, a $60,000 bank robbery, numerous holdups and a $30,000 cigarette hijacking near Weldon, N. C., left Richmond headed toward Williamsburg, to the southeast, according to information received here.

Kendrick, said to be one of the gunmen associated with William B. Phillips, ganster slain in a duel with Policeman John A. Caton here early last April, and "Big George" Kauffman, found shot to death in a fashionable Pittsburgh suburb last week, was travelling with a woman.

She was described as being "pretty and about 28 years old," with auburn hair, and a "Southern drawl." She is a native of King's Mountain, N. C., and police believe the couple headed for that State.

Drives Blue Coupe

Kendrick, when last seen, was driving a blue club coupe with a Virginia license. Detective Capt. Alexander S. Wright, of Richmond, sent a warning to North Carolina police to be on the lookout.

Headquarters for Kendrick recently have been in and around Richmond, where he is said to have committed several robberies "on his own." He is known as an associate of the men who shot Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Fontaine in Upper Darby, Pa., last month. Mrs. Fontaine, sweetheart of Phillips, the slain tattooed gunman, was shot in a murder attempt because she "knew too much," Department of Justice agents and police learned after the shooting.

The "finger" reached for her again as she lay recuperating in Delaware County Hospital in Upper Darby, Pa., and she was moved here.

One by one the Meadows mob is being traced down. Two already are dead—Phillips, by Policeman Caton's gun and Kauffman by gangsters who sought to seal his lips.

Kendrick's wife has been identified by Philadelphia police as the woman seen coming from the Upper Darby house in which Mrs. Fontaine was left by her assailants.

Gasoline Seller's Trial Tests NRA Petroleum Code

Baltimore, May 31 (Spl.).—Constitutionality of the NRA petroleum code is being tested here at the trial of Norman L. Mills, who operates filling stations at Hagerstown, Frederick and Chambersburg, Pa., which opened today.

Ave Atque Vale.

Twenty warriors of 70 years ago, in a line of some 20,000 soldiers of the present day, walked slowly through a few blocks of New York's streets on Memorial Day. And 50,000 spectators were moved, first to silence, and then to rousing cheers.

Memorial Day, originally, was the day of memory for the Grand Army of the Republic. For four years detachments of that Army marched, thousands strong, through this and many other cities, while lusty bands sounded the tocsin for their steady tread. For another 70 years they have continued to march, closing in on the gaps which grew wider each May 30.

Now those who remain are few, and those few are feeble. But their spirit is forever strong. It is human nature to thrill with pride at these ancients of one of the world's most epic struggles. It is human nature to be stirred to tears of pathos at the sight of those bowed shoulders and withered limbs, those old heads filled with vague recollections of the battles of another age.

Just a few years now and none will be left to march. There will be no more bugles to quicken shuffling feet; no faded uniforms of blue or gray. The legions of both sides will have passed forever beyond the reach of either tears or plaudits.

And so, before it is too late, we salute them and add to all that has been said about the dwindling ranks our own feeble greeting to those who, for 70 years, have annually reminded us of that terrible, fratricidal strife which we like to believe has welded the Nation into lasting unity.

At Gettysburg.

The theme of national unity was foreordained for the President's Memorial Day address at Gettysburg. Both the setting and the obvious disunities in our national life today—between capital and labor, agriculture and industry, town and country—served to emphasize the pertinence and the importance of the topic.

It could be wished, however, that Mr. Roosevelt had not laid so much stress upon the "selfishness of sectionalism," and by implication on the desirability of centralization, in his remarks. The continental extent, the temperament and traditions, the varied interests, the political basis of the United States—all counsel the greatest practicable degree of local autonomy, the least possible centralized dictation, as the ideal form of government for our people. Sectionalism, on that interpretation, should be stoutly preserved as the basis rather than the enemy of national unity.

"A new birth of freedom" is what Lincoln urged in the unrivaled prototype of all Gettysburg addresses. Encroachment on local and individual liberties, on the plea of eliminating sectionalism, may well be called encroachment on that freedom which Lincoln had in mind.

Drought Vs. Planned Economy.

Drought conditions extending over 27 States are beginning to cause serious apprehension among officials as well as farmers. Secretary Wallace has cut short a speaking tour in the West to survey the area of withering crops. Officials at Washington are trying to devise ways and means of saving stock on farms where feed crops have been burned and to extend relief to families in distress. Petitions for abandonment of crop-reduction plans are becoming more numerous, and in some instances restrictions are being lifted.

It is impossible, of course, to estimate the extent to which crops will be damaged. Much will depend upon the amount of rainfall during the next few weeks. But the report of the Weather Bureau that the most extensive dry period in history has developed even before the official beginning of summer has an ominous portent. Continuation of drought during the next two months would leave millions of people in the great agricultural belt of America in a critical situation.

The drought of 1930 intensified the depression which had begun the previous autumn. Recurring dry weather in several parts of the country since that time has extended hard times, at least for the farmers whose crops have been damaged. To some extent the pressure of surplus crops has been relieved by drought, but that does not mitigate the hardships of its victims. High prices are a severe handicap to the farmer who has nothing to sell, but who must buy foodstuffs.

Certainly this intense dry period illustrates the difficulties of planning the Nation's crops at Washington. Uncertainties of weather may nullify every program that is outlined on charts. Last year an extremely favorable season brought forth a large cotton crop in spite of the Government's campaign of destruction. No one can foretell what part of this year's reduced acreage of wheat, corn, &c., will be harvested. Nature is often cynical. That fact will be once more poignantly illustrated if the efforts of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, combined with a devastating drought, should result in a serious shortage of some crops.

Drifting Towards Disaster.

Even from the outside it is obvious that a sharp cleavage of opinion over tactics divides steel industry employes on the strike issue. The so-called "rank and file" committee are counseling direct action, ostensibly to force union recognition, while officers of the union are obviously reluctant to sponsor a step of such national gravity. So deep is the cleavage that the responsible leaders have found it advisable publicly to repudiate statements issued by the more radical committee.

Short-sighted employers may be inclined to regard this division in labor ranks as operating in their advantage, as making easier the resistance to the growth of trade-unionism which has been so pronounced in this basic industry. Such an attitude, of course, would be disastrous. It would be playing into the hands of labor extremists and strengthening the position of those who maintain that the only way to settle the unionization issue in the steel industry is by a knock-down, drag-out fight. While it is quite probable that management would win such a struggle, it would inevitably pile up a heritage of bitterness and class-hatred far outweighing any temporary gains at the expense of organized labor.

Those employers in the steel industry who are contributing to labor unrest by opposing the spirit, if not the letter, of Section 7a of the Recovery Act should stop, while there is time, to consider the implications of their policy. Whether or not the section as phrased is eventually held Constitutional is not the fundamental point. General opinion now undoubtedly favors the right of trade-unionism peaceably to extend its membership, and its potential power of constructive organization, among the employes of every industry. If that accepted trend is actively opposed, in ways which public common sense regards as unfair, the inevitable results will be encouragement both to extremist action within the plants and to such theoretically unsound legislation as the Wagner bill.

Union leaders have made a constructive suggestion in proposing that there should be a round-table conference between the employers and themselves, under Presidential auspices, to determine the interpretation of Section 7a as applied to the steel industry, and as grafted onto the steel code. It is a suggestion which can be opposed only by those, of either side, who prefer bitter industrial warfare to constructive settlement. And public opinion, deeply concerned in this matter, would like to know quite clearly in advance, just where the responsibility for the threatened disruption rests.

Short-Sighted.

By a vote of 536 to 466 the union carpenters who have been on strike since May 1 have rejected a compromise agreement which would have fixed their hourly rate of pay at $1.25 for an eight-hour day. The union insists upon an hourly rate of $1.37½ with a 6-hour day and a 30-hour week. As a result, the tieup on the construction of Federal buildings continues, and work on the Calvert Street Bridge has had to be suspended pending return of the carpenters for a few days. Thus hundreds of workers in allied and dependent trades and occupations are being deprived of their regular wages by the selfish action of a group who are in a strategic position to make unreasonable demands.

This is the kind of ruthless and short-sighted procedure that tends to discredit organized labor in the eyes of some employers. The spread of collective bargaining is fought and employer resistance to the closed shop is stiffened whenever cases of such overreaching come to light. The direct losses due to strikes through deprivation of wages and suspension of work on important projects are often great, but the indirect damage is sometimes even more serious. If well-organized labor groups refuse to acknowledge a responsibility to their fellow workers, and to the community, how can they expect to prove that the public interest requires compulsory extension of the principles of collective bargaining?

A Confused Outcome.

Reports from Berlin indicate that the conference between Germany's long-term foreign creditors and representatives of the Reichsbank has broken up in confusion and discord, with a six months' moratorium on transfers in prospect. The delegates are dissatisfied with the tentative agreements reached, but admit that there is no feasible alternative plan. The major difficulty, of course, is that Germany's gold and foreign exchange reserves are close to the vanishing point. Consequently, it was predicted some time before the conference assembled that a complete suspension of transfers on long-term debts would be decreed. The Dawes and Young Plan bonds are not included in this moratorium, but their ultimate fate is said to be uncertain.

Arrangements have been made for issuance of funding bonds representing unpaid interest on the debt and there is also an alternative plan for permitting holders of unpaid interest coupons to cash them at 40 per cent of face value six months hence. However, fulfillment is contingent upon acquisition by the Reichsbank of the necessary foreign exchange to meet cash payments. All these promises are necessarily tentative.

Another serious obstacle to a settlement lies in the insistence of the Swiss and Dutch creditor groups upon preferential treatment. Although Americans are by far the most heavily interested in Germany's long-term debt, their representatives are handicapped in negotiating for similar concessions, because the United States has a heavily favorable trade balance with Germany, whereas Holland and Switzerland buy much more from Germany than they sell to her. Consequently they are able to insist upon full debt service by threatening to withdraw their trade unless special arrangements are made.

If all creditors are treated alike, suspension of payments due to inability to obtain the necessary foreign exchange has to be accepted as a hard necessity. It is futile to quarrel or complain that Germany might have been able to pay more if she had followed different policies and conserved her exchange resources, instead of using them to buy back her own obligations at a heavy discount. That is water over the dam and there is nothing that can be done about it.

Creditors are, however, justified in protesting when special concessions are made to some creditors at the expense of others. This kind of treatment not only works immediate injury to certain groups but it creates a distrust of the debtor that augurs ill for the future resumption of normal financial intercourse. Moreover, it tends to establish a direct exchange of goods between two countries and to link such trading to financial transactions. Foreign trade should be viewed, on the contrary, as a many-sided interchange of goods and services which does not narrowly parallel the movements of capital between countries.

An Unfair Compromise.

A compromise between the widely divergent viewpoints of the House and Senate on the District budget was, of course, essential. No one expected all of the changes made by the Senate in the annual supply bill to be accepted by the House conferees, although the Senate bill was far more satisfactory. But it does seem that the conferees of the upper chamber should have insisted on correcting the most glaring absurdities of the measure passed by the House.

Political prejudices, personal spite and apathy on the part of a great majority of Congressmen were combined in the recent House vote to reduce the appropriation for the Public Utilities Commission from $86,823 to $50,000. After full consideration of the handicaps that would be placed upon this body by such a cut the Senate Appropriations Committee restored the original estimate recommended by the Budget Bureau and its action was approved by the Senate. But the conferees have now surrendered to the District baiters in the House on this item, without even insisting on a compromise. Unless the Senate rejects the conference report, the very important work of the commission will be seriously crippled.

A similar unreasoning attitude was manifested by the House conferees with regard to the Federal contribution to the District budget. That fund was reduced by over a million dollars, in spite of the fact that the conferees agreed to an increase of about $2,500,000 in the total appropriations for 1935. The Federal Government stands in the relation of a taxpayer to the District. It contributes to local revenue for service rendered and for essential development of this city as the Nation's Capital. Where is the logic or fairness of chiseling the Federal contribution while the cost of maintaining the District is increasing? Even if we should assume that the District ought to repay 70 per cent of an outright gift made by the Public Works Administration for sewer construction, it remains true that the conferees have dodged the responsibility of Congress to pay a proportionate share of the Capital City's expense account.

It is encouraging to note the more favorable provisions made for Washington's schools and other civic institutions. But these gains are, to a large extent, overshadowed by the reactionary attitude of the conferees with regard to the Federal contribution and the Public Utilities Commission.

Part Payment Or Default.

According to latest reports, Great Britain is ready to offer another token payment on war debt account, if it will enable the Government to escape being stigmatized as a defaulter under the terms of the Johnson act. It is sincerely to be hoped that the President can devise some ingenious formula that will make it possible to accept this token "on account." If such overtures are rejected on the ground that the Johnson act makes it impossible to differentiate between complete and partial defaults, we shall find ourselves seriously handicapped in subsequent debt negotiations. The debtors will be resentful, and far less inclined to make concessions, in view of what will seem to them a totally unreasonable attitude on our part.

It is too late to indulge in regrets over the unwise efforts of Congress to employ coercion to secure war debt payments. However, it is still possible to render the Johnson act relatively innocuous in practice, if the Administration is able to avoid reference to the official ban, and receive any payments that may be tendered. The chances of an ultimate settlement of the debt question would seem much brighter, however, if Congress had shown an adequate appreciation of the economic valadity of arguments in favor of debt revision.

Instead of insisting upon payment in full, in face of a certainty that it is demanding the impossible, Congress ought to ask whether this country really wants to be paid by allowing greatly increased amounts of goods to be sold in the American market by debtor countries. It has been shown time and time again that in final analysis the war debt payments can only be met by shipments of goods. Yet we impose tariff barriers to shut out goods and insist upon treating the debtors as if they were moral delinquents who must be disciplined into recognizing the sanctity of contracts. So long as we maintain this unrealistic attitude any constructive settlement will remain impossible.

Obligation of Contracts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Constitution says, plainly, that no State shall pass a law "impairing the obligation of contracts."

The language used is unambiguous and self-interpreting. Any State law that impairs the obligation of any contract, much or little, is inhibited.

More power to the four justices of the Supreme Court who dissented in the Minnesota mortgage case and who have so sturdily defended their position in that case in their concurring opinion in the Arkansas insurance case declaring the Arkansas statute unconstitutional, just handed down.

I predict that when public opinion is further heard from on this subject there will be less kowtowing to the New Deal by chiselers of the Constitution.

A Task for Mr. Somers.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Hon. Andrew Somers, chairman of the House Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures, is quoted in The Post of May 18 as saying that he contemplated resigning his chairmanship because there isn't anything for his committee to do.

I would like to give to Mr. Somers and his committee a little lesson from an arithmetic intended for schoolboys.

"One gallon contains 231 cubic inches. One bushel contains 2,150.42 cubic inches or 1¼ cubic feet, nearly. One cubic foot of water contains 7½ gallons and weighs 62½ pounds."

When the common schools are using a gallon of 230.4 cubic inches in order to produce exactly 7½ gallons and 60 pints to the cubic foot, there isn't a particle of sense in keeping the legal standard at 231 cubic inches.

When the common schools are using a bushel of 2,160 cubic inches in order to produce exactly .8 bushel to the cubic foot, there isn't a particle of sense in keeping the legal standard of 2,150.42 cubic inches.

When the common schools are using an ounce of 436.98 grains in order to produce exactly 1,000 ounces (62½ pounds) to the cubic foot, there isn't a particle of sense in keeping the legal standard at 437.5 grains.

If there are 1,000 ounces in a cubic foot and 1,000,000 grams in a cubic meter, there isn't a particle of sense in using grams instead of ounces in order to coordinate weights and measures to the cube of the fundamental line standard.

If Mr. Somers and his committee will report a bill to make these rectifications in our mercantile measures and weights, he will have done something for the commerce of the country.

Facing the Facts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is high time that well meaning reformers (?) who believed that with the legalization of liquor temperance would be restored, bootlegging stamped out and a reign of righteousness established, face the facts. And the facts are that arrests for drunkenness are on the increase, intoxicated motor drivers imperil our highways and the bootlegging industry continues to flourish.

A prominent female worker was recently quoted as saying that young people "must learn to drink alcoholic beverages in moderation." But the lady fails to define moderation. What is it? One drink taken by one unaccustomed to it will intoxicate, whereas an old soak may consume a pint at a sitting without apparent effect. Moderation is a term that can seldom be applied to our race. As a people we are given to excess. Anyhow, one drink naturally calls for another.

Will Durant tells us that "drinking is not a sin, but a mistake," which is certainly true. But the tragedy of it is that the great majority of those who imbibe do not realize this fact until too late.

"Lost" Monument Found.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read the appeal in a recent edition of The Post for information as to the location of a "lost" Civil War Monument.

I recognized it immediately as the monument, which still stands on the common in the rear of the City Hall, Worcester, Mass.

You undoubtedly will have received this information from a large number of sources, since any person reading your paper, who is familiar at all with Worcester, which happens to be my home, could not fail immediately to recognize the picture, even though it probably was taken many, many years ago.

John Keats' Chapman.

(From an article by Stephen Gaselee in the Observer, London.)

YES: I dare say that history requires the replacement of "stout Cortez" by "Balboa" (I am not sure whether this remark in "The Golden Treasury" is due to Palgrave or Tennyson), and I cannot remember any peaks, in the strict sense of the word, in Darien, when I was there three years ago: yet the famous sonnet, which is entitled, it should be remembered, "On first looking into Chapman's 'Homer,'" has certainly made many go to Chapman who would otherwise either never have heard of him, or dismissed him as one of the mass of Elizabethan translators rather admired than read.

Palgrave went on to say that it might be noticed that to find in Chapman's "Homer" the "pure serene" of the original, the reader must bring with him the imagination of the youthful poet—he must be "a Greek himself," as Shelley finely said of Keats. Such a spiritual equipment is a great advantage, as is a close acquaintance with the original Greek: but I think that Chapman's translation is one of the great translations, not indeed to be put in the same rank as the Authorized Version of the Bible, or Sir Thomas Urquhart's "Rabelais," and equally delightful to those who do and do not know the Greek text: to the former a marvel of adaptation (though the mistakes in construing are many) from one poetical language to another, to the latter no unworthy introduction to one of the three or four great epics of the world. It richly deserves the honor it has lately received, in being printed with all the beauty and dignity of type, paper and binding that could be given it by the Shakespeare Head Press, that worthy modern successor of "the Kelmscott" and "the Doves," founded by A. H. Bullen (who contributed the article on Chapman to the "Dictionary of National Biography") at Stratford-on-Avon, and now skillfully conducted by Mr. Bernard Newdigate at Oxford. We probably use the prose translations of Andrew Lang and his collaborators for accuracy combined with dignity of thought and language; but for something of the poesy of the original we still turn back to Chapman.

His was a quiet and uneventful life. He was born in the neighborhood of Hitchin, somewhere about 1559, and died in London in 1634; he is said to have been "a person of most reverend aspect, religious and temperate, qualities rarely meeting in a poet." His works, epic and dramatic, brought him no material reward; he was always poor, and most of his life neglected by the great world; as he grew old, however, he seems to have obtained recognition at least from the rising generation, for he was "much resorted to by young persons of parts, as a poetical chronicle; but was very choice who he admitted to him, and preserved in his own person the dignity of poetry, which he compared to a flower of the sun, that disdains to open its leaves to the eye of a smoking taper." Apart from his translation of Homer and his dramatic works, with which I shall not deal here, referring my readers to Swinburne's masterly essay, I always think that one of his most charming poems—I hope that this is not only because I am myself a devotee of medieval Latin verse—is "The Amourous Contention of Phillis and Flora," a translation of a poem which Chapman attributed to a friar in the year 1400, and later scholars to Walter Map, Archdeacon of Oxford about 1200; neither, I think, correctly—it was probably written in a Southern country about 1120. It is a charming and graceful translation, though it is but fair to say that it has also been claimed for Chapman's friend, Richard Stapleton. Chapman changed his meter when passing from the Iliad to the Odyssey. The former is done into the old-fashioned fourteen-syllable line, the latter into heroic couplets, far less smooth than those later employed by Pope, but perhaps of more vigor.

I believe that I need offer no apology for quoting at length the famous sonnet to which I alluded at the beginning of this article, prefacing it with the description by Monckton Milnes (Lord Houghton) of the manner of its birth:—

"Unable as he was to read the original Greek, Homer had as yet been to him a name of solemn significance and nothing more. His friend and literary counselor, Mr. Clarke, happened to borrow Chapman's translation, and having invited Keats to read it with him one evening, they continued their study till daylight. He describes Keats' delight as intense, even to shouting aloud, as some passages of especial energy struck his imagination. It was fortunate that he was introduced to that heroic company through an interpretation which preserves so much of the ancient simplicity, and in a meter that, after all various attempts, including that of the hexameter, still appears the best adapted, from its pauses and its length, to represent in English the Greek epic verse. . . . The Sonnet, in which these his first impressions are concentrated was left the following day on Mr. Clarke's table.

"Much have I travel'd in the realms of gold
And many goodly states and kingdoms seen;
Round many western islands have I been
Which bards in fealty to Apollo hold.

Oft of one wide expanse had I been told
That deep-brow'd Homer ruled as his demesne:
Yet did I never breathe its pure serene
Till I heard Chapman speak out loud and bold:

—Then felt I like some watcher of the skies
When a new planet swims into his ken;
Or like stout Cortez—when with eagle eyes
He stared at the Pacific, and all his men
Look'd at each other with a wild surmise—
Silent, upon a peak in Darien."

Ring Around Rosie.

Postoffice, Friday.

"EVERY June, as soon as the open season for weddings begins, why, we begin something, too, down at our shop," said the Young Man who Works at the Smithsonian Institution. "At least," he amended, "our anthropological section does. It begins to get a lot of inquiries about wedding-rings.

"And believe me," said the Young Man from the Smithsonian Institution, "there's plenty to tell."

It is at the boarding-house patronized by a friend of ours that this juvenile bureau of information resides. He has honored it with his presence for less than three months. But he is already making a place for himself. He is dispossessing another patron—a cynical ex-secretary of an ex-Congressman—from the position of Boarding-House Sage.

The house in question has a little back-garden. Thither, on mild evenings, it is the pleasant custom of the boarders to resort for after-dinner coffee. And there the Cynic held forth nightly—until the institutionalist invaded the scene.

The Cynic still makes some half-hearted endeavors to recapture the floor. However, he is visibly weakening. Last evening he started something about Toledo and labor-legislation. Yet, as soon as he paused at a period, the Y. M. cut in.

". . . so that," the Cynic was saying, "drastic measures must be taken before the end of June."

There was cue enough for the Y. M. He threw out his line baited with June weddings and immediately all the women were on the hook.

"It is supposed by some," the Y. M. continued, "that the wedding-ring was originally a sign of the wife's servitude to her husband, just as, in some countries, slaves wore rings or metal collars bearing their masters' initials. But investigation shows this to be unlikely. It does not account for the antiquity of the still frequent custom whereby there is an exchange of rings between bride and groom."

"Got his piece letter-perfect," sneered the Cynic.

"Sh-sh-sh!" the women commanded.

"Applanus," pursued our scholar, "says that according to the Egyptians, 'a very delicate nerve runs from the fourth finger of the left hand to the heart.' And some such superstition appears to have determined the selection of that finger for the wedding-ring. I remember, for instance, that Henry Swinburne's 'Treatise on Spousals,' published about 1680, declares how 'the learned, in ripping up and anatomizing bodies' found 'a vein of blood, called vena amoris, which passeth from this finger to the heart;' although"—insisted the Y. M., raising his voice as the Cynic opened his mouth for interruption—"although Macrobius advances another explanation.

"Macrobius says that the thumb was too busy to receive the wedding-ring, the forefinger and little finger only half protected, and the middle, being popularly called 'medicus,' too opprobrious for the honor. At all events, in the old English missals—those of York, Salisbury and Hereford, among others—it is ordered that, in the wedding ceremony, the ring shall be placed first on the thumb, then on the index finger, then on the middle finger and lastly on what is now universally known as the ring-finger."

"That Irishman, Macrobius," began the Cynic, "doesn't know what——"

"Sh-sh-sh!" cried the women.

So the Y. M. continued:

"Of course, a ring is a circle, and the circle is the symbol of things that endure forever. So is a knot, and 'tying the knot' has been a phrase for a wedding from time immemorial. Nodus Herculeus tells us that a part of the Roman marriage ceremony was the untying, by the groom, of the bride's girdle, yet at a Carthaginian wedding, part of the ceremony was the lashing together of the groom's thumbs. The Parsees wrap the groom with seven cords, and, in a Hindu wedding, the marriage becomes indissoluble at the moment when the man knots a ribbon around the woman's neck. You all know the lines from 'The Curse of Kehama,' by the poet Southey:

"Around her neck they leave
The marriage-knot alone."

We distinctly heard the Cynic murmur something about "Lonely Lulu"—but nobody else heard him.

* * *

"In fact," said the unperturbed Y. M., "some such literal tying of a knot may well have been part of the ceremony in old England, the wife then cutting the thong. Chaucer seems to indicate it, and Dekker, in his 'Match Me in London,' has a woman cry:

"See, at my girdle hang my wedding knives!"

The Cynic, however, would not longer be sh-sh-ed. He stood up:

"Out where I come from," he declared, "the bride totes an Army-automatic, which is one reason why our men are against the arms-manufacturers. But you seem to have your lesson by heart. Won't you tell us how often you've been married?"

Either "the slow declining sun" reddened the Y. M.'s cheek or else he really blushed.

"I haven't been married at all," he answered; "and I don't see what that's got to do——"

"Oh, nothing at all," growled the Cynic—"absolutely nothing! Only I wanted to give you a little quotation for all those you've so kindly been giving us. I wanted to tell you what Dr. Johnson said about a second marriage. He said that 'a second marriage is the triumph of hope over experience.'"

What Will the People Say?

THE Republicans are in such a state of excitement about their meeting in Chicago Monday for the purpose of selecting a National chairman that it will be surprising if they do not bungle the job. From the beatings they have taken they seem entirely to have lost their accustomed poise.

BARGERON.

Formerly they could meet with no formality at all and with amazing facility name a Claudius Houston or a Will Hays. Now they are running around and saying to one another excitedly that their selection at Monday's meeting must be made with care because it will be taken by the country as showing just how the party is to be rebuilt. When you make a thing as simple as the selection of a National chairman appear as hard as this, there is very likely to be a blunder from the overthinking that is involved.

It is, of course, important that they select a chairman at this time and let him get down to work. The suggestion that the selection be deferred was absurd, I think, because the sooner the Republicans get their organization to functioning again the better off they are bound to be.

But what they should do is to select some man who will do a good National chairman's job and pay no attention to the bunk that he will be taken by the country as indicative of what the revived party will be. For one thing, I think they flatter themselves as to the country's concern.

It is the first time, in fact, that I have heard the suggestion that the National chairman had anything to do with the formulation of a party's policy. John Raskob was about as aggressive as they come, but he didn't formulate the party program. I know of no one who had less to do with it.

* * * *

The Republicans' future course will be shaped by the Republican Senators and to a lesser degree by the Republican members of the House, with men like Ogden Mills and Teddy Roosevelt having some voice, of course. The chairman who is selected Monday will have little or nothing to do with it. His business will be to perfect the machinery. He should be selected in that light.

Oh, there is no doubt that the rival political camp, the Democrats, will put an interpretation on the selection. If a man like Jim Watson is named they will shout to the skies that his selection shows the Republicans have not changed a bit. The fact is, however, that I don't know of a better man they could name for the job.

* * * *

At any rate, they should name some one who knows the party machinery and get it to working again without regard to whether the Democrats shout "reactionary" and "standpattism" or not. They should do this because it is difficult to imagine anything more ridiculous than the Democrats' attack will be.

Before those in the Senate and the House can convince anyone that the identity of a party chairman labels the party's course they must show just where they themselves have anything to do with their own party's program. And certainly they outrate the National chairman.

Now, seriously, won't it be the height of absurdity for them to try to make capital out of the Republican's National chairman when not one of them can claim any part in the formulation of a single piece of major legislation? All they have done is to vote for what was sent up to them. They have not even participated in the councils of the professors, much less have any influence with them.

* * * *

Yes, sir; my guess is that, notwithstanding the country is still for the present Administration, it will roar at most any comment the Democrats make.

By the way, who is the Democrats' National chairman? He is a most capable one, but I suppose Jim Farley would be the last one to say that he had anything to do with the formulation of policies. And if you were to ask him whether he was a "Liberal" or a "Progressive," or anything except the party's political manager and what goes with it, the Postmaster General, I am sure would laugh.

Internal Conflicts Add Snags to Hitler's Path

Cynicism Grows Among People as Nazis Forego Polish Corridor Fight; Jealousies Disrupt Commanders of Armed Forces.

(Editor's Note: Following is the third of a series of ten articles on the puzzling European situation by Hamilton Fish Armstrong, who has just returned from a trip to the principal capitals. Mr. Armstrong deals extensively with the possibility of war abroad.)

III. CONFLICT INSIDE GERMANY.

By Hamilton Fish Armstrong.
Editor Foreign Affairs.

The German economic situation is serious because whereas German economy relies on imported raw materials for its sinews, the world is not willing to buy German manufactured goods in return. The deep psychological and moral reasons for this situation were described in yesterday's article.

Dr. Schacht, principal financial adviser to the Nazi government, seems to have been counting on making up the exchange discrepancy by securing new credits abroad. But is the world's present experience with German credits going to lead foreign governments or individuals to consider it good business to open new credits even in order to export goods which they are extremely anxious to get rid of? Germany has not met interest requirements on her present obligations, but she has found sufficient funds to buy back a very large proportion of those obligations at prices depressed by her own default.

One estimate puts the face value of German dollar securities bought back by Germany at about a $1,000,000. These securities had depreciated on the American market to an average value of something like 40. This, and the depreciation in the dollar, means that what American investors paid about a billion dollars for, Germany now has acquired for between 250 and 300 million dollars.

To add to the irony of the situation, the saving has been utilized to subsidize German exports in competition with American and other manufacturers. With the prices of existing German obligations what they are today; with the virtual certainty that any future interest payments will be drastically cut or made entirely in marks to be used within Germany only; with the use of those marks so restricted and controlled that they are practically valueless; with any new obligations necessarily junior to existing obligations like the Dawes and Young Plan bonds; and with the prevailing doubt whether the present regime will be in a positon later on to carry out its contractual obligations—who, under these circumstances, is going to make new loans to Germany? The materials which new credits enabled Germany to purchase would go, in part, at any rate, into the manufacture of war supplies and to build up wartime reserves.

Rigorous Limit Placed On Imports to Gain Time.

When the Schacht plan became known, one American commentator remarked that "German creditors have had to finance German exports, and are now to have the dubious honor of financing Germany's rearmament." Will they accept that role?

To gain time, the German government has begun to limit imports rigorously. Cotton, wool, hides, copper and fats are among the products already under import control monopolies, and the list is to be extended. Many think, also, that before long all but essential manufactured articles will be excluded entirely. Already certain raw materials are being rationed to the factories, and some observers prophesy that as in wartime the rationing will have to be carried to the consumer. Economies are even being practised in carrying forward the Nazi program; thus the order to put all workingmen in "labor uniforms" was suspended in view of the shortage of wool and cotton.

These expedients may momentarily ease the crisis caused by the widening gap between imports and exports, but at the expense of general business activity. Every conceivable device has already been used, and with marked success, to spread employment as widely as possible. But the program of making work and redistributing work has about reached its limit. If business activity diminishes, the number of jobs will again diminish. This result may be concealed for a time; summer is in any case the season of least distress; but when a winter of increasing unemployment looms ahead, will even the bidable German people refrain from protest, and will the government be able to resist taking radical measures of socialization?

Nor are the exchange crisis and the "church question" (described in yesterday's article) the only domestic preoccupations of the Hitler regime. As far as one can tell, it seems to have lost prestige in the vague but important realm of public morale. It abandoned the long-cherished dispute with Poland and its hue and cry for Austria had to be suspended. Stupefaction has given way to chagrin. For the first time a general disillusionment about the capacities of the regime is perceptible. Was it in order to sacrifice national claims which even "that miserable democrat" Bruening never compromised, that Germany intrusted the defense of her foreign rights to an unhampered executive?

There is no open grumbling, of course, no open grumbling of any sort is possible in a police state. But a note of cynicism now creeps constantly into the private comment of many Nationalists and others who, while perhaps not liking certain Nazi theories, nevertheless were hopeful at the start that the new regime would prove an effective champion of German nationalist claims. Persons closely in touch with Hitler's foreign policy know that he decided to free himself for a time from the Polish dispute in order to turn wholeheartedly to the task nearest his heart, namely, the cracking the Dollfuss government in Austria and the annexation of that, his native land, to the Third Reich.

But this task then had to be postponed. The strategy is not generally understood, and if it were understood it would not be palatable to the party masses, above all, the S. A. (the Sturm Abteilung, brown-shirted storm troopers numbering well over 1,000,000). These despise all strategy more delicate than the use of a gun or piece of lead pipe. They accepted as gospel the promises of early combat and new spoils and are restive at the delay in "delivering the goods."

Dispute Over Control of Armed Forces More Serious

But of more importance, because more specific, is the dispute which has arisen between the Nazi party organization and the organs of the government as to who is to control the secret police and the army.

The first surface signs of the struggle for the secret police appeared in March, when Gen. Goering, Premier of Prussia, issued new regulations limiting the right of local Nazi leaders to take persons into the dreaded Schutzbart (preventive custody) and ordering that persons so arrested should not be detained longer than 24 hours without his approval. The S. A. protested this limitation on one of their most cherished prerogatives and paid little attention to it. A month later, Dr. Diels, head of the Prussian secret police under Gen. Goering, was promoted to another sphere of activity and was replaced by Herr Himmler, Reich leader of the S. S. (the elite Nazi guards, in number about 300,000, black-shirted in contrast with the brown-shirted S. A.).

A parallel conflict has been going on between the S. A. on the one hand, the Reichswehr and Stahlhelm on the other, for the right to organize and command the new German army which is now to be formed. Here, up to the time this is written, the conservatives have had the advantage.

Most of the older and higher Reichswehr officers, from major upward, served in the old imperial army. They have not relished the Nazi assumption that in 1918 the army faltered in its valor or duty, or that army commanders "betrayed" the nation in at last acknowledging defeat. They resent the Nazi statement that they are old fogies. The S. A. leaders believe, for example, that instead of the traditional nine months or a year being needed to make a good soldier, their more intensive and enthusiastic methods can turn a civilian into a combat soldier in two or three months.

The point is important, because the new army is to be a short-term conscript army. They are intent on putting every available man through a period of intensive training as rapidly as possible. Further, though the Reichswehr has obeyed government orders, it has stood aside from the arena of political combat and maintained some degree of esprit de corps. It has resisted amalgamation with the Nazi forces, and even manages to prevent the infiltration of Nazi elements by avoiding the acceptance of former storm troopers who offer themselves for the "voluntary service.' The monarchist sympathies of many Reichswehr officers are also known.

Determined to Oppose Inner Non-Nazi Power.

The S. A. are determined not to tolerate the existence of this non-Nazi power inside the Nazi state, and make no bones about their intention of taking into their own hands the task of organizing the new short-service German army. The Reichswehr looking on the S. A. as upstarts, thugs and adventurers, knowing that many of them once were Communists, feeling them undisciplined in the proper army sense, unversed in the science of war and disposed to plunge into adventures when only half prepared, are equally if more quietly determined that the military fortunes of Germany shall not rest in such uncertain hands. The struggle is for the possession of the dynamos that tomorrow will run the German ship of state. The eventual character of the Nazi party and the foreign policy of Germany in the years ahead are both going to depend largely on the way the struggle turns out.

These and various other conflicts now in progress inside the Nazi State show that a latent crisis begins to permeate a revolution at the moment when a group of its leaders realize the difficulty of continuing the first mainly destructive phase and must needs evolve a constructive and positive policy. They find themselves held back by other leaders, more reckless, perhaps, or more sincere, and by the fanatical and ignorant rank and file, who continue shouting the revolutionary slogans and demanding that they be put into practice.

But probably it would be an error to conclude that any of the difficulties mentioned, or the sum of them, menaces as yet the existence of the Hitler regime. After all, a dictatorship is not vitally affected by a fall in its popularity at a given moment from, say, 80 to 60 or 40 per cent. So long as it has military force and all the mechanism of modern propaganga at its command, the dominant ring of leaders can thumb their noses at the masses who at the start hurrahed and marched and voted them into power. Dictatorship knows no peacable method of recall. And in a police state how is a force hostile to the government to be recruited, supplied and mobilized?

The difficulties of the present critical period in Germany are important not because they threaten to overthrow Nazi rule, but because they intensify the fight of contrary radical and reactionary opinions inside the leadership of the party, and hence will drastically affect the character and tempo of its policy.

Mr. Armstrong's fourth article will appear tomorrow.

No End of Books

By

Theodore Hall

Questionnaire for Mr. Stribling.

I SUPPOSE even the Cumaean Sibyl had her off days. There must have been times when omniscience was a bore and she got pretty tired of handing out opinions to the old Romans. "Now you tell me one!" she probably itched to exclaim, whatever the idiom.

THEO. HALL.

Not an inch farther will I push this simile than to say I'm feeling much the same way about the indicative mood. I want to ask questions for a change. And ask them of T. S. Stribling. For I've just read "Unfinished Cathedral" (Doubleday-Doran, $2.50), the third volume of his astonishing trilogy which began with "The Forge," 1931, and "The Store," 1932. And he's the man who knows most about the book.

* * * *

Mr. Stribling, why did you write this book as you did? Take just the first five pages. Why didn't you lead off with three paragraphs about the kind of weather and two on the scenery and six on the general state of the universe and your private philosophy, like most novelists, instead of showing us Jerry Catlin, the minister, and Petrie, the high school teacher, riding the day coach into Florence, Ala., at the height of its 1929-ish real estate boom, the two of them as large and convincing as next-door neighbors?

Couldn't you, after that, have given me time to fidget and pull the lamp nearer and light a cigarette before getting Petrie into the midst of that affair between lovely young Marsan and young beef-eating McLaughlin, before plumping Catlin down first in a Rotary luncheon and then in a lynching?

Take old Col. Miltiades Vaiden, 90, and richest man in town. Why, I had thought he was a thorough old scoundrel! But here he is, with the fortune he founded on thievery, putting up a great cathedral to house his remains and advising his friends not to plunge into the boom and doing his best to keep those Negro boys from being lynched, and I don't know what else, just as if he were after all a human being. Couldn't you have left him a stock villain?

* * * *

And that unforgettable Marsan, his daughter—couldn't you have made her less brave, frank, and alive so that I wouldn't have cared what happened to her? Or that attraction between Catlin and his uncle's wife—why wasn't it a novelist's theme from drawer B-16 instead of a tremulous, changing thing almost like life? How could you have given a name like Aurelia Swartout to the idealistic young organist, and made her everything else but a stiff, prosy pattern of a woman?

Why didn't you make the trial of those six Negro boys less like the Scottsboro case, so that I wouldn't have had to realize what the Southern farmer and the Southern banker think of the North, Clarence Darrow, and lynching in general? And all those people you've put in your book—the quiet old ladies and the rioting mob, the high school girls and the gamblers on real estate, the Negro doctor and lawyer and the "Princes and Potentates of Ethiopia," the whole natural human complexity of a Southern town in the 1920's—why couldn't you have blurred them and smudged them and stopped them from stepping so plate-glass-clear out of the pages? Most writers find it easy as rolling off a log.

* * * *

If you're writing a "social history of the South," as the blurb says, why didn't you make the story pedestrian, muscle-bound, and dull? What was the use in letting your educated characters see beyond the ends of their noses and talk intelligently when you might have come to the footlights and delivered your own monologues? Where was your best judgment in leaving out the purple passages, by which a literary reputation is made nowadays? Did you think just telling a tale would do?

And why did you give us such a novel that I, who have never been south of Fredericksburg, Va., in this country, and have never had an ancestor south of the Connecticut Western Reserve, feel as if I had been born and raised in your Alabama town, and had known everyone in it since I was knee-high?

* * * *

Mr. Stribling, the way you wrote "Unfinished Cathedral," people would think you've produced the most all-seeing, honest, craftsmanlike and satisfying novel about the contemporary South to appear in the last dozen years.

They really would.

The National Gallery

HENRY THOMAS RAINEY, Speaker of the House of Representatives. An uncertain prop to Administration, he attained his powerful post after stormy service in 14 Congresses, pulling his full share of the party load amid lean years of Republican domination. Farm born 73 years ago in district once contested by Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas. A persistent worker on tariff and fiscal problems, he was early faced with holding Congress in line while the country tottered through days of returning beer, the bank holiday, the abandonment of the gold standard, the slashing of Government expenditures and the monster Public Works program. Physically formidable, he is curiously benign. Smokes often. Reads much. The picture of amiability. Knows political rules; plays them. Diversion: Detective stories.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

The More a Path Is Used the Wider It Grows

By Robert Quillen.

A certain young man, having discovered that he possessed a subconscious mind, asked it to explain in what way it served him.

"In many ways," said the subconscious mind. "I keep your heart beating and direct your breathing and things like that. And I learn new duties quickly, and thus relieve you of all routine responsibilities. Just repeat an act three or four times, to show me how you want it done, and thereafter I shall attend to it without bothering you."

"Fine!" said the young man. "You will be a great help."

Some days later the young man was tempted to lie out of a tight place and did so.

"Shall I do your lying hereafter?" asked the subconscious mind.

"No, no," said the young man. "I mustn't make a habit of that."

A week passed and the young man was tempted to break an engagement with a persistent salesman.

When he had surrendered to the temptation, his subconscious mind asked politely: "Shall I break all engagements hereafter?"

"By no means," said the young man. "That wasn't right and I shall do it no more."

Next morning he was tempted to lie late abed, and so turned over for another nap.

"If you wish," said his subconscious mind, "I'll be glad to prolong your sleep every morning."

"No," said the young man. "I wish to get up early hereafter."

Thus events followed one another for a month of so, and then one day the young man, being in urgent need of money, was tempted to steal from his employer. Once the thought entered his mind, he went about the theft in a kind of trance.

A day later, as he sat and wept in jail, his subconscious mind said to him: "Well, I told you how I was quick to learn. And I did the job just as you taught me to do it."

"That's a lie," cried the young man. "I never dreamed of teaching you to steal."

"Quite true," said the subconscious mind. "But you taught me to surrender to temptation, and who am I to interfere with your habits?"

June.

Although Time has been rather cruel to Lowell's poem "The Vision of Sir Launfal," I suppose there are few lines in English literature better known than the first line of the following:

And what is so rare as a day in June?

Then, if ever, come perfect days:
Then Heaven tries earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays.

There is something to the taste of today terrible in that use of the word rare; it is sickening; and it is fortunate that Lowell's reputation does not depend on this poem, any more than Longfellow's on "Excelsior."

Lowell was the poet of June, as Bryant was of Autumn, and Whittier of Winter. Bryant, indeed, was so filled with austere thoughts that even when June came into his mind, it seemed to him a good season for a real nice funeral. Listen to Bryant cheer up:

'Twere pleasant that in flowering June,
When brooks send up a cheerful tune,
And groves a joyous sound,
The sexton's hand, my grave to make,
The rich green mountain-turf should break.

From these sampler-like meditations I turn with pleasure to the lovely old song,

Do you recall that night in June
Upon the Danube river:
We listened to the landler tune,
We watched the moonbeams quiver?

Everyone over 40 can sing those lines in his head, anyhow.

Two poems in lighter vein on this gay month were written by those experts in trivia, N. P. Willis and Thomas Hood. The former:

The month of leaves and roses,
When pleasant sights salute the eyes,
And pleasant scents the noses.

While Thomas Hood remarked, before the days of asphalt and the watering-cart, in a citified stanza:

What joy have I in June's return?
My feet are parched—my eyeballs burn,
I scent no flowery gust:
But faint the flagging Zephyr springs,
With dry Macadam on its wings,
And turns me "dust to dust."

Browning's poem "Another Way of Love" begins,

June was not over,
Though past the full,

and ends in a manner to bewilder the reader to such an extent that in the play "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" this very poem is read aloud as a specimen of incomprehensibility. As a matter of fact, it expresses in verse exactly the matter that we often see in columns containing advice to the lovelorn.

H. L. Bonhan, Southwest Orchardist, Is Buried

Chilhowie, Va., May 31 (AP).—H. L. Bonhan, 68, southwest Virginia's leading orchardist and prominent business man who died at his home here yesterday after an illness of one month, was buried today.

The Theaters and Bars.

New York theater men are asking for licenses to establish bars in the theaters. Theaters, the free public library and the Y. W. C. A. are about the only places in New York where bars are not already established.

* * * *

New York has become an alcoholic pumping station. Despite the State commission's cry, "The old-fashioned saloon must not return," there are more places to get a drink than ever before.

* * * *

The only hard trick confronting a visitor is to find a place where they don't sell it.

* * * *

There are bars in candy stores, bars in chain restaurants, bars in dairy lunchrooms, bars in sandwich shops, and an enterprising taxicab operator has put one in his cab.

* * * *

The theater men are demanding the right to install bars in their playhouses on the ground that they are now surrounded by drinking places and not allowed to produce their own hiccoughs.

* * * *

The idea meets with the approval of theatergoers. They say most of the shows are so bad a customer is entitled to a stimulant to keep him awake.

* * * *

And they contend a bartender in the theater would be welcome because his jokes are certainly fresher than the ones in the author's libretto.

* * * *

To the complaint that drinking is bad for an audience they reply that it is often no worse than the show and frequently not nearly so bad as the acting.

* * * *

Possible Dramatic Reviews.

At the Forty-fourth Street Theater last evening the Shuberts' new $25,000 rosewood and ivory bar had its premiere and, in the judgment of this reviewer, "The Wild Heron" is in for a long run. The play was adequate, the acting was satisfactory and the highballs were the best the American theater has produced. —Percy Hammond.

* * * *

Easily one of the finest evenings this season in the theater. Joe Burns, head bartender, gave a gorgeous performance, displaying a rare talent for the playhouse. At the finale the patrons stood and cheered him to the echo.—Brookes Atkinson.

* * * *

The book was repetitious and the action showed a tendency to halt in spots, but the bar was good enough to keep the show running for six months at least.—Richard Lockridge.

Hasty.

Elmer Twichell says that Washington might have let the barbers and restaurants keep their codes until they got around to reading them anyway.

This department knows a suit presser who got sore over the President's lifting of the pressing code because he had just put in a new stock of chisels and paid to have them all sharpened.

The Soviet government has demonstrated an air train in which a plane tows several gliders full of freight through the air from city to city. Still we'd hate to have our eggs shipped that way in any country.

The world's most despondent people: a pair of hitch-hikers taking an outing in Venice.

"Strictly Dynamite" Opens at RKO-Keith's—New Week's Stage and Screen Bills

Durante - Velez Alliance Seen In Radio Yarn

Carbon Copy of 'Palooka;' Mills Brothers Help; Dots and Dashes.

Reprinted from yesterday's last edition.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"STRICTLY DYNAMITE." RKO-Radio picturization of a story by Robert T. Colwell and Robert A. Simon, adapted to the screen by Maurine Watkins and Ralph Spence, costarring Jimmy Durante and Lupe Velez, with Marian Nixon, Norman Foster, William Gargan, Eugene Pallette, Minna Gombell, Irene Franklin, Jackie Searle, Stanley Fields, Tom Kennedy, the Four Mills Brothers, Sterling Holloway and Leila Bennett. Directed by Elliott Nugent. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon. At RKO-Keith's.

This tempestuous medium for the exploitation of Mr. James Durante's unique enthusiasm for dismantling the king's English is in every essential aspect a companion piece to "Palooka."

The principal point of difference between the present aberration and its predecessor is that while the former concerned itself with the weird adventures of a band of hangers-on about the fringes of the fight racket, "Strictly Dynamite" is dedicated to the bumptious burlesque of big-star broadcasting. In tempo, treatment and largely in personnel, they are the same.

Two young couples are involved in the major complexities of a plot that occasionally ventures out of the field of farce into the gentler realms of romance. Master Durante and the raucous and durable Senorita Lupe Velez appear as Moxie Slaight and Vera, ace radio stars. Norman Foster and Marian Nixon offer contrasting studies as a serious young writer and his bride.

Becomes "Ghost."

The serious young writer is induced by a wily young promoter, impersonated with bluff skill by William Gargan, to become ghost writer of the comedy scripts for the Slaight & Vera broadcasts. The sudden affluence thus brought to the home of the penniless literati occasions dire results. Nickie becomes infatuated with Vera; his wife, Sylvia, pretends an interest in Georgia—that would be Mr. Gargan—and Moxie, with his two gunman-bodyguards, goes on the warpath for all concerned.

Obviously, there is opportunity here for contretemps of the first order. The entire movement of the piece, however, is not given over to these purely farcical dramatic formulas. There are, in addition, broadcasting studio sequences in which not only Master Durante and the raucous and durable Miss Velez legitimately "do their stuff" but the Four Mills Brothers contribute many of their extraordinary vocalisms, as well. And then, too, there is a comparatively wild party thrown by Miss Velez at which still further "entertaining" is done to rather good effect.

Well Enough Done.

Those most conspicuously engaged in these various activities discharge their chores with gay, spontaneous and slightly blatant thoroughness. The costars, of course, are utterly and unfailingly themselves. Mr. Durante frequently seems on the verge of apoplexy in his explosive attacks on the language, and Miss Velez is sirenic and sinister in her seductive influences upon the male members of the cast.

Norman Foster does well with a role that by its very quaintness and passivity suggests Stuart Erwin rather more than it does him, and Marian Nixon, as his demure little wife, is similarly self-effacing. The Messrs. Gargan, Stanley Fields and Tom Kennedy are appropriately ominous. A considerable amount of coloring is lent many scenes by the incidental contributions of a long list of players, of whom Eugene Pallette, Leila Bennett, Minna Gombell, Jackie Searle, Irene Franklin and Sterling Hollowell are most in evidence.

An interesting newsreel in which the opening of the second year of the Century of Progress Exposition is principally celebrated, along with June Week at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis; Ed Lowry and Marjorie Gateson in an absurdly ridiculous comedy, "Well-Cured Ham"; a Krazy Kat cartoon, "Busy Bus", and a Memorial Day tribute to the country's hero dead augment a feature that will mildly please Durante-Velez fans and hold nothing for lovers of "drahma."

Dots and Dashes.

When "Keep 'em Rolling," or "Rodney," by whichever name it is to be known locally, is unreeled at the Metropolitan, beginning tomorrow, many Washingtonians may see themselves on the screen . . . The crowd scenes on parade days were made over at Fort Myer, Va., late last summer . . . Capital residents were the crowds . . . "Angie Ratto," manager of Loew's Palace, is not the only one starting on his vacation tomorrow . . . So is Lou Brown, in charge of Loew advertising and publicity; Col. Harry E. Long, division manager, and Irene Weber, executive secretary . . . Mr. and Mrs. Brown head for the Cavalier Hotel, at Virginia Beach; Col. and Mrs. Long for the New England hills . . . Harrison R. Hathaway has been executive head, with the title of "Director," of the Montgomery Players at Bethesda, Md. . . . Mrs. Doris Dewey Day is assistant director; Ralph S. Fowler, business manager; Rose E. Selby, secretary . . . The sudden clearing of the skies yesterday and the warmer temperature did the downtown box offices no good whatever . . . It was not a record day for the theaters . . . Trust the weather holds for Managing Director Harnett's party on the Powhatan roof tonight . . . Preliminary to the formal opening tomorrow night . . . For which I trust the weather holds, too . . . For a good laugh, catch the "nut" comedy, "Well Cured Ham," at RKO-Keith's . . . For a good cry—but we won't go into that!

Victory!

I find there is one clinging rose blossom, up on top of the garage, that that pesky little rabbit hasn't eaten!

Among New Week's Film Stars

"Keep 'em Rolling," the picture made out at Fort Myer, Va., last fall under the working title of "Rodney," brings Walter Huston, left above, to the screen of the Metropolitan Theater tomorrow. At right, the high priestess of drollery, ZaSu Pitts in "Three on a Honeymoon," opening tomorrow at the Columbia.

Entertainment For Next Week Paced to June

Hot Weather Policies Are Established for Term of Summer Months.

Reproduced From Yesterday's Last Edition.

The Memorial Day holiday over, the inland and seaside parks open and in full operation and the outdoor pools and roof gardens coming along, amusements may be said now to have struck their summertime stride.

It is probable that until Labor Day, or thereabouts, the entertainment field, both indoors and out, will line up about the way it is at present. That is by no means a disheartening outlook. This will be demonstrated by a survey of the offerings for the ensuing week.

* * * *

Beginning next Monday night, the National Theater Players will be seen in the most hilarious and most outrageosuly rowdy and amusing farce comedy of this or any other season, "Sailor, Beware." This briny, boisterous tale of sailors on the loose in Panama was written by Kenyon Nicholson and Charles Robinson and principally concerns the wooing of "Stonewall" Jackson, a Broadway chorus girl employed as hostess in a Panama cabaret, by "Dynamite" Jones, the U. S. S. Dakota's champion lady killer. You can imagine! For the presentation of this play the cast of the National Theater Players will be augmented to a total force of 25 speaking characters. Naturally, all of the regulars will be handsomely assigned.

* * * *

The opening of the Crystal Pool, out at Glen Echo Park, has served to put that resort, with its almost three score other attractions, in full midsummer trim. With reduced prices in effect and the weather warming up, the pool is leaping into characteristic popularity. Another prime favorite among the manifold amusements is the nightly dancing—except Sunday—in the Spanish Garden Ballroom, to the music of Mac-Williams' orchestra.

* * * *

Seaside Park, the breeze-swept waterfront resort a few miles away at Chesapeake Beach, has many new attractions, and improvements of the old, to offer patrons this season. Here are both bay and pool bathing. In addition, are dance pavilion, pier attractions and ample picnic groves. Accessible by either car or train.

* * * *

Margaret Lindsay, Ruth Donnelly and Glenda Farrell are the ladies of the title and Donald Woods, Guy Kibbee and Hugh Herbert their chief harassments in "Merry Wives of Reno," the screen comedy opening a week's engagement at the Earle Theater tomorrow. This is said to be another of those high-voltage screen subjects, like "Convention City," contrived solely to compound laughter. The stage bill will be headlined by Rosette and Luttman, dancers, assisted by Paul Tisen and his Gypsy Girl Orchestra and the Caron Sisters. Others on the vaudeville bill are Britt Wood, "the bood himself;" Large and Morgner and Gracie Barrie, songstress and mistress of ceremonies.

* * * *

That much-discussed bone of contention between two governments, "Viva Villa," which finally resulted in the temporary banishment of Lee Tracy from the flickers, will be the chief screen attraction at Loew's Fox Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. Wallace Beery is the star, supported by Leo Carillo, Stuart Erwin, Fay Wray, George E. Stone and numerous others. The stage portion of the bill will be provided by Abe Lyman and his famous orchestra, featuring, as assisting artists, Vilma and Buddy Ebsen, dancers; Gene Harvey, Eleanor Logan, Ray Covert and His Musketeers and Phil Neely. The Fox Movietone News and overture will round out the bill.

* * * *

Joan Crawford will occupy the screen at Loew's Palace Theater, beginning tomorrow, in the title role of Vina Delmar's widely read story of "Sadie McKee." This is the vivid, and often lurid, story of a small-town girl who sought—and found—adventure, disillusionment, happiness and sorrow, in the big city. Franchot Tone is cast opposite the star, with Gene Raymond, Edward Arnold and Esther Ralston in important supporting parts. The bill will be completed by abbreviated camera subjects and Metrotone News.

* * * *

"Keep 'Em Rolling," the picture that was made out at Fort Myer, Va., late last summer under the title of "Rodney," comes to the Metropolitan's screen for the week beginning tomorrow, with Walter Huston in the stellar part, supported by Frances Dee. The story is of a Regular Army top sergeant and his horse. The supplementary program will embrace Joe Penner in "You Nasty Man," Vitaphone's "Big City Fantasy," starring Phil Spitalny and his orchestra; "Murder at the Bridge Table," a Culbertson subject; "March of the Years" and 15 minutes of newsreel.

* * * *

The humor and romance of Isabel Ross' best-selling novel of "Promenade Deck" will be transferred to the Columbia's screen for the week beginning tomorrow, under the title of "Three on a Honeymoon," with ZaSu Pitts, Sally Eilers and Charles Starrett heading the cast. Johnny Mack Brown, Henrietta Crosman and Russell Simpson are prominent in support.

Island Girl Weds U. S. Army Man

Lieut. T. B. McDonald Formerly Resident of Washington.

Bridal Ceremony Takes Place in Honolulu Church.

A romance that started on St. Valentine's Day three years ago in the Hawaiian Islands, culminated in the wedding yesterday afternoon of Miss Marion Farrar Warren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Trenholm Warren, of Honolulu, to Lieut. Thomas Benton McDonald, A.C., U.S.A., son of Mrs. Johnson Morgan, of Washington, and the late Dr. Thomas Benton McDonald, of Cumberland, Md.

The wedding took place in the picturesque Central Union Church on Beretania street in Honolulu at 5 o'clock. The church was decorated with garlands of pink plumeria against a background of tropical palms and ti-leaves. Above the chancel there were graduated groups of twilight-rose colored tapers. On either side of the organ console there was a seven-branched candelabra with rose tapers. The aisles were roped off with pink satin ribbons. The Rev. Horace Hall Leavitt, D.D., performed the ceremony.

The first group of the bridal party to enter the church comprised the six ushers, who were immaculate in their white starched uniforms, gold buttons and polished sabers. They were Lieut. William P. Connolly, jr., Lieut. Lauris Norstad, Lieut. Royden Beebe, jr., Lieut. William P. Sloan and Lieut. John M. Sterling, all brother Army air-corps officers of the bridegroom. Lieut. John W. Stribling, West Point classmate of Lieut. McDonald, served as best man.

Mrs. Stribling a Bridesmaid.

Mrs. John W. Stribling, honorary bridesmaid, was the first of the bride's attendants to go up the aisle. She wore a gown of pale rose satin-backed crepe. The sleeves were quite full from the shoulder to the elbow, tapering from there to tight fitting cuffs at the wrist. On one side of the long train there was a ripple effect. Her small hat of the same shade as the gown was tilted on the right side and under the brim on the left side there was a band of French flowers. She carried a bouquet of pink plumeria blossoms tied with grosgrain ribbon of a matching shade.

The three bridesmaids, who followed Mrs. Stribling, walked together instead of in pairs or singly as in most weddings. Their gowns were of the same color and style as that worn by the honorary bridesmaid.

Dress Is Claret Colored

Miss Katharine Tower Warren, elder sister of the bride was the maid of honor. She had on a gown of claret colored satin-backed crepe. It was made on long lines, the skirt which had a six-inch slit in the front, ended in a fan shaped train in the back. The fitted sleeves tapered to pointed cuffs. With this she wore a becoming hat, the crown of which was of the claret crepe and the transparent brim was edged with the same material. Her slippers were also of claret. She carried a lei of snapdragons, which shaded from delicate pink to deepest maroon and garnet tones over her hands.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father. She wore a gown of white satin-moire, made on silhouette lines, the skirt ending in a graceful simicircular train. The full bell shaped sleeves ended just above the wrists with satin puffs and ruchings. Her veil of white tulle was caught into a Juliet cap of rare old lace, held in place with a single orange blossom under each ear.

She carried her great-grandmother's wedding handkerchief, which had been carried by the brides of three other generations. Her flowers were a loose sheaf of white butterfly orchids and lilies of the valley, and she carried a small white kid prayer book, a gift of the bridegroom, from which the wedding service was read.

Wedding Supper Served.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's Recessional Lieut. McDonald and his bride left the church, passing under the traditional arch the ushers made with their sabers. There was a wedding supper for the members of the bridal party and a few intimate friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren on Vancouver highway. On the buffet serving table there were candelabra holding the white tapers which had been used at the bridal dinner of the bride's parents 25 years ago. Mrs. Warren was attired in a gown of wine colored tucked chiffon and a matching hat of straw trimmed with pink velvet. She wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Lieut. McDonald and his bride will spend several days in a small cottage on one of the beaches on the windward side of the island of Oahu. They will sail from Honolulu on June 6 for the East Coast, coming by way of the Panama Canal. Arriving in New York the first week in July, they will come directly to Washington to visit Lieut. McDonald's mother, Mrs. Johnson Morgan. They will spend two months at Mrs. Morgan's summer home on the Patuxent River, before going to Louisiana, where Lieut. McDonald will be on duty at Barksdale Field.

Mrs. McDonald was graduated from Punahou Academy in 1930 and attended the University of Hawaii. She has been quite active in the Little Theater movement in Honolulu and is one of the youngest members of the League of American Penwomen.

Lieut. McDonald was graduated from West Point in 1929. He went to Wheeler Field, T. H., for station with the air corps in 1931, following his graduation from the Flying Schools at Kelly and March Fields.

Optimistic Bidding Plus Accurate Play.

Today's hand illustrates optimism in the bidding. It also is a fine example of utilizing every bit of all too slender resources to make a contract which could be defeated, and it discloses a common defensive error. Optimism in the bidding is forgivable, especially from the standpoint of those of us who analyze play, because it results in some of the finest Bridge stratagems being used as a means of making apparently unmakable contracts.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1◇	1♡	2◇	Pass
3◇	Pass	3NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

South's bid on three notrump is based on the hope of a solid five-card diamond suit, but even at that is overenthusiastic as it appears difficult to find a sufficient number of tricks to total nine in the combined hands with only a single heart stopper.

The Opening lead was the heart 9, and the Declarer, on the basis of the vulnerable Overcall by East, correctly placed the high cards in the East hand. There was nothing to be gained by a hold-up in the heart suit, so South immediately won with the Ace as he desired to retain the heart in Dummy for the subsequent end-play. He could see eight tricks—five diamonds and the other three Aces. The only possibility of the ninth was in establishing the spade Queen as a winner. Unfortunately from South's standpoint this could not be done by leading spades, as East would cash the spade King and, with his four established hearts, defeat the contract.

South decided to attempt to make the Queen of spades without permitting East to make the King. He therefore led his five diamonds, upon which East discarded two clubs and two spades, thus giving the Declarer an accurate count of his hand. The Declarer now laid down the Ace of clubs and followed with the last heart from Dummy. East then cashed his four heart tricks, but at the end was compelled to concede two spade tricks to the Declarer.

East could have averted this end-play by proper defense. Instead of discarding two clubs and two spades on the diamonds, he should have discarded two spades, one heart and the club Queen. By thus unblocking the club suit, he would have retained a card of exit, and in his case a card of exit was essential.

South African States' Union Is Celebrated

Minister and Mrs. Close Hold Reception at Legation Here.

Twenty-four years ago, four neighboring provinces in South Africa decided to band together, so it was that on May 31, 1910 the Act of Union was formed, thus bringing into one group the four provinces of Cape Good Hope, Transvaal, Natal and Orange Free State. Lord Gladstone was the first Governor General of the Union of South Africa.

To show absolute impartiality in the choice of a capital, three different places were chosen to house the three divisons of the government. Capetown was made the legislative capital; Pretoria, the administrative capital, and Bloenfontein, the judicial capital.

May 31 was declared a public holiday in South Africa and each year it is gayly and widely celebrated. Yesterday afternoon it was observed for the first time in this country, when the Minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close entertained at a reception in the legation on New Hampshire avenue, in honor of the occasion.

Throughout the drawing-room suite clusters of deep red, white and pale pink peonies were artistically arranged. Mrs. Close wore a becoming gown of sapphire blue lace made on flaring lines with long sleeves and a short jacket.

The Minister and Mrs. Close were assisted in receiving by the Secretary of the Legation, Mr. Eugene Kevin Scallan, and the Commercial Attache, Mr. Johannes N. Theron and Mrs. Theron.

The first president, Mrs. George F. Mikkelson, died during the past year and Mrs. William C. Dennis, who was president in 1928, and is now living in Richmond, Ind., was not able to be present.

Mrs. Louis Laudick, the newly elected president of the Women's Christian Association, will entertain the members of the board and other invited guests at a luncheon to be given on Friday in her home on Quebec street in Wesley Heights.

After an informal business meeting the guests will make a tour of the gardens in Wesley Heights. The tour is being given for the benefit of the Wesley Heights Florence Crittenden Circle. Tea will be served in the gardens of Mrs. Edgar Brawner and Mrs. Earl Clark from 3 to 6 o'clock.

Miss De Veau, Of Chevy Chase, Becomes Bride

Marriage to Mr. Robert Melvin Dulin Took Place Wednesday.

A very quiet home wedding took place Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Dorothy DeVeau, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. DeVeau, of Chevy Chase, was married to Mr. Robert Melvin Dulin, of Silver Spring, formerly of Missouri.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Edward Gardner Latch, of Chevy Chase Methodist Episcopal Church, before a screen of palms and peonies with syringa blossoms.

Mr. DeVeau gave his daughter in marriage. She wore an afternoon gown of white lace and chiffon, with long flaring skirt and puffed sleeves, and carried a shower bouquet of bride roses and lilies of the valley.

The maid of honor was Miss Ruth Alexander, who wore a bouffant gown of yellow mousseline de soie, with slippers of yellow. Her flowers were talisman roses. The little ring bearer was Ann Livingston, who wore a dainty frock of pink organdie.

Mr. William Sincell, Washington, served as best man.

Mrs. DeVeau, mother of the bride, wore an afternoon gown of nasturtium colored lace and a shoulder corsage of talisman roses.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Dulin left on their wedding trip, the latter wearing a turquoise blue crepe sport suit, with hat and accessories of white. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Dulin will make their home at Owens Beach, Md., where they have taken a cottage for the summer.

Sunday night the members of the wedding party were entertained at a buffet supper at the home of Miss Ruth Alexander, in Bradley lane, and Friday evening the bride was the honor guest at a linen shower given by Mrs. John Livingston, in Silver Spring.

Women Scientists Hold High Rank In Developing Plant Disease Cures

Dr. Charlotte Elliott Has Discovered Many Ailments.

Miss Nellie A. Brown a Specialist on Tumors and Cankers.

This is one in a series of articles telling of the interesting achievements of women in scientific fields.

By Mary Greiner Kelly.

WHEN a cabbage patch gets a headache, or sugar beets develop the gout, or bantam corn contracts a mastoid—then it's time to put through a rush call for the plant disease diagnosticians.

A group of these scientists, all gifted women, for years have contributed valuable service in the Department of Agriculture, and are ready on call to minister to sick vegetables and ailing flowers.

One is Dr. Charlotte Elliott, associate pathologist in plant industry, who has attended the sick bed of many a field of corn. Called to other scenes, she has written prescriptions that brought back the bloom of health to acreages, whose illness might be traced to their flare for wild oats.

Making her calls through the States of Kansas, Wisconsin, Indiana and Texas, she has discovered new germ diseases behind many crop failures. Capturing the casual organism, she has returned to her laboratory in Washington to carry on history-making experiments of isolation, inoculation and reproduction, aimed at ultimate cures.

Procedure When Incurable.

When cures can not be attained, and the disease is in danger of spreading, she suggests quarantines and even post-mortems. Then, with Spartan-like efficiency, she encourages the immediate development of resistent varieties.

In another field of practice is Physician - Scientist Nellie A. Brown, specialist and one of the foremost living authorities on plant tumors and cankers. A pioneer in the division of plant pathology, Miss Brown precipitated a mild scientific earthquake in 1906 with her isolation of the germ-bacterium, Tumefaciens, or Crown Gall.

This organism, which attacks and ruins fruit trees, berry bushes and, in fact, all plants not of the Monocotyledon type, has been the bane of many ranchers' existence. Miss Brown's announced isolation of the germ was at first received with skepticism, especially in Europe. There the disease was attributed to the severity of winter weather. Later it was acclaimed with joy by fellow scientists the world over.

A case of "respiratory" illness in the plant world—the shortness of Baby Breath—challenged Specialist Brown's attention recently. With the aid of microscope and test tube, she discovered another tumor causing germ, Gypsophila, eating away the life of this dainty flower. This, her latest of a line of discoveries, has not yet been presented to the scientific world. Just what far-reaching effect the discovery will have is not yet known.

Seen in Plant Kingdom.

Canker sores are not uncommon in the plant kingdom either. When this affliction spreads through a tomato field, another "physician" is called—Miss Katherine Bryan, associate pathologist and specialist in tomato canker. Bacterian diseases in the cucumber family also absorb her time and talent.

When the bean and pea crops develop "miseries" there is Specialist Florence Hedges, pioneer in the field of plant pathology. Many are the botanical sick calls she has answered.

Panics in the flower world have been controlled by another veteran pathologist in the department, Miss Lucia McCulloch. An expert on diseases of ornamental plants, this gifted diagnostician has developed remedies for a number of serious ailments common to gladioli and other flowers. With true medical technique, she takes the life history of each patient before she recommends treatment.

The humble potato has professional attention in its sick hours from Miss Lillian Cash, who concentrates on its well-being. Then there are Miss Agnes Quirk and Miss Eda Fawcett, who devote their time scientifically to the health problems of other plants. Both have contributed valuable aid in curbing plant diseases.

All of which goes to prove that human beings aren't the only ones who, when disease threatens, have the scientific world at their elbow.

Girl Says Using Cigarettes Hits Charm, Health

Recent College Graduate Believes Men Prefer Feminine Type.

THE girl who flaunted her cigarette in the face of shocked onlookers a few years ago spent more time explaining her actions than inhaling.

The girl who says "No thank you," when the cigarettes are passed today has just as much difficulty explaning why she does not smoke. Now a spokesman for this latter group has come forward.

Because so much has been said in defense of the girl who smokes, Dorothy Dyer Akers, a recent college graduate, feels the other side of the story should be told. And under the auspices of the Methodist Temperance Union, she has written a pamphlet entitled "Why I Do Not Smoke." In this she has set forth some logical reasons for not smoking.

Gives Her Viewpoint.

Miss Akers explains that she does not attempt to give technical reasons for not smoking, she merely wishes to give the viewpoint of a normal, healthy member of the younger generation of women.

"I am 21 years old," she says, "and I want to be as attractive as possible. The first requirement for that is good health. I want a clear skin, a clean smile and breath untainted by tobacco.

"In time nicotine yellows the skin of the face as it does the fingers, causing tired lines, sharp features, a languish anemic look, a coarsened voice and a premature appearance of old age."

Moreover, Miss Akers contends it is incongruous to see girls in fluttery chiffons puffing away at cigarettes.

"An old woman in a dirty shawl puffing away on a corncob pipe is not so grotesque as a pretty girl in trailing evening dress who has her mouth askew to accommodate the ubiquitous cigarette," she declares.

Sees Health Injury.

As if the outward affects were not bad enough, the girl who smokes injures her health, according to Miss Akers. Medical research shows that smoking aids the progress of disease, impairs efficiency and athletic power, she says.

But the greatest argument against smoking for girls, Miss Akers believes, is that men don't like it.

"However sophisticated a man be, he doesn't like to see a girl smoke," she says, "most of them say it just gets them, that they like to see women who are feminine, and it is not feminine to smoke. It jars on one's sense of the esthetic, they say."

"And so," Miss Akers concludes, "I do not smoke. I trust to keep my good health, clear complexion, strong white teeth, clean breath, personal liberty and my self-respect. Also I shall keep my pin money—or at least see that it is spent where it does not literally go up in smoke."

Skim Milk, Banana Diet Cuts Weight

CHICAGO, May 31 (U.P.).—Three girls completed an experimental 30-day banana and skim milk diet today with a total loss in weight of almost 32 pounds.

The experiment, according to Dr. Herman N. Bundensen, president of the board of health, who conducted it, established that dieting to reduce is practical, easy and healthful.

Alice Joy, Felicia Terry and Deon Craddock, subjects of the experiment, were all overweight. Alice lost 9¼ pounds, Felicia 14 pounds and Deon 8½ pounds.

Alice subsisted on six bananas and three glasses of skimmed milk daily for the first six days. Subsequently other foods were added to her diet. The other girls followed a similar program modified to their cases.

"It is perfectly possible for any girl to do what these girls have done," Dr. Bundensen said.

Some Planning Speech Tours

Talks Before Women's Clubs Favorite Way of Participating.

Many Are Well Known Throughout Their Districts.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

"'Father, who is that man at the gate?' 'Hush, my child, 'tis a candidate.'"

IF these lines, which began an old ballad popular in political campaigns, were brought up to date they would probably be revised thus:

"'Father, who are those folks at the gate?' 'Hush, my child, 'tis a man and his mate.'"

For the political campaign has ceased to be a one-man job and has become a family affair. The candidate's wife has become as familiar a figure at political rallies as the candidate himself.

This summer, then, while the candidate is—

"Greeting ladies with courtly grace
And kissing the baby's dirty face,"

his wife will be discussing the New Deal before women's clubs, telling all about her winter in Washington, and elucidating her husband's position on economic questions.

Mrs. Thomas F. Ford, wife of Representative Ford, of California, was a widely sought public speaker before her husband ever threw his hat into the political ring. As literary editor of a leading Los Angeles newspaper, Mrs. Ford has appeared frequently before women's groups for the past 13 years. As an authority on international trade and economics and as a member of the board of the League of Women Voters, she will talk this summer before numerous non-partisan organizations on the economics of the New Deal.

Another Californian, Mrs. Charles J. Colden, wife of Representative Colden, one of the most active of all assistant campaigners, attracted much favorable attention during her husband's last race. Speaking before women's organizations, mixed groups, on programs with her husband, and on programs by herself, Mrs. Colden will carry out much the same type of schedule this summer as she did in the last campaign.

Will Address Women.

Mrs. Richard Duncan, wife of Representative Duncan, of Missouri, is another who is planning to take an active part in the coming campaign. Prominent as a club woman and as Presbyterial president of upper Missouri, Mrs. Duncan is a popular speaker. This year she plans to attend all meetings where women will be present, and will talk before women's groups.

While Representative Brooks Fletcher, of Ohio, is finishing his survey of the State and his district relative to deciding whether he will run for governor or for reelection to the House, his accomplished wife, realizing a campaign is inevitable, is completing some unusual campaign plans.

In addition to sharing the platform with her husband, Mrs. Fletcher will give programs by herself, making use of the "interview system." A newspaper woman from the leading newspaper in the county where Mrs. Fletcher is speaking will be with her on the platform.

Questions and Answers.

As an active member of the Legion Auxiliary, Mrs. Lawrence E. Imhoff, wife of Representative Imhoff, is widely known in Ohio's Twentieth District. This year, Mrs. Imhoff will go with her husband on his campaign tour, and will talk before women's groups.

Mrs. Edward C. Moran, wife of Representative Moran, has already left Washington for her home in Rockland, Me., preparatory to helping her husband begin his campaign.

Mrs. Randolph Carpenter, wife of Representative Carpenter, of Kansas, will also talk to women's groups in her husband's district. While she is not planning to campaign for her husband this summer, she will frequently accompany him and make personal contacts with his constituents.

Many Congressional wives who go with their husbands on political trips act as silent partners.

Is "Official Valet."

"I am my husband's official chauffeur and valet," said Mrs. Frank Hood Lee, of Missouri. "I don't make any speeches, but I do go everywhere he goes during the campaign."

"I am personally acquainted with many persons throughout my husband's district," averred Mrs. James W. Mott, of Oregon. "For that reason, I usually go with Mr. Mott from town to town, although I don't make any speeches."

This same plan is followed by Mrs. Will Rogers, of Oklahoma, who although she is frequently invited to talk before women's groups, declines. "I leave the speeches to my husband," she asserted, "but I do enjoy traveling over the district with him.

Mrs. Harry W. Musselwhite, of Michigan, has another way of making herself known to her husband's constituents. All winter she has been writing letters on Washington events for the home newspaper. This summer she will go with her husband on his campaign tour.

Mrs. George Foulkes, of Michigan, is another who will take an active part in politics this summer. She will not be on the platform, but will be present at meetings where her husband speaks, making friends and establishing contacts.

Mrs. Otha Wearin is known to every constituent in the Seventh District of Ohio as she frequently accompanies her husband as his driver. Incidentally, she is posted on his position in regard to public questions and often speaks extemporaneously in his behalf.

THE MODERN CONGRESSIONAL WIFE puts her hand to the wheel in campaign years. In contrast to the politician's wife of the past who sat at home while husband angled for votes, the up-to-date wife accompanies her candidate-husband on his campaign tours as chauffeur, platform lecturer, or speaker before women's clubs.

DISTRICT FLORISTS are going to say lots of cheerful words with flowers to bed-ridden Washingtonians June 10. Mrs. Amelia Gude Thomas, above, is preparing lists of patients and making arrangements for the great event.

Dreams Do Come True At Friendship House

Settlement Project In Southeast Washington Today Will Celebrate Thirtieth Anniversary With Musical Pageant.

WHILE children in Russian, Italian and every sort of costume rushed in and out of the many rooms in the house, and instructors pelted her with questions, Miss Lydia Byrklin told something of her 25 years of work as head of the Friendship House, the first and only settlement house in Southeast Washington, which is celebrating its thirtieth anniversary today with a musical pageant.

"Dreams do come true," she said. "One of mine for years has been to have an orchestra in connection with the house. Well, now we've got it. It was organized last winter and John Hreachmack, flutist with the National Symphony Orchestra, is in charge. Here is the program of a recital we gave a while ago." The new orchestra evidently takes all the old masters in its stride, for the program was covered with the names of Beethoven, Wagner, Brahms, Bach and many others.

A dance orchestra is in the process of organization, so the weekly dances given at the house to entertain the young people of the neighborhood will have home-made music.

She walked out into the garden behind the old house, originally owned by the fifth mayor of the city. Underneath a small bower idylically draped in red roses is a miniature house, emblematic of another fulfilled dream of long standing.

"I've always wanted the children to have a playhouse," related Miss Byrklin. "And here it is. The older ones made it themselves with materials purchased by the gift of a kind donor, and the little ones use it constantly and have lots of fun in it."

Another wish is in the process of being granted the gray-haired mistress of the social and educational settlement house. "My faith in the possibility of dreams coming true grows with the years," she said. "For a long time I've wanted a summer camp to be run in conjunction with the house and to be used by old and young and both sexes, in rotation. We may be able to do it this summer. Usually if you say 'I will' hard enough, you can accomplish a thing."

"The depression hit our neighborhood terribly," and her kind face looked unhappy. "Our main efforts during those past dreadful days was to keep up people's courage. For when a person has lost that, he's lost just about everything. We're having a bit of trouble now, as a matter of fact. Our budget for this year is $3,000 short and that has to be scraped up somehow."

During Miss Byrklin's 25 years of service the house has been in and out of several buildings and finally settled in the present one. This house has history behind it. The main room where the children were noisily going through a last-minute rehearsal for the pageant was built especially to entertain Lafayette. In the front garden stand trees that were old then.

Flower-Day For Shut-Ins To Be June 10

Dealers in All Sections of U. S. Will Donate Blooms.

THE florists are going to say lots of cheering words with roses and sweet peas June 10. On that day thousands of shut-ins all over the country will receive flowers from members of the Florist Telegraph Delivery Association.

"We hope to give flowers to every sick person in the country on that day," Mrs. Amelia Gude Thomas, District representative of the association, said yesterday.

"We have sent to hospitals asking the names of all the patients, and we are broadcasting the news over the radio so people can send in the names of their sick friends. Headquarters report that more than 50,000 names have been sent in already, and I receive on the average of 50 in a day in Washington."

Mrs. Thomas is collecting the names of the patients, and arranging the cooperative store to which Washington florists will send their flowers to be delivered.

"All the flowers are to be neatly boxed, the sick person's name and the greeting written on the card," she explained. "The Postal and Western Union boys will hop the trucks and deliver the flowers. Each florist shop in town has agreed to furnish at least one truck and, if necessary, more."

Last June was the first year the florists sent flowers to all sick persons. This year the project is better organized and many more flowers will be sent. The florists plan to make this an annual custom.

No Apologies For New Deal Women Tol

Speakers at Democratic Luncheon Give Praise to President.

"NEVER explain anything. Never apologize. Go ahead and get something done—and let them howl," announced Miss Ellis Meredith at the annual luncheon meeting of the education committee of the National Woman's Democratic Club, yesterday at the Clubhouse, 1526 New Hampshire avenue northwest.

The "them" referred to were the critics of the New Deal. Miss Meredith prophesied renewed attacks on the Administration during the summer and urged the members of the club to fight this criticism valiantly in the different sections of the country to which they will go on their summer vacations. Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, president of the club, advocated "carrying the banner of the New Deal out to the mountains and the sea shore."

Mrs. Hamlin feels the deadliest weapon used against the Administration is that of ridicule, which may influence the fall elections to some extent. "We must stand up and fight to keep those antagonistic to the New Deal out of Congress," she said. "It is ridiculous to say the President is a dictator. He is an agent of Congress."

Mrs. C. L. Hendrickson spoke in favor of the Pure Food and Drug Act, mentioning the "perverted brainpower and vicious lobbies" opposing its passage. She was pleased over the reactions reported by various women's organizations in America which have been educating the public in regard to the need for such a bill.

Mrs. Edward P. Costigan, wife of Senator Costigan, who drew up the sugar bill, spoke on the improved sugar situation throughout the Middle West. She also cited praise of the New Deal from John Maynard Keynes, British economist, who wrote in a letter, "A great job . . . splendid experiment."

Miss M. Bakewell introduced the speakers.

Problem Child Shows Parent Needs Guiding

BACK OF nearly every problem child is a problem parent. This has been revealed in a study of 100 cases treated in child guidance. The study was made by Dr. Ruth M. Hubbard and Mrs. Christine F. Adams, of the child guidance clinic, Strong Memorial Hospital, Rochester, N. Y.

That parents rather than children need to be treated at the clinics was the conclusion reached in the study. It was found that the fault of the children's problem behavior was most frequent in parental attitudes and insight and that the success of the treatment was proportional to the extent to which it was directed toward the parents. The study showed, however, that in most clinics the treatment was directed chiefly toward the child.

The four most important factors in treatment of the 100 cases studied were cooperation of parents during treatment, degree of initial maladjustment, economic status and initial contact between clinic and family.

Prices Shrink As a Greeting For Summer

Dresses, Hats, Shoes and Jewelry Topple From Pedestal.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

VERY quietly, and very quickly, the manager of a downtown store did a wholesale job of slashing. Sitting at his desk with a stack of papers in front of him, he took a red pencil and set to work. Prices shrank as he went along. Dresses, hats, shoes, jewelry, all kinds of merchandise tumbled from their pedestal prices in a hail fellow well met manner for this "greetings to summer" sale.

Silk dresses that had been selling for a higher amount dropped suddenly to $5. Although the batch isn't very large, it's amazingly inclusive. Those ever-ready, always willing, cool and washable pongee "coolies" are down to 99 cents. These are loose, drapey, wrap-arounds which the wise housewife will keep close at hand. They will serve as summer bath robes, lightweight wraps for the afternoon nap, and convenient garments for traveling purposes. All of these have varicolored print trim.

Lace trimmed silk panel slips in sizes 32 to 44 are literally opportunity knocking at the stout woman's door. Many of these are available in size 44. They range from 32. They're $1.49 during the sale.

Summer seamstresses will have a grand chance to buy six spools of cotton thread, in black or white, for 45 cents.

Let's Get Lucky.

Whoever believes there's a curse on Friday even without a black cat, or turning over the salt, can counteract all bad luck in the offing by wearing a cluster of the "Lucky Sea Grapes."

These are little glass beads, a sea green color, strung in a grape cluster fashion, which come with a small gold pin all ready to clasp on to one's dress.

To Prevent Offense.

As an "ally of personal daintiness and charm, a perfect safeguard against the possibility of offense" a new cream deodorant takes its place on the counter of an F street store.

This white cream, with a delicately sweet and clean odor, quickly neutralizes acids that cause body odor. Once on, the skin absorbs it, and it remains for many hours to ward off offensive perspiration aromas.

Here is a deodorant so mild that it can not irritate the most sensitive skins. Furthermore, it is harmless to fragile frocks, and will never leave tell-tale marks behind.

It has already won popularity from its beneficial effect on feet. Rubbed in well, it keeps them cool and comfortable—and protects hose. This deodorant is a patented protector. It may be bought for 25 or 50 cents.

Picnic Essentials.

All the essentials for a picnic, except the picnickers and the food comes packed in a sporty looking case—a cross between a small trunk and a large suit case. The black cover with the one colored stripe suggests a gay time wherever it's taken.

It contains a top tray with six cups, a cold meat box, two hot food containers, six plates, knives, forks, and spoons, several jars, a can opener, salt and pepper.

The space beneath is for anything and everything including bathing regalia, sandwiches, and a spare tire.

Medal-Winning Cream.

American women are not, as a whole familiar with the products of a certain French cosmetician. One of his representatives has arrived at a downtown store, and in charming French accent will be delighted to explain her line of goods.

She said that Monsieur first came into the limelight about 30 years ago with his lipsticks, guaranteed indelible, and a powder base for dry skins. Over the course of the years, even after his popularity necessitated his adding to his lines, he always took a very special pride in this cream and lipstick and never ceased perfecting them. Several medals won at European expositions stand as tribute to the cream.

Handy Wash Cloths.

Shoppers in the market for wash cloths should take advantage of a current bargain. Three unusually fine ones, thick, soft, and very Turkish, are wrapped in a neat celophane package, priced at 23 cents.

Their contrasting pastel shades, plus the neatness with which they're done up, and the quality of the merchandise, make this an unusually tempting buy.

A Surprise Package.

A Florentine box, a myriad of colors, has a surprise for those who peep within. Neatly stacked, one on top of the other, are six Florentine coasters, all designed to match the box. They're alcohol proof, and washable. Their price is 50 cents.

Men Swimmers Select Trunks and Speed Suits

Generally Have Military Stripes Down the Sides, Cash Pockets, and Are Worn With White Canvas Belts; Tops Are Plain.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, June 1.—Local ordinances permitting, it's trunks . . . and trunks only . . . for men in this summer's swim on the so-called "fashionable" beaches. Where ordinances don't permit, it's still trunks, but trunks with shirts . . . the two-piece suit found from Montauk to Malibu.

That does not mean that the one-piece suit is out of the running. On the contrary, it is still top on the majority of beaches . . . in the well-liked speed model with cut-outs under the arms.

Knit Trunks Preffered.

Of the trunks, those preferred by most men are knitted. But bearing little resemblance to the former version of knit trunks.

They are well cut. Stream-lined. Obviously meant to swim in, not just bathe in. They are high in the waistband and in the thighs. They fit smoothly.

Generally they have military stripes down the sides, cash pockets, and are worn with white canvas belts. Many have the support feature.

Navy and royal are the tried and true conservative colors. Occasionally you'll see white trunks. Brown is a color getting a lot of attention.

For a second pair, gabardine is the thing. In fact it's making a strong bid for first choice in the same colors as the knit trunks.

Third choice is flannel, best in navy and preferred by men who want the most conservative.

A new trunk is made of acetate and will be liked because it is very light weight and as quick drying as any trunk ever made.

Most Tops Plain.

Tops worn with these trunks are mostly plain. White is outstanding. Light blue or gray are often combined with navy trunks and canary or tan with brown. There are also shirts with fine or inch-wide stripes.

The freedom men look for in swim outfits is particularly noticeable in these shirts. Backs and armholes are cut out to a point where you wonder how the shirt holds together. Yet, they always do. And look neat, too.

Men's swim suits of the types described are available in Washington in all the better sports and men's wear shops and department stores.

CAPITAL KITCHEN

Creole Dishes Becoming Increasingly Popular in All Sections.

By Susan Mills.

MANY chefs agree that New Orleans is the home of good cooking. Piquante and delicious, creole dishes become increasingly popular in all sections of the country.

Here are a couple of meat dishes, creole style. Try them and see how good they are.

Creole Beef Loaf.

1½ pounds chopped beef
½ pound chopped veal
¼ pound salt pork, finely chopped
1 chopped onion
1 chopped pepper
1 pimento cut in strips
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
Dash of paprika

Mix all the ingredients except the pimento. Grease a loaf pan and pack one-half the mixture into it solidly, so that no air spaces are present. Then place the strips of pimento on the meat lengthwise and cover with the rest of the meat. Bake in a hot oven 40 minutes, then turn out on a hot platter and serve with tomato sauce, made with drippings in the pan in place of butter.

Beef Kidney Fritters.

Make a batter of one cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt, and one teaspoon baking powder. Add the yolks of two eggs, beating well, and one tablespoon melted butter. Add a scant cup water, beat well, and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. If desired, the butter may be omitted and milk substituted for the water, with but little change in flavor. Add one cup cooked kidney and fry in deep fat, or on a hot greased griddle, until golden brown.

What Today Means

"Gemini."

If June 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 to 10 a. m., from 1 to 3 p. m. and from 6 to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 4 to 6 p. m. and from 9 to 11 p. m.

June 1 is favorable for the planning of both social and business activities. It may prove advisable to exercise an unusual amount of attention to being punctual for any type of engagement you have, as tardiness might cause offense. A prevalence of nervous energy will probably be apparent among people engaged in commercial lines, so it might be wise to make your conversations short and to the point. The indulgence in superfluous words and a disregard for time are apt to arouse irritation. Money will in all likelihood circulate more freely than it has in several days, and many whose natal day this is will be financially benefited. The evening will be auspicious for sentimental affairs, for women especially will be romantically inclined, if all conditions are conducive and the right man is on hand. People practicing any form of deception will discover to their sorrow that "honesty is the best policy," for their duplicity runs an excellent chance of being exposed.

If a woman and born on June 1 you are gifted with the happy faculty of not having to depend on other people to be entertained. Being endowed with an active intellectuality and imagination, books will always provide you with almost as much pleasure as the average individual you know could possibly offer. You are inclined to be too easily affected by trifling things, and frequently regard as personal comments that are made as generalities. Love will prove a powerful factor in your affairs, and through it great happiness will be gained. Work that will throw you in contact with books or an intellectual class of people where your individual personality counts will possibly prove the most congenial sort for a person of your distinctive type.

The child born on June 1 will as it grows up develop into a perfectly normal, healthy and intelligent youngster, requiring no more and certainly no less care than any well-reared child should have. Having plenty of "pep," its general deportment will require the proper amount of supervision. Being no different than the average energetic child who is not a prodigy, care will have to be exercised if you expect diligent application where school work is involved.

The man born on June 1 succeeds best if allowed his natural trend, and is not under constant supervision. Honest, capable and energetic, his vocabulary does not include the word "failure" in it. He makes an ideal husband and father.

Successful people born on June 1:

Caroline Lee Hentz, author and poet.

Charles G. Eastman, editor and poet.

Thomas W. Ferry, statesman.

John B. Hood, Confederate general.

Eben Tourjee, musician.

Hugo Munsterberg, psychologist.

The Talking Sparrow Murders

BY DARWIN TEILHET

The Story So Far.

"A sparrow down there spoke to me. It said distinctly, 'Help! I'm caught!'" With these strange words, Kohlmann, the big industrialist, fell, shot, at Tatson's feet as he was crossing a Heidelberg street. Tatson was an American engineer, in a hurry to get home to a job which wouldn't wait. He was arrested, and then released on parole through the efforts of Carlson, his business friend at the plant not far from Heidelberg. But instead of proving his innocence, Tatson seemed every day to become more involved in Kohlmann's murder. In fact, many people were now involved in its web; Spaiger, accountant at the bank, also murdered, leaving behind a shortage in his accounts; Geigen, who was buying the plant, and his fiancee, Elaine Edrich, who had been Kohlmann's ward; Taubek, the Nazi leader, who had tried to kill Tatson; Walther Kohlmann, who was reported away on business and didn't come home even for his father's funeral; the mysterious La Roc, with his many letters from brokers; charming, half-Jewish Mischa Dryshenzoff, fleeing from Nazi brutalities, yet apparently working with a Nazi, and finally, Carlson, of the plant, always offering to assist Tatson.

Mischa, whose fortunes seemed somehow linked to those of Tatson, helped him to escape from Taubek, the two fleeing to the Dolphin Inn. There Tatson left her, to seek help from the police, only to discover that the Dolphin was Taubek's stronghold. In terror he rushed back to it and found a gory scene. Taubek, the innkeeper and the cook were dead. Mischa had disappeared. After police told Tatson that he was free to leave for America, he went to keep an appointment with his old friend Elaine. He soon learned that being given his freedom was only a trick. Kresch, the chief of police, had hoped he'd lead them to the missing Mischa, whose whereabouts Tatson did not know himself.

Now, let Tatson himself go on with the story:

A MAN in a tight corduroy suit caught up with me half way down the steep lane from the Schloss to the inclined railway. A pair of huge field glasses bumped against his side. "Herr Tat-sohn, my auto is waiting at the station. You will come with me.

"And why should I come with you?"

"I am from the Polizeiamt. I was to follow you until you met the girl. Only you did not meet the right girl."

Kresch was in the little room with the big window. He was examining a map on the wall when we entered. "Good afternoon, Herr Tat-zohn. Where is the girl, Rabronn?"

"It wasn't Fraulein Dryshenzoff," Rabronn hastily explained. "This one was large and with gold hair——"

"Your idea was excellent," I said to Kresch. "Only I didn't meet Fraulein Dryshenzoff. It was Fraulein Edrich. I wanted to say good-by. Now, may I go?"

Kresch snapped at his detective like an irritated mud turtle, sent him out of the room and then turned to me.

"I was sure you would see Fraulein Dryshenzoff."

"This isn't the first time you were mistaken."

"You must help me," he said at last, going to his desk and picking up a sheaf of telegrams. He pushed me into a chair and thrust the telegrams into my hands. "Read them. These telegrams contain all the information we can find at the present concerning La Roc. After you read them and the other information I have to show you on Walther Kohlmann, perhaps you will try to assist us and explain the talking sparrow."

"I've told you all about the talking sparrow."

Another Murder Feared.

"Herr Tat-zohn, unless you can remember exactly what Herr Kohlmann said, I am afraid we will be unable to prevent his son from being murdered. Now, read, if you please."

Number one was dated February 9, 1933, and was sent to S. N. La Roc at 22B Brunstrasse, Mannheim—Mischa's address.

"Require 500,000 francs by tomorrow to maintain margin. Peletier et Cie."

Number two was sent to Peletier et Cie, Paris, from Mannheim.

"Money wired today. La R."

Number three was again for La Roc at Mannheim, and dated February 20.

"Two hundred thousand francs more required to support margins. Market dropping dangerously. Peletier et Cie."

Number four was from La Roc to Peletier et Cie, Paris, and dated February 22.

"Two hundred thousand francs wired today stop. Impossible to obtain more stop. Sell if shares continue to drop and take loss. La R."

Kresch opened a great square pasteboard folder and extracted from it several copies of Le Temps. This French newspaper carries complete financial quotations. Here are marked paragraphs I've made after reading the telegrams."

Dividend Passed.

The first paragraph was in the February 9 number of Le Temps.

"The Etablissement d'Arveaun announced today it would be necessary to pass the regular semiannual dividend."

The second paragraph was dated February 22.

"Rumors of the reorganization of the Establissement d'Arveaun have sent their shares down to a new record low. Peletier et Cie., who have hitherto firmly supported the Etablissements d'Arveaun, are selling heavily.

"Spalger was speculating in shares of the Etablissement d'Arveaun!" I exclaimed. "That must have been what Taubek's syndicate was doing. Spalger was using the name 'La Roc' to protect himself, planning to make a coup on the side from the money he stole from the factory! Do you think Taubek found out what he was doing?"

"You haven't finished the marked paragraphs," Kresch reminded me stolidly.

The final paragraph was in March 5 issue of Le Temps.

"The Etablissement d'Arveaun was formally declared bankrupt this morning when suit was instituted by the majority creditors."

"The telegrams were sent over to us from Mannheim three hours ago," explained Kresch, swallowing so rapidly that his ears twitched. "At the same time I sent a wire to Peletier et Cie. You will remember they issued the statement that Walther Kohlmann was in Paris negotiating with them?"

Another Telegram Read.

He waddled from his desk to the table where he picked up the final telegram, received from Peletier et Cie, half an hour ago, and gave it to me.

"Kresch Heidelberg police Heidelberg Germany we were informed by valued client La Roc Mannheim Walther Kohlmann in Paris stop Requested to issue information by La Roc explaining business reasons stop We have had no connections with Walther Kohlmann stop Suggest you see La Roc 22 B Brunstrasse Mannheim stop Our actions were favor to La Roc and we have given your message to our lawyers who advise us we were thoroughly within our rights stop Because of present conditions in Germany we will be unable to come to Heidelberg as requested stop Isadore Weisenkind President Peletier et Cie."

"I think any Isadore Weisenkind would be a little disturbed by 'present conditions in Germany,'" commented Kresch unemotionally.

"However, we must work rapidly. You are the only one who can still give us any information. You must attempt to make a last effort to recall what Herr Kohlmann tried to say to you."

"But I've told you."

"No nonsense concerning the talking sparrow, Herr Tat-zohn. I want the truth."

I repeated my story at least 15 times. Finally Kresch gave up and let me go. "I am free to leave Heidelberg?" I asked.

"I shall tell you tomorrow."

I was tired. It was a relief to get into my room. After emptying my last drop of whisky, bathing my face in cold water, I went to the desk for a cigarette. My hearing is fairly acute and I thought I heard a tiny, furtive noise. Backing to the door, I called "Who's there?" The lid of my great trunk by the end of the bed slowly lifted. Mischa stuck her head over the edge like a grinning jack-in-the-box. She said: "I didn't know if it was you until I heard your voice. Frightened you, didn't I?"

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Heat Cramps.

The cause of heat cramps, the way to prevent them, and the way to cure them can be accepted as proved. The cause is a deficiency of salt in the tissues of the body, resulting from profuse sweating. Prevention consists in supplying an extra allowance of salt to all who work in hot places. The cure is closely related to the means of prevention.

This information has been known for some time and many base their practices on it; but there has recently come to hand some additional scientific proof. The men who work on the Boulder Dam, located on the Colorado River, are under conditions that induce very heavy sweating. The air is very hot and dry. Most of the labor is done in space that is walled around in a way that makes for stagnation of the air.

Harvard research laboratory has been investigating the effect of bright sunlight, great heat, and low humidity on the laborers engaged in building this dam. A man doing heavy labor under these circumstances sweats about 10 quarts a day. Sweat consists of water and salt and not much else. To compensate the loss of salt in sweat and in other excretions and secretions, it is necessary to take in from one to three hundred grains a day. In ordinary circumstances there is more than enough salt in the food to supply the loss. In fact, the average man on the average day eats more salt than he needs and is somewhat harmed thereby. On the other hand, men who sweat very freely because of hard manual labor, or because they are in hot air, or because the weather is hot, or who sweat excessively because of disease, suffer from salt deficiency. The most striking effect of this is a disorder which goes by the name of heat cramps.

The blood must always maintain a proper proportion of salt in order that it may do its work properly. To accomplish this it robs the tissues of some of their salt. Since this substance serves to anchor water in the tissues, when the saltiness fails, thirst is experienced. To supply the several pints of water needed on a hot day it is necessary to drink a great deal of water as well as to eat watery foods. In spite of the heavy intake, not sufficient water will be retained within the body unless there be an increase in the salt intake.

1,000 Expected On Scout Trip To Roosevelt

Excursion Tomorrow Will Acquaint Troops With Camp.

Coming Events.

Tomorrow—One-day "big trip" to Camp Roosevelt.

June 9 and 10—Fourth Division camporee at Camp Wilson.

Friday, June 15—Camp Wilson opens.

Saturday, June 16—Court of awards, 8 p. m., Powell Junior High School. Field day and inspection; Rockville-Bethesda Division at Bethesda.

Friday, June 22—Scout Day at Glen Echo.

Saturday, June 23—Courts at Camp Wilson begin.

Monday, June 25—Camp Roosevelt opens.

Saturday, June 30—Courts at Camp Roosevelt open.

Thousand Expected on Big Trip.

One thousand Boy Scouts are expected to make the "big trip" to Camp Roosevelt tomorrow.

"Let's make the attendance on this year's trip the biggest ever," E. C. Hartung, general chairman of the trip, has challenged the troops.

This annual one-day excursion of Scouts, scouters and Scout fathers is one of the big events of the council program, having as its objective the providing of a taste of camp for a large number of Scouts.

The delegation coming from all sections of the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia will assemble at the District Line station tomorrow at 9 a. m. The train will leave at 9:30 a. m. Each Scout should bring lunch. The round trip fare is 50 cents.

Registrations for Summer Camp.

Several dozen applications for Camp Roosevelt have been filed at Scout Headquarters and probably more than 100 will come in during the next week.

Scouts from each troop are encouraged to come to camp as a unit where they will live together as a group. A Scout can get more hours of concentrated Scouting in a two-week period at camp than in many months at home.

Troops Urged to Use Wilson.

Camp Wilson at Burnt Mills, Md., will open on June 15, with Scoutmaster J. W. Loftis as camp director. Plans are under way for the development of a new section of the camp property and a possible project of building a bridge.

A court will be held at Camp Wilson on the first and third Saturdays each month.

Training Through Summer Months.

Opportunities for Scout leaders to increase Scouting knowledge will be provided during the summer months, as well as during the rest of the year. Many leaders have more leisure during the summer months, which coupled with the cool training room at 1018 Vermont avenue, helps the forward chance for training.

A course in story telling materials and methods will begin at 7:20 p. m., June 13, and another course on photography, under Scoutmaster I. N. Gullickson, will begin June 18, at 7:30 p. m.

Advancement Opportunities.

More courts of review and courts of honor will be available to Scouts during the summer months than during the balance of the year. Courts will be held at Camp Roosevelt each Saturday beginning June 30. Courts will be held at Camp Wilson on the first and third Saturdays of each month and at Peck Chapel on the second and fourth Saturdays of the month.

Indications are that the court of awards at Powell Junior High School on June 16 will be one of the largest held.

Scouts Anticipate Boat Trip.

Several hundred Scouts and Scout leaders will leave at 10 a. m. on June 9, on the Wilson Line boat for Marshall Hall, to participate in a day of fun.

Scouts Hold Parents Days.

Nearly 300 Cubs and their parents and leaders spent last Saturday at Marshall Hall in the second annual cub parents' day program.

In the activities meet first honors were won by Pack 404, conducted by the Francis Scott Key Parent-Teacher Association; second place went to Pack 452, conducted by the All Saints Episcopal Church, Chevy Chase, and third, to Pack 442, conducted by All Souls Unitarian Church. First-place winners follow:

50-yard dash for Wolf Cubs—Max Pusey, Pack 452.

50-yard dash for Bear Cubs—Billy Mann, Pack 442.

50-yard dash for Lion Cubs—Joseph Tanney, Pack 404.

Hop, skip and jump for Wolf Cubs—Eugene Sessions, Pack 447.

Hop, skip and jump for Bear Cubs—Eugene Gott, Pack 452.

Hop, skip and jump for Lion Cubs—Fred Bartelmes, Pack 404.

In the relay race Pack 452 came out first, with Packs 442 and 404 close behind. In the three-legged race Pack 404 scored first place with Packs 442 and 452 close behind. The wheelbarrow relay was won by Pack 412.

The Boy Scout first aid team comprised Fred Lemly, Joe Fox, David Malone, John O'Malley and Dick Albee, of Troop 72.

Overnight Camping Popular.

Regardless of weather conditions, Scout patrols from all sections of Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia have demonstrated in recent camporees that "they can take it."

Jay Bird Tells Hound Dog About It.

When Hound Dog left Howler, Monday morning, he went back to Blackie's house. He didn't know what to expect to find, for he hadn't heard a word from Blackie since he left to go to see Howler Saturday night.

But he felt sure that he would find somebody there who could tell him all he wanted to know. And, sure enough, there sat Jay Bird on the step looking like he was just waiting for him.

"Howdy," said Hound Dog. "Do hurry up and tell me all about everything; for I haven't had any news since I left here Saturday night. From the looks of things over at Uncle Joe's, I reckon you folks had a pretty good time."

"Well," said Jay Bird, "we really didn't get sleepy over there, and Blackie and the other boys seemed to enjoy it. When you and Howler left for Mr. Man's house, I came home and told Blackie that you had gone. Blackie said he would just love to see how it looked around there with Uncle Joe and Howler both gone; and so he and all the others went over to see the sights."

And then Jay Bird told Hound Dog all about what a time the woods folks had at Uncle Joe's, and how

Blackie had taken the same old wheelbarrow that he had tumbled over at the garden gate that night when Uncle Joe shot at him, and had hauled his bee-gum and other things to the wagon in it. It seemed such a good joke that they both had a good laugh over it.

Lots of Biscuits.

"Well, what about some breakfast? Did Blackie leave anything for me?"

"Come in and see," said Jay Bird. And when Hound Dog went in he found on Blackie's table a big piece of roast pig and a lot of biscuits.

"Blackie is a pretty good old scout," said Hound Dog. "He never forgets his friends, and he certainly did leave me a nice breakfast. And he never does get ugly and quarrelsome, no matter what happens. I never have seen him mad with anybody, or if he was mad, he didn't let anybody know it."

"He doesn't get mad," said Jay Bird. "Even that night when Uncle Joe came so near killing him, he didn't say a single word about getting even. He just said he guessed things would come out all right after a while, and it does look like they have come out about right. Blackie never worries about anything. He is mighty fond of something good to eat, but if he has to go to bed without any supper he doesn't say a thing about it. He has a lot more sense than some folks I've seen."

All Loved Blackie.

Hound Dog took a pretty good while to eat his breakfast, and kept on talking to Jay Bird about Blackie. The truth is that everybody that had joined Blackie's family soon got so in love with him that they felt lonesome when he wasn't around, and Hound Dog was beginning to want to see him.

But he didn't want to start to catch up with the wagon till he knew what Uncle Joe was going to do to Howler, and he couldn't know anything about that till Uncle Joe came home; so he decided to stay on at Blackie's house till things got better settled with Howler. Hound Dog hadn't done much sleeping the night before, so he said he would take a nap while Jay Bird went over to Uncle Joe's to see what happened when he came back home.

You already know what Jay Bird saw Howler doing, and heard him telling Uncle Joe about the fight and robbery; so there's no use telling it to you again. When Jay Bird came back and told Hound Dog that Uncle Joe hadn't whipped Howler, nor even scolded him, he felt lots better; for he had been afraid that Uncle Joe would beat Howler for not killing some of the robbers.

But Hound Dog wasn't satisfied to leave yet, so he said he was going out and get a rabbit for his dinner, and they would stay overnight, and maybe something would yet happen that would make him want to take Howler away from Uncle Joe's.

And sure enough, something did happen.

463 Middies Get Diplomas At Annapolis

New York Fleet Review Keeps President From Attending.

Rear-Admiral Hart Cites Need of Dignity and Service to Nation.

By Francis O. White.

Annapolis, Md., May 31.—Conveying greetings from their commander in chief, President Roosevelt, who was unable to attend because of the fleet review in New York, Rear Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, today presented diplomas to a class of 463 midshipmen graduates from the United States Naval Academy.

The awards were made immediately after Rear Admiral Thomas C. Hart, superintendent of the Academy, had completed the principal address, in which he recounted the great strides made by the school since it's foundation 88 years ago. Admiral Hart also conferred the degree of bachelor of science upon all graduates in accordance with an act of Congress adopted less than two years ago.

With the receipt of diplomas, 332 of the graduates automatically were commissioned ensigns in the regular line; 25 were commissioned second lieutenants in the Marine Corps, by their own choice; the resignations of 105 tendered because of physical disqualifications or other reasons, were accepted; and one, a Filipino, received a honorable discharge, to become an officer in the Philippine Scouts.

Marked by Pomp.

The graduation exercises were held in the presence of a company of distinguished officials and were marked by the usual pomp and dignity. Governor Albert C. Ritchie was among the guests. Also in the group was Rear Admiral Purnell F. Harrington (retired), 89, oldest living graduate of the academy, who was born the year before the institution was founded. Others on the official platform were Rear Admiral J. K. Taussig, assistant chief of naval operations; Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics; Rear Admiral Norman Smith, head of the bureau of yards and docks; Rear Admiral Harley H. Christy, president of the naval examining board; Rear Admiral E. S. Land, head of the bureau of construction and repair; Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, commanding the training squadron of the scouting fleet; Maj. Paul B. Malone, commanding the Third Corps Area, United States Army, and department heads and members of the faculty.

The ceremonies were opened with invocation prayer offered by Commander William N. Thomas, chaplain of the academy. Admiral Hart then addressed the class.

Lauds Quality of Men.

Asserting that the correct appraisement of a college must be based upon the product, he said the academy has produced both in quantity and quality. He said the academy has yearly turned out citizens of high standards, men trained primarily for the Navy, but many of whom have made their mark elsewhere.

Admiral Hart gave the graduates a two-point program of advice. First, he said, is the preservation and safeguarding of health to fit them for the tasks that lie ahead.

"Such assets as poise, erect bearing, snappy alertness, careful dress, correct grooming, a ready smile and obvious virility which goes with health—can be at the disposal of all of you," he said.

Admiral Hart reminded the graduates that their future lot will be to follow, as well as to lead, and to do it faithfully and loyally.

"Wherever and whatever you find yourselves, remember that you are trained for service and that services comes before self."

Concluding his address, Admiral Hart presented Admiral Leahy. The graduates in starchy white uniforms were seated immediately in front and to either side of the official rostrum. First to receive diplomas were the 24 men who attained a "star" rating, led by John Preston Wiley, of Washington, D. C. The rest of the parchments were picked at random from a receptacle.

After all diplomas had been presented, the graduates arose and sang one verse of the alma mater song, "Navy Blue and Gold." And scarcely had the words of the benediction, pronounced by Chaplain Thomas, resounded through the huge building, than they followed the customary scene of graduates tossing their caps into the air, to be scrambled for by girls and young children, and then the mad rush among undergraduates, particularly the plebes (now third classmen), for their snake dance and invasion of the sacred precincts of "Lover's Lane," a gravelled walk, which tradition forbids first year men to tread.

Following the exercises Superintendent Hart was luncheon hostess to members of the official party.

Tomorrow morning, the new first and third-class midshipmen will embark on the battleships Wyoming and Arkansas on the summer practice cruise to European waters. The second classmen will remain at Annapolis the major part of the summer to undergo intensive instruction in navigation engineering and aviation tactics.

Hurrah! We're Sorry to Leave But Glad School's Over

Associated Press Photos.

The happiness of 463 midshipmen who graduated from the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., yesterday is evident in these photographs. Left to right—Miss Kay Brice, of New York City, pins the epaulets of a naval ensign upon the shoulders of F. G. Marshall, jr., of Rockville, Md.; diplomas won, the graduates fling their caps into the air to let their academy mates and visitors, who eagerly scramble for the headgear, know they're glad it's all over; perhaps another shout of joy went up after this osculatory custom at the ceremony between sweethearts, in this case Miss Helen Fisher, of Annapolis, and W. F. Cassidy, of Fort Worth, Tex., was concluded.

White House Seen Leaning To Radcliffe

Governorship Candidate in Maryland Silent About Visit to Roosevelt.

Baltimore, May 31 (Spl.).—Reports were current here today that the candidacy of George L. Radcliffe, regional director of the Public Works Administration, for the Democratic nomination for Governor, would be looked upon favorably by the White House.

Mr. Radcliffe returned to Baltimore today from New York. He willingly confirmed reports spread by his backers that he had called upon President Roosevelt in Washington last week. He and the President have been friends for many years.

"I talked with the President, but I can't bring the White House into this," he said. "All I can say is that, I went to the White House on other matters."

His supporters were jubilant at even that much of a statement from him. They pointed out that although he may have gone to the White House to discuss other matters, there was nothing to prevent him and the President from discussing the Maryland political situation—and also Mr. Radcliffe's possible candidacy—after the original object of the visit had been accomplished.

Mr. Radcliffe was advanced by a group of Eastern Shore Democratic leaders as a compromise candidate for the governorship. The Shore delegation urged that both Gov. Ritchie and Mayor Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore, quit the race in the interests of party harmony and leave the field open to Mr. Radcliffe. Both Ritchie and Jackson declined to withdraw.

Young Enters Race.

James A. Young, clerk of court of appeals, announced today he will be a candidate for reelection. There have been reports that the Ritchie faction had virtually picked on Walter J. Mitchell, of southern Maryland, president of the State Senate, as candidate on the Governor's ticket for the court clerk post. Possibility that Mr. Young will be the candidate, after all, was seen in his announcement that he would run again.

Meanwhile, back from what he termed a "highly successful visit" to the Eastern Shore, Harry W. Nice, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, left today for Union Bridge, Carroll County, where he was to speak before the firemen's picnic.

His principal address on his Eastern Shore tour was made at Chestertown, in Kent County, where 3,000 people gathered in the town's public square to hear him pledge a square deal for the veterans.

Mr. Nice was introduced to the crowd by Mayor Charles Satterfield, of Chestertown. The candidate was assured that the Republicans would have a clean sweep in the general election on the Eastern Shore next fall.

Chief Reveals Schools' Duty To Students

Persons Who Never Attend College Big Problem of Educators.

Charlottesville, Va., May 31 (Spl.).—High schools should recognize that their greater responsibility is to students who do not attend college, Supt. A. L. Bennett said today before conferring diplomas on 100 graduates of seven Albemarle high schools.

"Our high schools are confining their offerings to the traditional college preparatory courses," he said. "Not more than one-third of our pupils will go to an institution of higher learning. We must recognize that our great responsibility is to that great majority whose formal training will end before they graduate from the secondary school.

"It is therefore imperative that we offer courses that will better fit our boys and girls for life and that great amount of leisure time which the people of this and the next generation will have. Such courses as art, music, domestic science and extension of vocational agriculture and additional courses in the social sciences must be provided."

Winners of the McIntire scholarships of $100 for character and scholarship were Miss Bertha Shapleigh, of Stony Point, and Billy Oliver, of Red Hill.

The scholarship cup was presented to Stony Point, while the Rally Day Cup was presented to Earlysville High and the Chorus Cup to Red Hill.

Station Agent Sought After Bold Robbery

Towson, Md., Officials Fear Foul Play; Trail of Blood Only Clew.

Towson, Md., May 31 (Spl.).—A trail of blood in a railroad station here was the only clew police had today to aid them in a search for Rudolph A. Miller, station agent for the Maryland & Pennsylvania Railroad, missing since last night.

Police believe Miller was attacked in the station, beaten into unconsciousness and kidnaped by bandits.

The office had been ransacked and an undetermined sum of money, the day's receipts, was missing. Auditors are seeking to determine from Miller's accounts how much was in the cash drawer.

When news spread today that Miller was missing, police were deluged with telephone calls from persons anxious to aid in the hunt.

As police reconstruct the supposed attack, Miller was alone in the station office when burglars entered and struck him on the head. He evidently put up a struggle, for the office was in confusion today when a postal employe discovered the agent's absence.

Milller had been employed by the railroad for about ten years. He has a wife and five children.

Brown Hints Trio Involved In Girl Death

Clubbers' Victim Recalls Three "Walked Up to My Car."

Unkempt Strangers Are Sought as Slayers of Miss Kurz.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 31 (Spl.).—"Three people walked up to my car—" was the clue given this morning to police by Milton J. Brown, Fredericksburg Battlefield Park attack victim, who emerged from his coma long enough to make his first direct reference to the brutal assault a week ago Sunday night in which his sweetheart, Miss Fannie Kurz, suffered fatal injuries and he was left for dead.

Residents here recall that three strange men were seen near the scene of the crime on the day the two victims were found. Parties who saw them revealed they stopped several times and in other ways acted suspiciously. They were described as unkempt and strangers in this section, and were said to be driving an old car. These facts have caused detectives to renew efforts on the robbery angle of the case.

The 21-year-old filling station employe lost his strength and relapsed into the coma which has engulfed him almost continually since the attack before he could reveal to a friend seated at his bedside the identity of the three assailants.

Victim Gaining Ground.

For a few moments his mind was clear and he talked coherently about a new car his friend had just bought. The effort to speak tired him before he could give the information which might have solved the sensational crime which has aroused this countryside.

The victim is slowly but surely regaining his strength, and police and doctors hope that possibly within a few hours he may be able to reveal the perpetrators of the most vicious crime in police annals of this section.

Authorities emphatically denied persistent rumors that a man suspected by Department of Justice authorities has been arrested and imprisoned in the Alexandria Jail. The man in question was at work at 2 p. m. today and has not been questioned by any one investigating the case.

In spite of Brown's promised revival, comments of Washington detectives and others working on the case lead them to believe that the trail of the mysterious assailant of Brown and Miss Kurz is getting colder. Today no arrests had been made, and none are expected in the immediate future.

Love Theory Fades.

Activities of Lee Oliver and L. R. Burruss, Department of Justice operatives, in combing Spotsylvania County and questioning several persons, led to the belief that authorities are again concentrating on the robbery motif after several days of work on the love frustration theory.

Though Brown's mind is not yet clear and his memory in all probability will not be dependable for some time, his recovery and explanation of the assault is the chief hope of detectives seeking to unravel the mystery.

Brown has several times mentioned the name of a man unknown in this section, whom authorities are unable to link in any manner with the case.

Lott - Stoefen Clinch Cup Victory

Beat Topia-Mestre in Davis Cup Doubles in Straight Sets.

Win Eliminates Mexico; Van Ryn May Not Play With U. S. Team.

BALTIMORE, May 31 (AP).—A straight-set victory by the United States National champion doubles tennis team, George Lott and Lester Stofen, today ended whatever faint hope the Mexican Davis Cup team had to win the North American zone series.

With yesterday's two singles victories, the United States' triumph today gave the team a 3-to-0 lead, which not even the highly improbable sweep of the two remaining singles matches Saturday by the Mexicans can overcome.

The score of today's win for Lott and Stoefen over Dr. Ricardo Tapia and Eduardo Mestre, jr., was 6—4, 6—4, 6—4.

Van Ryn May Not Play.

Earlier in the day, the news had been received that the plan of the United States to use Lott and John Van Ryn as the doubles combination against European Davis Cup competitors might have to be revised.

R. Norris Williams 2d, nonplaying captain of the American team, revealed that Van Ryn felt that he could not abandon his brokerage business in Philadelphia for the protracted European stay and was considering remaining at home.

"It will be unfortunate if he can't be with us," said Williams, who later added that he believed the Lott-Van Ryn combination better than the Lott-Stoefen combination used today against Mexico.

Williams said Van Ryn was expected to make his final decision before the end of the week. Van Ryn did not accompany the team to Baltimore.

Roldan Replaces Reyes

After today's match, Tapia said he planned to substitute Angel Roldan, who had been scheduled to play with Mestre in the doubles, for Reyes Saturday. Roldan was withdrawn today at the last minute because of a slight illness. In the other match, Tapia will play Wood.

In an exhibition match played after the Davis Cup match today, Williams and Frank Shields, top-ranking American player, defeated the Mexican pair, Angel Roldan and Esteban M. Reyes, by a 6—4, 6—2, 6—4 score.

Hard Work Marks Day for Max Baer

Champion Carnera Takes Hike and Auto Trip.

Asbury Park, N. J., May 31 (U.P.).—Max Baer, challenger for Primo Carnera's heavyweight title, went through a stiff training period today. He boxed eight rounds, punched the bag for three rounds more, did calesthenics, covered 8 miles on the road and finished by tipping the scales at 212.

Pompton Lakes, N. J., May 31 (U.P.).—A hike and a motor trip was Primo Carnera's training today for defense of his heavyweight title match with Max Baer, June 14. The Italian heavyweight champion said he never felt better.

Top Weight Assigned Cavalcade Tomorrow

Chicago, May 31 (AP).—Cavalcade will carry top weight of 126 pounds when he defends his claim to the 3-year-old championship against a field of fast-stepping rivals in the $25,000 added American Derby Saturday at Washington Park.

His weight, the same he carried to victory in the Kentuccky Derby, will be five pounds over that assigned to his Brookmeade stablemate, Time Clock; Mrs. J. H. Whitney's Singing Wood, and Plight, Texas Derby winner. Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery, second to Cavalcade in the Kentucky Derby, was given a weight impost of 118 pounds.

14th Home Run By Klein Aids Cubs' Win

Bush Takes 8th of Season as Pirates Lose 5th in Row, 11-5.

CHICAGO, May 31 (AP).—Chuck Klein's fourteenth home run, with two on base, combined with two doubles and two singles by Babe Herman today, gave the Chicago Cubs an 11-to-5 victory over Pittsburgh and a clean sweep of the three-game series.

The victory promoted the Cubs to a second-place tie with New York and dropped the Pirates, for whom it was the fifth straight defeat, into a fourth-place tie with Boston.

Klein's homer, his second in two days, came off Bill Swift in the first inning after Stan Hack singled and Woody English walked, and offset the three runs scored on Bush in the Pirate first.

Eighth for Bush.

Babe Herman drove in three runs and scored two himself, while Gabby Hartnett doubled with the bases filled in the fifth to score three more. The victory was the eighth for Guy Bush.

Helen Jacobs In French Net Final

Defeats Mme. Mathieu, Former Nemesis, in Semi-finals.

With Miss Palfrey, to Seek Doubles Title This Afternon.

PARIS, May 31 (AP).—Only Margaret (Peggy) Scriven, English holder of the title, today remained between Helen Hull Jacobs and her ambition to win the French hard court tennis championship.

The United States champion today brushed aside her long-time nemesis, Mme. Rene Mathieu, ranking French player, in the semifinals, 6—2, 6—2, and qualified to meet the English girl in the final.

Twice before Mme. Mathieu had halted Miss Jacobs' bid for the title, last year in the semifinal round, but she was no match for the American today.

Miss Scriven won her final brackets with a 7—5, 6—3 victory over Cilli Aussem, third ranking German player returning to competitio after two years of ill health.

Jacobs-Palfrey Win.

Tomorrow Miss Jacobs, paired with her Wightman Cup teammate, Sarah Palfrey, will try to gain the final round of women's doubles. They play Susan Noel, of England, and J. Jedrezowska, of Poland.

America also shared in another victory, Dorothy Andrus, of Stamford, Conn., pairing with Mme. Jung Henrotin, of France, to win a semifinals bracket in women's doubles. They defeated Mlle. Couquerque, of Holland, and Murial Thomas, of England, 0—6, 6—4, 6—4, and will meet Elizabeth Ryan, the former Californian, and Mme. Mathieu, the defending champions, in the other semifinal match tomorrow.

Jack Crawford, the Australian star and defending titleholder in men's singles, and Baron Gottfried von Cramm, young German Davis Cup leader, advanced to the finals.

Brown Victory To Net Tour Abroad

Gets Five Overseas Bouts If He Beats Risko Monday at Stadium

SHOULD Natie Brown succeed in upsetting the upsetter in his ten-round bout with Johnny Risko at Griffith Stadium Monday night, he probably will be signed for five bouts overseas under the promotion of the celebrated Jeff Dickson, it was learned yesterday. Dickson has been attempting to arrange a foreign rematch between Brown and Walter Neusel ever since the former held the German invader to a sensational draw some months ago.

So far, Neusel has flatly refused to again toss leather with Washington's adopted heavyweight, but Dickson feels that a win over Risko will give Brown enough background to justify a late summer and early fall barnstorming tour across the pond.

If negotiations are completed as expected, Brown will headline in all three of Dickson's arenas, namely, Albert Hall, in London; Palais Des Sports, Paris, and The Arena, Barcelona.

Risko will arrive in Washington tomorrow morning, and both he and Brown will take a public workout at 2:30 p. m. in a newly installed ring on the grounds for the Green Oaks Country Club, on the Leonardtown highway.

Joe Shimkus Dead From Mat Injury

Rassler, Listed Here May 24, Has Concussion.

New York, May 31 (AP).—Joe Shimkus, a heavyweight wrestler of Worcester, Mass., died in Polyclinic Hospital today of concussion of the brain.

Shimkus wrestled Babe Caddock to a draw in New Haven, Conn., on May 22 and 15 minutes after the start of his bout with Walter Padalak in Richmond, Va., on May 25 he became dizzy and was disqualified. He was 38 years old and had been wrestling 12 years.

Had it not rained here May 24, Washington might have figured in Shimkus' death, for he was listed to rassle Dick Raines in the curtain-raiser of that postponed show, which was rebooked for last night. It was because of the injury, which developed the next night in Richmond, that Shimkus was not held over with the other matmen on the card.

Belve Bean and Ralph Winegarner, of the Cleveland pitching staff, were nicked for eight runs and seven hits in the third inning. Thornton Lee followed on the mound for the Indians and pitched well until the ninth inning, when Zeke Bonura drove over Vosmik's head into the center-field bleachers for a home run, scoring Haas. It was Bonura's twelfth circuit drive of the season.

Records Fall, Tech Wins On Track

81½ Points, Greatest in History, Piled Up In Interhigh Meet.

Relay Victory Feature; Eastern is Second With 22½ Total.

THE greatest track and field team ever to wear the colors of a Washington high school inscribed itself a lofty and lasting place in the Capital's scholastic hall of fame yesterday as McKinley Tech turned the annual inter-high meet into a rout at Central Stadium, rolling up the highest point-total in its 37-year history and shattering four time-honored records in the process.

Racing into the spot-light with one of the fastest mile-relay achievements turned in this year in the East by a high school quartet, Tech's championship mile relay team of Norris Theis, Harold Lank, LeRoy Green and Byron Haden, broke all records for the team event in this section, traveling the four-lap distance in 3 minutes 28 seconds.

Eastern Is Second.

The relay victory brought Tech's point-total to 81½, giving it an unprecedented victory, with Eastern, the runner-up, trailing with 22½. Central was third with 12, and Roosevelt, making its first formal appearance in an inter-high meet, was fourth with 8. Western scored 2 points. The win gave Tech its second leg on the Princeton Cup as well as permanent possession of the trophy awarded annually to the champion.

While the relay performance stood out as the shining light of a brilliant afternoon's program, three Tech boys crowded each other for the individual honors, Green flashing to a sensational victory over Hayden in the quarter-mile in the record-breaking time of 51 2-5 seconds, Monroe Emmerich setting a new standard for the 220-yard low hurdles, and Bill Morrisette heaving the shot to a new record distance.

Green's time erased the eight-year-old record of 51 3-5, held by Horace Hebb, of Tech, while Emmerich broke a mark of 22 years' standing held by Paul Blackistone, of Central, by one-fifth of a second. Morisette's throw went 49 feet 3½ inches to beat the record of 48 feet 1½ inches, established in 1926 by John McDonald, of Tech.

Public Hearing Tomorrow On Horse Racing in District

WHETHER horse racing should be legalized in the District will be argued at a public hearing before the Senate District Committee in the committee room in the Capitol at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow.

Decision of the committee to hold a public hearing was announced by Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, committee chairman, following brief consideration at a committee meeting yesterday.

The bill has been passed by the House bu has been held up for some time in a District sub-committee headed by Senator Patrick A. McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, who some time ago announced he would prevent its passage. A few days ago, however, Senator McCarran said he would permit action on the the bill because it had been represented to him as important from an employment point of view.

The measure was reported to the full committee without recommendation and Senator McCarran said he had been informed that if it were enacted it would mean immediate expenditure of more than $1,000,000 in the District.

Several persons and organizations had registered opposition to the measure with him, he said, and he recommended that the full committee hold a public hearing. Proponents and opponents of the measure each will be given one hour to present their arguments tomorrow.

Penny Tourney Postponed.

The penny-a-putt tournament scheduled for women golfers today at Washington Golf and Country Club has been postponed until June 8, Mrs. C. B. Stewart, of the tournament committee, announced yesterday. The tournament is open to all club players in the District. There is no entrance fee.

Kibitzer, at $11.20, Wins in Feature Race at Charles Town by 5-Length Margin

Nisia Second; Pays $40.20 For Place

Modern Times is Third After Poor Start in Test Over Route.

Jim Moss Wins Fourth Race at $50.40; Daily Double Is $11.20.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHARLES TOWN, May 31.—Kibitzer, a 5-year-old son of Hourless, has been seeing the finish of races over the shoulders of other horses for many months. Today, he was given a chance to play himself when Modern Times was slow to get away from the post and, unlike most Kibitzers, who are long on talk and short on action, the horse made good. In fact, he made good by five lengths, which is the equivalent of a successful six no-trump bid at the best bridge tables.

Nisia, supposed to be only a dummy in the race, was second to pass the judges stand. She was a mere $38-to-1 betting proposition. Modern Times, which left the gate crying that the starter had made a miss deal, was third. The four others of the field were stretched out at various distances along the stretch.

Trained by Cheney.

Kibitzer is trained by Lance Cheney, who formerly rode home and fell off of some of the best steeplechase horses in the country. He sent a fit horse to the post for S. D. Miller, who owns the winner.

For about half of the mile and sixteenth route it appeared that Nisia, the longest shot in the race, was going to take all of the marbles. However, Kibitzer was just waiting to get a word in edgewise and he did on the backstretch. Jockey Edwards brought him up to take command and for all purposes including the pay-off, the race was over then and there.

Closing Rush Nipped.

Nisia kept in motion just long enough to stall off the closing rush of Modern Times, which had burned plenty of oil after that tardy getaway.

The program, an interesting one, was a variety of close finishes and enough winning favorites to keep the crowd in good humor. The longest shot of the day was Jim Moss, winner by a neck over Noras Grace in the fourth race. Jim supplied the faithful with $50.40 for each $2 investment.

The daily double caught a pair of heavily played horses—Hurdy Gurdy and Dixie Bee—and the mutuel was only $11.20.

CAPTOR followed the early pace closely, saved ground on the inside throughout, but could not withstand the challenge of the winner. HACKY H., a forward factor at all times, closed well, and was wearing CAPTOR down. HANDLEY raced on the outside, and was not strongly ridden. BABY CHINK raced evenly. The others were outrun.

CROSSING OVER, a forward factor from the start, closed stoutly to reach second down WISE MOLLIE. The latter raced forwardly, made a bid on the final bend, but weakened. JANE PORTER, in the first flight from the start, closed well, and was wearing WISE MOLLIE down. BOOGIE MAN could not improve his position. MISS PATCHES never entered contention.

NISIA had good early speed, save way to the winner, but hung on well. MODERN TIMES dwelt when the break came, was rushed into contention at once, was given a respite on the back stretch, and closed well. ARAB raced forwardly in the early running, and had no excuses. BARCELONA PETE could not improve his position. LUKE CONNELL lacked speed, and never entered contention.

Valley League Is Under Way Tomorrow

Harrisonburg Will Oppose New Market in First Game of Year.

HARRISONBURG, Va., May 31 (Spl.).—With Mayor Ward Swank tossing out the first ball here Saturday afternoon, the Valley League campaign will get under way. New Market will provide the opposition for the Harrisonburg champions in the opener.

On Sunday, the second contest will be played, Harrisonburg journeying to Charlottesville to stage the first Valley League game in the University City. The other two clubs, Woodstock and Culpeper, will get into action later next week.

Added Interest.

This is the first year that the Valley League has had entries from Piedmont, Va., and the inclusion of the two clubs from across the Blue Ridge, it is believed, will add great interest to the race.

Last year's league was confined to the Valley, Bridgewater holding the fourth franchise. The college town, however, did not return to the fold. Charlottesville and Culpeper were admitted. A third Piedmont club was sought but could not be lined up.

Games will be played on Saturdays and Sundays and on one midweek day. Sunday baseball is played in all the towns except Harrisonburg.

Stocks Drift Lower in Drab, Light Trading

Weakness Centers in Steels on Strike Fears; Sales, 438,400 Shares.

New York, May 31 (AP).—Overshadowed by the rise in grains, stocks sold lower today as the month came to a drab close in security markets.

Weakness centured in steel shares, on threat of a strike in the industry and expectation of a summer slump in demand. U. S. Steel common and Bethlehem sold fractionally under previous 1934 lows, losses of fractions to about 3 points were general among steel shares. One inactive issue, A. M. Byers Preferred, lost nearly 6 points in small transactions.

Trading picked up only slightly after the Memorial Day recess. Sales in the stock exchange totaled 438,400 shares compared with 379,252 Tuesday, a ten-year low record.

Gains Largely Eliminated.

Gains in the creeping advance in stocks which extended through last Monday were largely eliminated. The average of 90 stocks closed 1.5 points lower at 76.3.

Aside from steel, strike threats in the textile industry and labor unrest elsewhere accentuated the feeling of uncertainty which has been evident in markets lately.

Wall street figured smaller crops would offset appreciation in market values as far as purchasing power of the farm belt was concerned. Crop damage, in fact, was viewed pessimistically, on the possibility it would become more serious and necessitate fresh Government expenditures for farm relief.

Selling Depresses Stocks.

In absence of demand, small liquidation was sufficient to depress stock prices. American Can, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Chrysler, General Motors, General Electric, Illinois Central, International Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Westinghouse and other standard issues sagged fractionally to more than a point.

Celanese, Industrial Rayon and other textile shares moved off with the market but were not especially weak.

Midweek trade news did not attract much attention against the background of labor unrest and crop developments. A recovery of 1 point in steel operations, as estimated by the Iron Age, was discounted in part because buyers have been stocking on possibility of a steel strike.

Weekly reports of individual carriers indicated the weekly traffic figures tomorrow would disclose a contraseasonal gain in loadings. Electric power consumption, according to figures of the Edison Electric Institute, increased a little last week over the preceding week, but the margin of gain over 1933 narrowed.

Armour of Illinois preferred dropped about 2 points after the curb exchange announced suspension of trading on a "when issued" basis in new preferred and common to be issued under its recapitalization plan.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Comparison of Current Business Statistics With Those of a Year Ago Is Becoming More and More Erroneous as July Is Approached.

By Ralph West Robey.

Several weeks ago, about the middle of March, it was pointed out here that comparisons of the then current business statistics with those of a year earlier were virtually worthless. It was explained that this was the case because during the first of March, 1933, economic conditions were highly abnormal as a result of the acute banking crisis extending over the preceding month. Comparisons of the figures for the end of February and first part of March of 1934 with corresponding dates of 1933, accordingly, were certain to give a distorted picture. We now are entering another period when such comparisons also will give a distorted picture, although of the opposite kind.

In other words we now are approaching a period when annual comparisons have to be made the great speculative boom that culminated last July. On a week-to-week basis, therefore, our data for current business will appear worse and worse when set up against the corresponding date for 1933. In due time, in fact, most of our business series will be below the 1933 figure. As we gradually come nearer and nearer to such a situation it is important to bear in mind that at this time last year we were having the most rapid increase in business in the history of the country.

Increases Amounted to As Much as 365 Per Cent.

Just how rapid it was can be appreciated only by turning to actual business statistics. From the indices of the Annalist one gets the following:

Freight car loadings increased from a low of 51 in March to a high of 66 in July, an increase of 29 per cent.

Steel ingot production increased from a low of 20 in March to a high of 93 in July, an increase of 365 per cent.

Pig iron production increased from a low of 17 in March to a high of 65 in August, an increase of 282 per cent.

Electric power production increased from a low of 80 in March to a high of 97 in July, an increase of 21 per cent.

Cotton consumption increased from a low of 80 in February to a high of 140 in June, an increase of 75 per cent.

Wool consumption increased from a low of 52 in March to a high of 147 in June, an increase of 183 per cent.

Silk consumption increased from a low of 57 in March to a high of 105 in June, an increase of 84 per cent.

Boot and shoe production increased from a low of 95 in March (it was 94 in January and 101 in February) to a high of 135 in June, an increase of 42 per cent.

Automobile production increased from a low of 27 in March to a high of 68 in July, an increase of 252 per cent.

Lumber production increased from a low of 34 in February to a high of 73 in August, an increase of 115 per cent.

Prices Were Skyrocketing At an Equally Rapid Rate.

In the field of prices the increases were just as spectacular. Wheat increased from 68 cents a bushel the first of March to $1.34 on July 17; corn from 39 to 83 cents; oats from 26 to 58 cents, beef from $9.50 to $12, pork from $14.25 to $20, cotton from 6 to 12 cents, print cloth from 3 to 7 cents, tin from 23 to 48 cents, copper from 5 to 9 cents, rubber from 3 to 10 cents, hides from 4 to 15 cents.

In the securities markets the same story was repeated. Everything was skyrocketing—until that day the middle of July when the bottom dropped out. That this result was inevitable, because a large part of the increase was artificial, now is generally recognized. This does not alter the fact, however, that while the boom was continuing our business indices were soaring at an unheard of rate. Consequently if we compare current figures with those for a year ago we shall end up with a basically erroneous interpretation of what is happening today in our business structure.

Federal Bonds Climb Higher; Others Decline

Market Is Listless and Irregular; Sales Rise to $10,230,000.

New York, May 31 (AP).—The strength of U. S. Government securities was the feature of today's otherwise listless and rather irregular bond market transactions.

Transfers totaled $10,230,000, par value, against $9,987,000 Tuesday. The average for 60 domestic corporate issues was off two-tenths of a point at 85.8. Government issues accounted for about $1,900,000 of the trading aggregate.

Gains in the Federal section ranged from 2 thirty-seconds to 13 thirty-seconds of a point. Home Owners Loan 4s reached a new high for the year. Today was the last day on which the corporation could call these bonds for redemption on July 1. Treasury issues generally hovered around their best rates for 1934 or longer.

Strikes Retarding Factor.

Spurting grains, reflecting the continuation of drought conditions in the principal growing areas, did not furnish any particular stimulus to corporate bonds. The possibility of serious strikes in the steel and textile industries was also viewed as a retarding factor. At the same time, the majority of prime investment loans maintained a fairly steady position. Many were unchanged to slightly higher.

List of Gainers.

Improvement was shown by some issues of Consolidated Gas, Chesapeake & Ohio, Santa Fe, Canadian Pacific, Duquesne Light, Kansas Gas, National Dairy, Pennsylvania, Standard Oil of New York and Wheeling Steel.

Losers of fractions to a point or more included loans of Western Union, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, Postal Telegraph, North American, Nickel Plate, Missouri Pacific, International Telephone, Chile Copper, Erie, Baltimore & Ohio, American & Foreign Power and Alleghany Corporation.

Foreign obligations were mixed. Those of Argentina, Canada, Australia, Colombia, Norway and Poland improved. German issues were off 1 to 2 or more points.

Reich government 5½s and 7s lost about a point each coincident with fears that service on these Young plan and Dawes bonds would either be reduced or canceled. Italian loans were also heavy, as were those of France.

Curb's Prices Close Down In Dull Session

Utilities and Metals Are Reactionary; Transfers, 107,000 Shares.

New York, May 31 (AP).—The curb market drifted a little lower today, fractional recessions being in the majority at the close. Dealings were in line with the dullest sessions of the current quiet spell, transfers approximating 107,000 shares compared with 126,000 for last Tuesday.

Utilities and metals were slightly reactionary. Some specialties yielded, while oils were more resistant.

Sherwin Williams dipped more than 2 ponts while Aluminum Co. of America, Lake Shore and Newmont were down around a point. Smaller declines were shown by Electric Bond & Share, American Gas & Electric, Greyhound Corporation, Swift & Co., Tubize Chatillon, Glen Alden Coal and Atlas Corporation.

Gulf Oil and International Petroleum were steady spots while Columbia Gas & Electric preferred rose a major fraction in a small turnover.

Textile Strike Threat Demand On Shorter Week Is Assailed

By Anna P. Youngman.

The President of the United Textile Workers threatens to call a general strike, effective next Monday, unless the production curtailment order approved for the cotton industry by the NRA is rescinded. If the strike should occur, it will come at a very opportune time from the point of view of mill managements. When urging approval of the proposal to cut production 25 per cent for a period up to 12 weeks, Chairman Sloan of the Cotton Textile code authority reported that unsold stocks of cotton cloth had been steadily increasing from 250,000,000 yards at the end of February to 332,000,000 yards at the end of April. During that period unfilled orders had fallen from 1,138,000,000 yards to 756,000,000 yards. Moreover in the last two weeks of April, sales averaged only 47 per cent of current production. This overproduced condition of the industry has already resulted in curtailment of operations by certain mills, and further curtailments are expected during the summer. Similar conditions of overproduction exist in the yarn mills. President Sloan stated that if available spindles were operated fully under the existing 80-hour limitation, production would amount to about 10,000,000 pounds of carded yarn per week, whereas average total shipments for the eight weeks ended April 21 were about 7,300,000 pounds, and average weekly sales during that period only about 5,500,000 pounds.

Strike Threat Made.

In face of this situation, the head of the textile workers' union says he is prepared to order a strike unless the curtailment order is rescinded. The union demands as an alternative that the working week be reduced to 30 hours without reduction in wages, and now the pressure to push that policy comes at a time when its lack of success is beginning to be apparent in the accumulation of stocks of unsold goods, produced by more highly paid labor. The chief benefits derivable from code agreements regulating competitive practices, output, etc., come from the systematic adaptation of production to changes in demand, which are designed to assure reasonable profits to industry. However, if organized labor can force codified industries to maintain workers' earnings at a fixed total, without regard to the degree of current activity, the wages bill would become as rigid an item of costs as interest on funded debt, and the accommodation of output to changes in demand, at prices that would yield a profit to producers, would become increasingly difficult.

Privately owned industries can not shoulder the costs of taking care of unemployed men and women by the methods suggested. If wages are to become an unvarying item in costs, subsidies will either have to be paid out of the public purse, or Government ownership and operation will have to be substituted for private initiative.

Briggs & Stratton Votes Regular and 10-Cent Extra Dividends.

New York, May 31 (AP).—The balance sheet of the Ford Motor Co., as filed with the Massachusetts commissioner of corporations, shows a profit and loss surplus as of December 31, 1933, of $576,517,079, against $580,440,603 at the close of 1932, pointing to a 1933 total loss of $3,923,524.

Wage Earnings In Plants Rise 35.6 Per Cent

April Weekly Incomes Up 2.5 Over March; Time Is 36.1 Hours.

New York, May 31.—Average weekly earnings of wage earners employed in manufacturing industry in April were 2.5 per cent larger than in March, and 35.6 per cent larger than in April, 1933, according to the results of the regular monthly survey of the National industrial conference board announced today. They were 44.5 per cent above the low point in March, 1933, and were higher than in any month since October, 1931.

The advance in weekly earnings in April resulted from an increase of 3.2 per cent in average hourly earnings, which more than offset a slight reduction, 0.8 per cent in hours worked. Average hourly earnings were 57.9 cents in April, as compared with 56.1 cents in March, and 45.0 cents in June 1933, which was the low month in 1933.

Average time worked per week was 36.1 hours in April, 36.4 hours in March, and 34.0 hours in April, 1933. The work week was shortest in March, 1933, at 32.1 hours, and since then longest in July, 1933, at 42.9 hours.

Manufacturing activity, as measured by total man-hours worked, was 2.5 per cent greater in April than in March. The advance was due entirely to an increase of 3.3 per cent in the number of persons at work, since the average wage-earner worked a slightly shorter week than in March. From the low point in March, 1933, total man-hours worked have increased 69.8 per cent.

Total pay roll disbursements were 5.9 per cent larger in April than in March, 1934, and 117.7 per cent larger than in March, 1933. Increases in pay roll disbursements from March, 1934, to April, 1934, were recorded in the following industries: Agricultural implements, automobiles, chemical, cotton—north, electrical manufacturing, furniture, hosiery and knit goods, iron and steel, lumber and millwork, paint and varnish, paper and pulp, paper products, printing—book and job, and news and magazine, rubber, foundries, machines and machine tools, heavy equipment and other foundry products.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Business on the stock exchange was quiet, and prices were irregular. The feature of the market was the slump in German bonds on fears that the Dawes and Young loans would be included in the moratorium. Kaffirs were bought owing to dividend prospects, and industrials and Argentine rails hardened. Other sections eased, and the market closed undecided.

Paris—Despite the lowering of the discount rate by the Bank of France, trading on the bourse was dull. South African gold mining shares were the only strong section, although Citroen issues were also somewhat stronger owing to the coupon payment on the 7½ per cent bonds. Rentes were feeble, and the market closed heavy.

Berlin—The tone on the bourse was better today on the new loan arrangement. Prices were generally higher but unsettled. The closing was sustained.

Wheat Soars Above $1 as Crops Parch

Chicago Market Closes at $1.03⅛; Minneapolis Jumps to $1.05½.

Chicago, May 31 (AP).—Dollar wheat became an actuality today as arid fields in the grain-producing Midwest parched under a burning sun.

The last day of driest May in weather records witnessed the recording of the highest prices paid for wheat in the Nation's grain marts since last August, reflecting the attitude in which traders and speculators received news of the plight of farmers' crops.

Vast areas of winter wheat lay wilted under the scorching sun that brought 100 degrees temperatures. More than a month had passed since the roots had received sufficient rainfall, and the Weather Bureau could promise only scattered showers for the next 24 hours.

Million Cattle Condemned.

The widespread drought, described in the West by the Weather Bureau as "unprecedented," condemned more than a million cattle to premature slaughter and caused recent daily abandonment, according to one Government estimator, of 1,000,000 bushels of wheat.

Prices vaulted above $1 a bushel for wheat in two important markets today. At the Board of Trade here, where values earlier in the week had strained at maximum levels, May wheat, traded in for the last time, soared to $1.03⅛. July touched $1.02⅝, more than 6 cents above the day's low and at the 5-cent maximum permitted by trading rules.

July options sold at 73¼ cents on April 19, the date of the most recent serious break in values, showing a 29 cents advance in about six weeks. A year ago July sold at 75⅝@75¾.

Peak at Minneapolis.

Wheat prices at Minneapolis were at a peak of $1.05½. Corn at Chicago soared almost 4 cents, July closing at 60¾@61. Oats were up 3 cents to a top of 45 and rye was up 3 cents to a top of 67½. Heavy profit-taking retarded the advance, but sellers were overwhelmed by the deluge of buying orders.

Record-breaking heat throughout the Midwest supplied an anticlimax to a month of intense aridity and damaging dust storms. Hordes of grasshoppers in Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, Wisconsin and Michigan, and chinch bug invasions in other wheat and corn areas added to the attack on crops. Forest fire flames were sweeping over farm property in several areas.

Temperatures of 106 were frequent in the Dakotas and Iowa. Rockford, Ill., sweltered in 102 degrees of heat. At Chicago it was 97 after noon and the mercury mounted. Kansas broiled under the sun. Minneapolis' temperature reached 104, equalling the all-time summer heat record.

When Issued Basis Of Trading Halted

Federal Commission Rules Against Unregistered Stock Sales.

(Associated Press.)

The Trade Commission yesterday issued an opinion that trading in unregistered securities on a "when issued basis" is a violation of the securities act. The commission said in an oral opinion to the New York Curb Exchange that:

"Trading in securities on a when, as and if issued basis (if they are securities that should be registered under the securities act of 1933), when no registration statement necessary to be filed under that act is in effect, is a violation of the act."

The commission said this was not to be taken as a formal opinion or interpretation by the securities division of the Trade Commission, and that it was expressed to the curb exchange by telephone on its request. The opinion applies to "when issued" sales in all exchanges. It was based on the belief that such sales are actually sales of securities even though no actual stock certificate has been issued.

Deposit of Ochre Found in Maryland

Waynesboro, Pa., May 31 (Spl.).—The Bureau of Standards in Washington, D. C., today had a sample of yellow ochre for analysis after a deposit was unearthed in one of the excavations now in progress at part of the improvement program at Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., near here.

Yellow ochre, one of the valuable pigments used in the manufacture of paint, was analyzed by John J. Shank, Waynesboro chemist.

Trade Level Maintained in 5th Bank Area

Richmond Federal Reserve Reports Store Sales 3 Per Cent Up.

Richmond, May 31 (AP).—Although some indication of a "tapering off from recent activities" was noted, April trade and industry in the Fifth Federal Reserve District "was fully up to seasonal level as a whole," the Richmond Federal Reserve Bank reported today.

The monthly report of credit, business and agricultural conditions noted that retail trade in department stores averaged 3 per cent above April 1933, sales despite the fact that April last year included a large part of the Easter buying.

Another favorable index was the fact that the commercial failure record was "excellent." The number of insolvencies, the report said, was the lowest for any month, with but one exception, since November, 1920, and the liabilities involved were the smallest in amount since June, 1920.

Outdoor Work Increases.

Although employment conditions were seen not to have changed materially in April or the first half of May, the more favorable weather was said to have stimulated some outdoor work in building, painting, gardening and similar undertakings.

Wholesale trade declined seasonally in April as compared with the preceding month, but was well ahead of trade in April of last year.

Although crops were late, the report said that agricultural prospects probably were up to those of average years. There is plenty of moisture in the soil, the report said, and crops should advance quickly with warm, clear weather. Fertilizer sales were in excess of those for the same period last year and the financial condition of farmers was seen to be improved.

Time Deposits Larger.

Time deposits in 28 regularly reporting member banks and aggregate deposits in 11 mutual savings banks in Baltimore totaled $326,227,521 at the end of April, "a higher figure by approximately nine-tenths of 1 per cent than either $323,251,943 in time and savings deposits at the end of March this year or $323,369,742 at the end of April last year."

Discussing the failure of employment conditions to show any material change, the report said that "the biggest obstacle in the way of increased employment seems to be inactivity in the construction field.

"A considerable amount of public building is going on, but nowhere in private work continues at a very low level.

Hesitate on Mortgages.

"People with surplus funds appear to be reluctant to make mortgage loans under present uncertain conditions in the real estate market, and buyers seem to be equally reluctant in assuming long-time obligations for homes in the face of doubt as to the permanency of their jobs.

"So many people have had to give up homes at material loss to themselves since the depression began that families which in ordinary times would buy or build residences are now afraid to take on the obligations involved."

Encouraging was the report of tobacco sales in Virginia which showed that during the season Old Dominion markets sold 120,712,052 pounds for a total of $16,334,985, or an average price of $13.53 per 100 pounds, as compared with sales last year of 63,020,968 pounds for $5,483,242, or an average of $8.70 per 100 pounds. The season's average was the highest since 1929.

New Cargo Ship Put in Use by British

A new type of British cargo vessel has just been placed in operation between England and Argentina, according to a report from Vice Consul Douglas Wood, Buenos Aires, made public by the Commerce Department.

The ship, which is the first of an experimental class, on her maiden voyage carried a full cargo of coal to Buenos Aires. If the performance of this ship, as regards coal consumption, speed, and general seaworthiness can be consistently repeated, the report states, it will have a far-reaching effect in the future development of ship building.

The outstanding feature of the new vessel is the low consumption of coal for the speed obtained. According to the chief engineer, an average speed of 11.3 knots over a period of 17 consecutive days was maintained and an average of 10.62 knots for the entire voyage. All this was accomplished on a coal consumption of less than 20 tons per day, which is said to be about half of the fuel required of the older types of vessels of similar tonage and capacity.

The experimental ship has a displacement of 9,100 tons on the winterload line and a dead weight tonnage of 6,850. According to his owners, it has a horsepower of 35 per cent less and a coal consumption of nearly 50 per cent less than the old type of vessel.

Puerto Rico's Shipments Of Sugar Are Increasing

Raw sugar shipments from Puerto Rico to the United States from January 1 to May 26 totaled 435,423 short tons, an increase of 3.5 per cent when compared with shipments of 420,606 during a similar period last year, according to cables to the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange.

Refined shipments amounted to 61,010, a 27.3 per cent increase over the 47,927 ton total for the 1933 period.

Kroger Stores Sales Up.

New York, May 31 (AP).—Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. reports sales for the four weeks ended May 19 at $17,114,185 against $15,952,289 in the same period last year, an increase of 7.3 per cent.

Suspect Hunted In Slaying Here

Youth Believed Have Left Car in Southland.

An 18-year-old fugitive from the National Training School for Boys was sought last night as a suspect in the murder of Andrew Paul Rice, employe of the Washington Terminal Co.

The youth's trail led police to Lexington, N. C., where he is believed to have sought shelter after fleeing from Washington in a stolen car. Police seek to return him here on a United States Commissioner's warrant.

The fugitive, police declared, is believed to have stolen an automobile from near the ravine where Rice was found beaten to death two weeks ago. The machine was later abandoned near La Plata, Md.

Rice was killed in a surprise attack. He was beaten on the back of the head with a heavy instrument and left to die in a lonely section of a ravine near the Anacostia golf course.

3 Judges Ordered For Sales Tax Suit

Charleston, W. Va., May 31 (Spl.).—Judge George W. McClintic, of United States District Court, today ruled that a three-judge Federal court would be required to hear the suit, which started today, to determine the right of West Virginia to tax steamboats operating on navigable streams in interstate traffic.

The ruling was made on the petition of the Streckfuss Steamers, Inc., for an injunction to halt the collection of the 2 per cent State consumers' sales tax on its steamers. The case is based on the recent arrest of the purser of the excursion steamer Washington at Huntington for failing to collect the tax from participants in an excursion from that city.

The petitioner questions the right of the State to collect a tax from its boats operating in navigable waters in interstate trade, contending that they are subject only to Federal laws.

Snyder, educator, as a part of the annual program presented by the local post of the American Legion.

It was the first time the miniature military burial ground idea has been used. It was a small but regulation cemetery as to outline, enclosed by a white fence with a gate. It included 43 wooden crosses for the Berkeley County men who died in service during the World War; and a larger cross for the former soldiers who have died since 1918.

The American Legion band played a half-hour of sacred music. The Rev. Dr. F. R. Wagner gave the invocation, and members of the Legion auxiliary laid a wreath of flowers on the statue.

Old Clothes.

The man of dignity and pride with ample raiment is supplied, and he is finely groomed, with shirts correct in shape and size, imported socks and gorgeous ties, the best that ever bloomed. For all occasions he has suits, varieties of shoes and boots, the latest curves in spats; and all who see him in the mart make comments on the grace and art which dignify his hats. You'd think that one so nobly dressed would ne'er be bothered or distressed, would never heave a sigh; to see him pace the city flags, all dolled up in his priceless rags, gives pleasure to the eye. But often it's his great desire to shed this rich and rare attire and don some ancient duds, and journey in a jitney car, all stained with motor grease and tar, tobacco juice and suds. Out to the woods he'd like to go and let his hair and whiskers grow, and wear a gingham shirt, and wear old shoes that never knew a shine since nineteen-twenty-two, all plastered up with dirt. For it brings on a mental storm to be for long the mold of form, a human fashion plate; to be the tailor's brightest ad wears out the patience of the lad who must be up to date.

Coal Dust Fatal.

Kingsport, Tenn., May 31 (Spl.). Elbert B. Hickman, 41, suffocated yesterday while working in a dust arrester bin in the charcoal department of the Tennessee Eastman Corporation.

Radio Waves and Ripples

THE fleet review yesterday proved what we have been contending for some time, that given a microphone and very little else an announcer can talk.

Very entertaining talk, it was, too, during the 2½ hours that the fleet was trying to pull itself together in the fog.

Our untutored imagination envisioned nothing but microphones, announcers and equipment strung all along the river and most of the Atlantic Coast.

The boys were at it for something like five hours. WJSV, of course, had to be excused to go to the ball game at 2:15, but Columbia continued on the air until 4:15 p. m. National stayed on until 4 p. m. and canceled a 15-minute commercial to do it.

Some one suggested wreaths for the networks' young men. Wreaths are things usually found in graveyards. There was nothing dead about the young men. We suggest letters from Mr. Aylesworth and Mr. Paley, at least. They're easier to carry around.

WJSV's Ted Church got so good that we told a couple of people around the Navy Department—which, by the way, is a good place to go the next time you want to hear a fleet review—that we worked with him once—for a week. We also were glad we knew Bob Trout and N. B. C.'s Carlton Smith.

THIS is our day for quoting people. On days like this we are apt to quote anyone. Somewhere along this pillar of lead will be found experts from the pen of Palmer Brink, whose tireless devotion to the advancement of the Northern Dramatic Company we earnestly admire.

But before throwing Mr. Brink to our readers, we should like to set down the words of two gentlemen who, in the spirit of the Industrial Progress luncheon in Chicago last week, painted a picture of radio in the next decade or so.

H. M. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co.:

"Let us glimpse the calendar and see what is ahead. The future dates are encouraging industrially; they are enchanting artistically, informative and educational . . . Facsimile radio, that is, the sending of pictures and printed matter through the air, is looming on the horizon of science. It is uncanny to watch the radio pens sketch drawings and words in the laboratories . . . Television, of course dreamed of since man first realized radio was more than a toy or a craze, is one of the big hopes of the radio industry . . . it requires time and a good deal of money.

"Radios pictures that moves through space must be clear . . . The quality of the motion picture screen and broadcasting set the pace that television must follow . . . the future of radio is no idle dream."

David Saranoff, president of Radio Corporation of America:

"Although important problems relating not only to the technical side, but also to the commercial side of television still remain unsloved, research has brought us much nearer the goal of its ultimate commercial production."

"Some months ago, Ed. J. Irvine, former secretary of the Northern Dramatic Co., and poet laureate, of Virginia, told Ronald Dawson that within a certain length of time, preferably in the spring, he would receive notice that a brother of his whom he had not seen for years would come to America and see him. Dawson received just such notice the other day, that his brother, Maurice Weinbreen, of Hyde Park, London, was coming to the United States for a business trip and would like to see him. Dawson will make a trip to New York in a fortnight and meet the brother, whom he has not seen for ten years. The remarkable part of it is that Irvine said that it would happen with the number seven connected with it . . . Dawson's brother leaves England on the 7th of June."

MR. BRINK.

Queer, ain't it?

Local N. B. C. bosses came out of yesterday's "policy" meeting in a jubilant mood. On their way to lunch they chirped happily of customer "goodwill."

Formerly it was the rule that when super bosses in New York sold a network to a sponsor, local commercial programs left the air within two weeks. That made goodwill a difficult item to sustain.

Yesterday the local boys heard that hereafter their show buyers will be notified of cancellation 30 days in advance. That more than doubles opportunities to kiss and make up.

"Ingenue—A young woman or girl who is artless, ingenuous, or innocent."—Funk & Wagnalls New Standard Dictionary.

"The Northern (Dramatic Co.) will begin competitive auditions for a new ingenue on one week from Friday evening. Four girls will be tested with the audience voting as to which one is the best. The one selected will win a permanent place in the company."—Mr. Brink.
